

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE aim of this book is to furnish pupils who have given little or no attention to the study of English grammar a complete course in Latin for one year.

The book opens with a short and easy review of English grammar. In the lessons, the changes in the forms, uses, and relations of words are explained and illustrated, so far as is practicable, from English, before introducing the Latin forms and constructions. In order to avoid or to lessen the bewilderment usually produced in the mind of the young beginner by the use of a complete Latin grammar, everything not essential to the structure of a simple sentence has, at first, been carefully excluded. In short, no effort has been spared to smooth the way for the beginner, and to prepare him for the intelligent reading of Cæsar or of any of the less difficult Latin authors.

Much care and study have been expended on the order and arrangement of the lessons, especially in the earlier part, aiming mainly at two things: First, to introduce very early in the course the simple verb-forms, which are easier than the nouns and open the way to a wide range of expression; and, secondly, to give not bare words and their inflections, but sentences from the start, with both questions and answers, in natural and easy succession. vocabularies at the head of each lesson and the exercises for translation, both Latin and English, will afford abundant material for drill on the forms. The teacher, however, will find it an excellent oral exercise to combine these words into new sentences (both Latin and English), requiring the pupil to give the translation. The first associations with any language, especially when learned by the young, should be such as to make it as nearly as possible a living tongue; the scientific study of it should follow, not go before, some elementary knowledge of what it is in actual speech. I do not wish to be understood as advocating the neglect of syntax or of etymology, but simply as urging that the time often given to parsing and memorizing and repeating formulas, which my experience has taught me help but little in the mastery of the language, can be much more profitably employed in the oral work just mentioned. The aim, of course, is to teach the pupil to read and write Latin: but may not this be accomplished more expeditiously and pleasantly by making the language alive, - by teaching pupils to speak, write, and read Latin as they are taught to speak, write, and read a modern language? A German university student, if the classics be his specialty, learns not only to read and write Latin, but even to speak it. If Latin is to maintain its present high place in our courses of study, it must offer something better than mere mental training or grammatical drill; it must introduce the student to the priceless treasures of art and literature which the Romans gathered from the ancient world, and which, transfusing with their own genius, they transmitted to coming ages. This work can be done in no way better than by teaching Latin as a living language. Is it not time that some one of our colleges or universities should offer opportunities for students to acquire a speaking knowledge of the Latin language?

For those who prefer the English method of pronunciation, a few simple rules have been given. The so-called Roman method, which is a very near approach to the ancient pronunciation, is now adopted by many of our leading colleges and high schools. Great pains have been taken in these lessons to teach the euphonic changes that occur in verbs in the formation of the perfect and participial stems. A thorough knowledge of the phonetic value of the letters of the Roman alphabet will help the student through most of these difficulties. This is quite aside from the question of pronunciation, which must, after all, be governed by the prevailing usage. The quantity of syllables, except final syllables that are short, and the final o of the first person present indicative of verbs, has been carefully marked, in order to secure accuracy of pronunciation; and, if a serious attempt is made to pronounce according to the Roman method, the pupil's ear should be trained to it from the start.

In enumerating the principal parts of verbs, I have ventured to deviate so far from common usage as to substitute in place of the so-called supine the neuter of the perfect participle. The supine in -um, called by many grammarians one of the principal parts of the verb, belongs, in fact, to only about 250 Latin verbs; then, again, those verbs that are invariably intransitive have the perfect participle in the neuter gender only. This part, then, called in the dictionaries the supine in -um, must, in most cases, be the neuter of the perfect participle; and I have ventured, in the enumeration of the principal parts of the verb, to give it this name, and also to substitute, as Vaniçek and other grammarians have done, in place of supine stem, the more correct term participial stem. The retention of the neuter of the perfect participle, in enumerating the principal parts of the verb, instead of the masculine, is of importance from the fact just mentioned in regard to intransitive verbs, and also because it can be made to conform easily to the present usage of our dictionaries.

The words in the short vocabularies at the beginning of the lessons, as well as the examples to illustrate the rules of syntax, are mostly drawn from the first five chapters of Cæsar's Gallic These vocabularies should be thoroughly committed to War. The practice of selecting examples from authors of different periods and modes of expression tends, as it seems to me, rather to perplex young pupils than to give them definite ideas of the structure and formation of a Latin sentence. No effort is made in these vocabularies to teach the derivation of words: but, in the general vocabulary at the close of the book, the prefixes, stems, and endings of the words have been carefully indicated. chapter on the formation of words, attention is mainly confined to the formation of those words that the pupil can easily understand, and that can be made of service to him while studying these lessons.

Exercises for sight-reading have been introduced early in the course. The lesson read at sight can be assigned as the regular lesson of the next day, and made to serve as the basis for additional drill in syntax and etymology. On the third day, the pupil should be required to translate the same lesson, as a review exercise, into clear and accurate English, absolutely disregarding the literal construction of the words and sentences. These exercises will also afford ample means for practice in pronouncing Latin, which is best acquired in reading connected sentences, as is the case in a modern language. But in order to read Latin easily and well, the oral practice, which I have mentioned, will be found a valuable and almost indispensable aid.

My aim has been to introduce the pupil, by the aid of easy examples, to the correct use of words and to the chief principles of syntax. When these examples have been studied, and the rules to be derived from them are thoroughly understood, the exercises that follow, both Latin and English, will be found sufficient to fix these principles in the memory. It is important, in fact indispensable to thoroughness, for the pupil to keep up the work of composition. If the exercises to be turned into Latin are too numerous, then a part of them can be omitted until the review; but some writing in Latin should be done every day.

The book may seem to some teachers to be too large for beginners. But I have endeavored to keep in view the needs of young pupils, and have thought it better to give too much explanation rather than not enough. Then, again, the numerous examples; the explanatory notes; the frequent illustration of Latin idioms by reference to English; the manner in which the paradigms are displayed; and the adjustment of the type, by which the pupil can learn not only the leading topics of the page, but also the relative importance of the various rules, remarks, and observations, have all necessarily added to the size of the book, but they will all, it is hoped, be found helpful to the pupil.

My acknowledgments are due to several of our best teachers, who have generously aided me by their counsel in the plan and in the numerous details of the book. The entire work, while going through the press, has received, in addition, the valuable revision and oversight of George W. Collord, Professor of Latin in the Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn; of Caskie Harrison, sometime Professor of Ancient Languages in the University of the South, now one of the Principals of the Brooklyn Latin School, to whom I am especially indebted for many valuable suggestions in the revision of the chapters on syntax; D. A. Kennedy, Dearborn-Morgan School, Orange, N. J.; and of Miss C. T. Davis, Professor of Latin in the Packer Collegiate Institute.

INTRODUCTION.

LESSON I.

PARTS OF SPEECH IN ENGLISH.

NOUNS.-PRONOUNS.-ADJECTIVES.

OBSERVATION. In the study of English grammar, one of the first things the pupil has to do is to classify and name the various words that he meets in his exercises. He does this in the same manner that one might pick out, sort, and group objects of any kind: viz., by noting the points in which they resemble one another. For example, we may, from certain resemblances in form and structure, select all trees of a certain kind, and call them maples; from other resemblances, we should get another class, called oaks; and still another class, called beeches. Then we may study each class, as the oak, and learn all that is perhaps necessary to know of the numerous individuals that compose the class. In the same manner, we may study and classify words. Noticing the various ways the different words are used in sentences, we sort them out, or group them, into eight classes, which are called PARTS OF Speech. Those words that name objects are called Nouns, from the Latin word nomen, which means a name. But we soon learn that we cannot talk or say anything about the noun without using another kind of word, called VERB, from the Latin verbum, a word. When a noun and a verb are combined so as to express a thought, i.e. so as to make sense, then a sentence (Lat. sententia) is formed: as. -

Trees grow. Boys run. Time flies.

PRONOUNS.

Charles went to Rome with his mother, and he came back without her. In this sentence we make use of three little words, called PRONOUNS. They are his, he, and her. Without these words, we should be compelled to repeat the nouns, and to say: Charles went to Rome with Charles's mother, and Charles came back without Charles's mother.

1. A Noun is the name of anything, as, a person, place, or thing; as, boy, house, man, tree, city.

2. A Pronoun is a word used for a noun; as,— Can you tell me who wrote the line?

Obs. We have stated that the words of our language may be divided into eight classes, or parts, of speech. When we examine these parts of speech, we shall soon find it necessary to divide some of the classes into other classes. For example, the word city may mean any city, i.e. it is a name common to the whole class; while the word Boston is a proper, or particular, name of an individual of this class. We may, therefore, subdivide nouns into common and proper. If we notice the use of nouns further, we shall see that they undergo certain changes in form, meaning, and use; for example, the tree grows, and the trees grow. Here we notice the word tree changes its form by assuming s; this change, or modification, in the form and meaning of the noun, tree, is called NUMBER. The word tree, denoting one, is in the singular number; and the word trees, denoting more than one, is in the plural number. Let us now examine the following words:—

- 1. The lion is strong.
- 2. The lieness is strong.
- 3. The author writes.
- 4. The author's book is read.
- 5. We praise the author.
- 6. I, the author, have written.
  - 7. Author, hear thou.
  - 8. We call the author.

Obs. In Ex. 1 the pupil will notice that the word lion denotes a male, in Ex. 2 this word has been changed, or modified, in form, and now denotes a female. This modification of the noun to denote sex is called Gender. There are three genders, — masculine, feminine, and neuter.

The changes that we have noted so far, affect the meaning of the noun; there are two other changes of nouns seen in Exs. 3-8, which affect the uses and relations of the words. In Ex. 3 the author is represented as doing an act, viz., writing; in Ex. 4, as possessing a book; and in Ex. 5, as receiving an action. These uses of nouns are called Cases. The use of the noun in Ex. 3, as subject, is called the Nominative Case; its use in Ex. 4, to denote possession, is called Possessive Case; its use in Exs. 5 and 8, as object, is called Objective Case. The possessive is the only case of the noun that is indicated by a change in form.

In Exs. 6-8 the word author has three different uses. In Ex. 6 it denotes the speaker, in Ex. 7 the person spoken to, and in Exs. 5 and 8 the person spoken of. This change in the use of nouns is called Person. There are three persons,—the first person, as in Ex. 6; the second person, denoting the one spoken to, as in Ex. 7; and the third person, denoting the one spoken of, as in Ex. 8.

MODIFICATION.

These changes in the form, meaning, and use of words, are called Modifications.

Nouns.

- 3. A Noun, or Substantive, is the name of anything, as, a person, place, or thing; as, man, book, Boston.
- 1. A Proper Noun is the particular name of a person or place; as, Brooklyn, Cicero.
- 2. A Common Noun is a name common to all members of a class of objects; as, city, river.

Obs. There are two classes of common nouns, collective and abstract, that it may be well for the pupil to note:—

1. A collective noun is the name of a multitude of objects taken as a whole; as, army, crowd, mob, legion, jury, multitude.

- 2. An abstract noun is the name of a quality considered as taken away, or abstracted, from the object to which it belongs; as, beauty, virtue, prudence, mildness.
- 4. Nouns are modified to express Number, Gender, Person, and Case.

NUMBER.

- 1. There are two Numbers: the singular, which denotes one thing; as, man, boy.
- 2. The plural, which denotes more than one; as, men, boys.

GENDER.

- 3. There are three Genders: the masculine, which denotes the male sex; as, lion, man.
- 4. The feminine, which denotes the female sex; as, lioness, woman.
- 5. The neuter, which denotes neither male nor female; as, book.

PERSON.

- 6. There are three Persons:
- (1) The first person, which denotes the one speaking; as,

  We Americans hurry too much.

- (2) The second person, which denotes the one spoken to; as, John, bring me the book.
- (3) The third person, which denotes the one spoken of; as, The boy has gone to school.

CASE.

- 7. Case is the modification of a noun or pronoun to show its relation to other words. There are four cases:—
- (1) The Nominative, which usually denotes the subject, and answers the question who? or what?; as,

John speaks.

(2) The Possessive, which denotes possession, and answers the question whose?; as,

John's book. Boys' slates.

(3) The Objective, which denotes the relation of the direct object, or of a preposition; as,

The man strikes the boy. His wealth was gained by industry.

- (4) The Independent, or Case Absolute, which denotes that the noun or pronoun has no dependence on any other word. Its most common uses are
  - a. As the case of address; as,

The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves.

b. With a participle, forming a contracted clause; as,

The sun having risen, we departed on our journey: i.e. = when the sun had risen, etc.

c. By pleonasm, as when a noun introduces the subject of a remark, and then is left independent of the rest of the sentence; as,

The Pilgrim fathers, where are they?

Pronouns.

- 5. A pronoun (Lat. pro, for, and nomen, name) is a word used for a noun; as, he, they.
- 1. A Personal Pronoun is one that denotes by its form the speaker, the one spoken to, or the one spoken of. The first person, as I, we, is the speaker; the second person, you, thou, is the one spoken to; the third person, he, she, it, they, is that spoken of.

2. A Relative Pronoun is one that relates to some preceding word or words, called the antecedent, and connects clauses; as, who, which, that.

- 3. An Interrogative Pronoun is used to ask questions; as, Who is that? Which book have you? What man is that?
- 4. An Adjective Pronoun is one that may be used both as an adjective or as a noun; as, this, that, each, all.

Adjectives.

Obs. The noun does not always stand alone; other words may be added to it to explain or modify it; as, swift messengers come. Here the word swift names some quality possessed by messengers, and is said to modify messengers. It is called an adjective (Lat. ad, to, and jacere, to throw).

- 6. An adjective is a word used to modify a noun or pronoun; as, dear friend, red book, they all remained.
- 1. The modification of the adjective to show different degrees of quality is called comparison. There are three degrees of comparison:—
- a. The Positive, which expresses the simple quality; as, dear, good, bad.
- b. The Comparative, which expresses a greater or less degree of the quality; as, dearer, better, worse.
- c. The Superlative, which expresses the greatest or least degree of the quality; as, dearest, best, worst.
- 2. Adjectives are compared in three ways: (1) Regularly, i.e. by adding -er to the positive to form the comparative, and -est to the positive to form the superlative; as, high, higher, highest. (2) By use of the adverbs more and most, or less and least, with the positive of adjectives of more than two syllables; as, beautiful, more beautiful, most beautiful. (3) Irregularly; as, good, better, best.

Obs. The adjectives a, an, and the are usually called Articles.

EXERCISES.

Mention the parts of speech and the cases of the nouns and pronouns in the following sentences:—

1. Birds fly. 2. The lion was caged. 3. The industrious boy was praised. 4. These industrious boys are praised. 5. The river flows rapidly. 6. The boy's slate is on the desk. 7. The boys are in school. 8. She plays very nicely. 9. He writes more rapidly than I do. 10. The gate of the palace opens. 11. The house that you saw is sold. 12. Tell me what you did. 13. This is the man who called on you. 14. There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats. 15. The treaty being concluded, the council was dissolved.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

Write a common noun. Write the plural of this noun. Write the possessive singular and plural. Write the singular of six nouns; the plural of the same. Make a rule for forming the plural of nouns. Write the possessive case of each noun. Make a rule for forming the possessive case. Write the possessive plural. Write a pronoun. What is a pronoun? Show how pronouns are used. Write all the personal pronouns. Write a noun and prefix an adjective; compare this adjective. In how many ways may adjectives be compared? What class of adjectives are usually compared by more and most?

LESSON II.

PARTS OF SPEECH IN ENGLISH.

VERBS AND THEIR MODIFICATIONS.

OBS. If we say the boy strikes, the word strikes expresses the act done by the boy, — or is, as it is called, a VERB. Some other word, however, is necessary in order to complete the meaning; adding the word book, we have the boy strikes the book, the book being the object that receives the action, which passes over from the doer. Verbs that represent the action as passing over from the subject, or doer of the action, to the object, or receiver of the action, are called TRANSITIVE VERBS (Lat. trans, across, and eo, go). In the sentence, the boy sleeps, the action does not pass over to an object; but the verb sleeps expresses only being or state, and is called an Intransitive Verb.

The boy called his companion. Here called represents the action as having taken place in past time; and, as tense means time, the verb is said to be in past time, or past tense. Notice further that the past tense of called is formed by adding -ed to call. All verbs that form their past tense (and perfect participle) in this way are called REGULAR VERBS (Lat. regula, rule, these parts being formed according to a uniform rule).

- 7. A verb is a word that asserts action, being, or state of being; as, sleep, am, strike.
  - 8. Verbs are classified, according to their meaning, as—
  - 1. Transitive Verbs, which require an object; as,

The man strikes the table.

- Intransitive Verbs, which do not require an object; as,
   The horse runs.
- 9. Verbs are classified, according to their form, as regular and irregular.
- 1. A Regular Verb is one that forms its past tense and past participle by adding -d or -ed to the present; as, love, loved, loved.
- 2. An Irregular Verb is one that does not form its past tense and past participle by adding -d or -ed to the present; as, teach, taught, taught.
- 10. Some verbs are found only in the third person singular. They have no personal subject, and are therefore called Impersonal Verbs; as, it rains.
- 11. Defective Verbs want certain parts; as, can, ought, shall.
- 12. An Auxiliary Verb (Lat. auxilium, aid) is one used to aid in the conjugation of other verbs; as shall in the sentence,

The man shall tell his story.

Modifications of Verbs.

MODE.

Obs. 1. When I say the man strikes, I assert striking as a fact. The man may strike; in this sentence I do not assert the action as a fact, but as possible. Again, if the man strike, he will be sorry; I now assert the action, not as an actual fact, but as a condition of the man's being sorry. I can also say, man, strike! but I do not assert that the man does actually strike, but simply command him to strike. The action expressed by the verb strike has been asserted in four different ways, or modes. The first is called the Indicative Mode; the second, the Potential-Mode; the third, the Subjunctive Mode; the fourth, the Imperative Mode. There is another form of the verb, which expresses action, but cannot assert it of a subject; as, he wishes to strike. To strike expresses the action in a general way, without confining or limiting it to a subject; it is, therefore, called the Infinitive Mode, i.e. without limit, unlimited.

VOICE.

- Obs. 2. The man struck the boy. In this sentence the verb struck shows that the subject, man, is the actor; if we change the sentence, still expressing the same idea, to the boy was struck by the man, then the verb, was struck, shows that the subject is no longer the actor, but is acted upon, or receives the action. This change in the form of the verb is called Voice. The first form is called Active Voice; and the second, the Passive Voice.
- 13. Verbs are modified to express voice, mode, tense, number, and person.
- 1. Voice is that modification of a transitive verb which shows whether the subject acts or is acted upon. There are two voices:—
- a. The Active Voice, which shows that the subject does the action; as,

  The man strikes.
- b. The Passive Voice, which shows that the subject suffers the action; as,

  The man is struck.
- 2. Mode (Lat. modus, manner) denotes the manner of asserting the action or being. There are five modes:—
- a. The Indicative, which asserts the action (or being) as a fact, or inquires after a fact; as,

He came. Did he come?

b. The Potential, which asserts power, possibility, or necessity of the action or being; as,

He may come. He must come.

c. The Subjunctive, which asserts the action or being as a mere condition, supposition, uncertainty, or wish; as,

If you had come, this would not have happened.

Obs. The Subjunctive mode has but few forms now in common use, in which it differs from the forms of the Indicative and Potential; as,

If I were in your place. If he be loved. If he love.

d. The Imperative, which asserts the action or being as a command or entreaty; as,

Come thou.

e. The Infinitive (infinitivus, unlimited), which expresses the action or being in a general way, without asserting it of any person or thing; as,

He wishes to go.

That is, it is unlimited (hence its name) as to number and person. The verb in the other modes is called finite, that is, limited in number and person. He wishes to go. To go does duty here as a verb, expressing action, and as a verbal noun, the object of wishes.

TENSE.

Obs. In the sentences I strike, I struck, I shall strike, the mode, or manner, of asserting the action is the same, but the time is different. I strike expresses the action as present; I struck, as past; and I shall strike, as future. The first form is called Present Time, or Present Tense, as tense means time; the second, the Past Tense; the third, the Future Tense. There are also three other forms of the verb, asserting the action as completed in the present, the past, or the future: (1) I have struck; (2) I had struck; (3) I shall have struck. The first, have struck, represents the action as completed at the present time, and is called the Perfect Tense, or the Present Perfect; the second, had struck, represents the action as completed in past time, and is called the Pluperfect Tense, or Past Perfect; the third, shall have struck, represents the action as to be completed before some other future action, and is called the Future Perfect Tense.

- 3. Tense expresses the time of the action or being; the time may be present, past, or future. There are six tenses:
  - a. The Present expresses action or being as present; as,

He runs.

b. The Imperfect expresses action or being as going on in past time; as,

He was running.

c. The Future expresses action or being as yet to come; as,

He will run.

d. The Perfect expresses action or being as completed in present time; as,

He has run.

e. The Past Tense (aorist, or historical perfect) expresses action or being as ended in past time; as,

He ran.

f. The Pluperfect expresses action as ended before some other past action or being; as,

He had run.

g. The Future Perfect expresses action or being to be completed before some other future action; as,

He shall have run.

PERSON.

If we change the subject in the first sentence to thou, or to he, we must then change the verb strike to strikest, or to strikes. These changes are made for the sake of agreement between the subject and the verb,—the verb ending in -est agrees with thou in the second person, and the verb ending in -s agrees with he in the third person. Both of these subjects are singular number; if the subject is plural, the verb must be plural; as, the men strike. Hence, verbs agree with their subjects in number and person.

4. Number and Person of a verb are those modifications which show its agreement with the number and person of the subject; as,

The boy runs. The boys run.

PARTICIPLES.

OBS. In the sentence the sun rising causes the day, the word rising, while not directly asserting the action of rising of the sun, still assumes such an action; causes directly asserts the action. We may also say, the rising sun causes the day, but here rising has become an adjective, modifying sun. Hence, the participle may be defined as that form of the verb which partakes of the nature of an adjective, and expresses the action as assumed.

- 14. The Participle is a form of the verb that partakes of the nature of the verb and adjective. There are three participles:—
- 1. The Present, which represents the action or being as going on at the time denoted by the verb; as,

The river, flowing from the mountains, waters the plain.

2. The Past, which represents the action or being as completed at the time denoted by the verb; as,

The soldier, covered with wounds, fell.

3. The Perfect, which represents the action or being as completed previous to the time denoted by the verb; as,

Having climbed to the top of the hill, we saw the beautiful landscape.

EXERCISES.

Name the mode, tense, and voice, of each of the following verbs:—

- 1. They sing. 13. They are chosen. 2. They have sung. 14. They were ruled. 15. He has been struck. 3. I do fight. 16. We are blamed. 4. I have sung. 17. You were being praised. 5. They were calling. 6. They will call.7. They had called. 18. You will be blamed. 19. The boy is called. 8. They called. 20. The girl has been called. 9. They have called. 21. The king was wounded. 22. They will be punished. 10. They are calling. 23. They had been punished. 11. They had fought.
- 12. They will have fought. 24. He has been praised.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is a verb? Write a sentence containing a transitive verb. How are verbs classified? Mention the modifications of verbs. Write a verb in the indicative mode. What is a participle? Define the word. How many modes are there? How many tenses? Define tense.

LESSON III.

PARTS OF SPEECH IN ENGLISH.

ADVERBS. — PREPOSITIONS. — CONJUNCTIONS. — INTERJECTIONS.

Adverbs.

Obs. A noun and a verb are both necessary in order to form a sentence. We have learned that modifying words are often added to nouns to explain or to express the idea more clearly. Words are often added to the verb for the same purpose. If we say, the boy reads, we express the fact in a general way; but, if we wish to speak of the manner of reading, then we say, the boy reads badly, adding the word badly; if, of the time, we add the word now: the boy reads now; of the place, we add the word here: the boy read here. We may join words to these modifiers, and say, the boy reads very badly, that is, very modifies badly; we may join a word to an adjective, as, that book is very good. These words that we join with verbs, adjectives, or adverbs, to modify their meaning, are called ADVERBS (Lat. ad, to, and verbum, a word, or verb).

15. An Adverb is a word used to modify verbs, adjectives, or adverbs; as, he speaks plainly; it is remarkably cold weather; he strikes very hard.

COMPARISON.

1. Adverbs are compared in the same way as adjectives; as,

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
sweetly	more sweetly	most sweetly
soon	sooner	soonest
well	better	best

CLASSIFICATION OF ADVERBS.

- 2. Adverbs may express time, place, manner, cause, or degree.
- a. Adverbs of Time answer the question, when?; as, lately, yesterday.
- b. Adverbs of Place answer the question, where?; as, there, here.
- c. Adverbs of Manner answer the question, in what way?; as, excellently, well.
  - d. Adverbs of Cause answer the question, why?; as, why.
- e. Adverbs of Degree answer the question, in what degree?; as, too, very.

Prepositions.

OBS. Adverbs modify verbs, as, the horse stands there; but we may wish to express the idea with more distinctness than is possible even with the use of an adverb, as, the horse stands in his stall. These words, in his stall, standing for the adverb there, are called a phrase, and the word in, that shows the relation between stands and stall, is called a PREPOSITION.

16. A Preposition (Lat. prae, before, and pono, place) shows the relation between a noun or pronoun and some other word; as, he came to town; to die for one's country.

Conjunctions.

OBS. In the sentence John and James read, the two words, John and James, are united by the word and. In the sentence a brave and prudent man acts discretely; here the two adjectives are connected by and. Again, in the sentence the man works in summer and in winter; here the two phrases, in summer and in winter, are connected by and. The earth is round, and no one doubts it, is composed of two sentences, or clauses, connected by and. The words that connect other words or sentences are called Conjunctions (Lat. con, together, and jungo, join).

17. A Conjunction is a word used to connect words, phrases, or clauses.

Conjunctions are -

a. Co-ordinate, when they connect words, phrases, or clauses of the same rank; as, and, but, or, nor.

b. Subordinate, when they connect clauses of different rank; as, if, because, when.

Interjections.

18. An Interjection is a word used to express sudden emotion or feeling; as, alas! Oh!

EXERCISES.

Mention the parts of speech in the following sentences: —

1. This book was given to me. 2. These birds fly very swiftly. 3. The child likes to play. 4. The brave soldiers fell in battle. 5. We saw a beautiful landscape. 6. The gallant soldier fell, covered with wounds. 7. I saw the sun sinking behind the hills. 8. The Delta of the Mississippi was once at St. Louis. 9. They made Victoria queen. 10. Alas! how many changes have occurred. 11. Mary and Elizabeth lived and reigned in England. 12. Give me the book. 13. If he give me the book, I shall rejoice. 14. If I were in your place, I would go.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is a preposition? What is a phrase? Write a sentence containing an adverb; expand this into a phrase. Write two nouns connected by and; by but. In the sentence, the earth is round, and no one doubts it, and is a co-ordinate conjunction; but in the sentence, the sca, when it had spent its fury, became calm, when is a subordinate conjunction.

Note. Conjugate in the same manner the verbs hear, teach, rule, choose, run, see.

LESSON V.

THE SENTENCE.

- 20. A Sentence is the expression of a thought in words; as,  $iron\ melts.$
  - 21. Every sentence has two parts:—
  - 1. The Subject, or that about which something is said; as, Birds fly.

2. The Predicate, or that which is said about the subject; as,

The leaves tremble.

EXAMPLES.

Subject.	Predicate.
Birds	fly.
Boys	study.
Birds	twitter.

. 3. The Subject is always a noun, or some word used as a noun. The subject is sometimes modified by a word, or group of words, and the combination is then called the modified, or logical subject; as,

The cold wind blows.

4. The Predicate is always a verb, or contains a verb. The predicate may be modified by other words, and the combination is then called the modified, or logical predicate; as,

The leaves fall quietly.

5. The verb may be intransitive, and then the subject and verb make complete sense, and the predicate contains nothing but the verb; as,

Time flies.

6. The verb may be transitive, and then an object is required to complete the sentence, and the verb and object together make up the predicate; as,

The man strikes the table.

7. The verb may be copulative, and then a complement is required to complete the sentence. The verb and complement together make up the predicate; as,

The man is old.

8. The analysis of a sentence is the separation of it into its parts.

EXAMPLE. - Time flies.

Obs. This is a sentence, because it expresses a thought. Time is the subject, because it is that about which something is said; flies is the predicate, because it says something of the subject.

The following method of analysis will be found useful for young pupils. The subject is marked s.; the predicate is marked (1) v.I., i.e. Verb Intransitive; (2) v.T. and o., i.e. Verb Transitive and Object; (3) v.c. and c., i.e. Verb Copulative and Complement:—

s. Soldiers	v.i. fight.
s. Cæsar	v.T. conquers the	o. Germans.
s. The river	v.c. c. is deep.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences: -

1. The enemy crossed the river. 2. Columbus discovered America. 3. The flowers bloom. 4. The flowers are beautiful. 5. Gold is yellow. 6. A shepherd watches sheep. 7. Study pays. 8. The boy learns his lesson. 9. The sun shines bright. 10. The lady is tall. 11. Ripe fruit is healthful.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The subject of a sentence may be found by asking who? or what? with the verb; as, birds fly. Who or what fly? Ans. birds. The predicate may be found by asking what? about the subject; as, birds fly. What about birds? Ans. They fly,—fly is the predicate.
- 2. Copulative means the same as copula, a link, coupler. It joins, or links, the subject with the complement; as, snow is white,—snow is the subject, is is the copula, and white the complement. There are several other copulative verbs besides to be; as, become, seem, appear. The adjective standing in the predicate is called the predicate adjective, and the noun is called the predicate noun.

Define simple sentence. Of what is a sentence composed? Define subject. What must the subject be? What is meant by copula? Classify verbs according to their meaning. Define object. What is a transitive verb?

LATIN LANGUAGE.

Origin of Latin.—The Latin language was spoken at Rome and in the adjoining district, the plain of Latium, from which latter it derives its name. It is closely related to the tongues spoken by the Samnites, Sabines, and other kindred races, to which the general name of Sabellian has been given. These Sabellian tribes, on first entering Italy, settled along the mountain ridges, from which they descended to the plains like streams that flood and fertilize the valleys. The Latins, who settled near the Tiber, belonged to the oldest of these successive migrations; then came the Sabines, the Aequians, Hernicans, and Volscians, who at first pressed hard on the Latins, and hemmed them into the narrow plain between the Tiber and the Alban hills, but in course of time coalesced with them and formed one nation.

How Related. — The Latin, as well as the Greek, Sanskrit, Teutonic, Celtic, and Zend, are all sister languages, and together help to form the Indo-European family. The original language from which these sprang was spoken by the progenitors of all these peoples, who once lived together somewhere in Central Asia, and by successive migrations peopled India and Europe, whence the name Indo-European. The name Aryan (pronounced är-yan) is often applied to this parent language, and to the groups that have descended from it.

Where Spoken. — The conquests of the Romans caused the Latin language to spread, not only over Italy and Sicily, but over the greater part of France and Spain.

Origin of the Romance Languages.—With the decay of Roman power, German tribes invaded and settled the provinces where Latin had been spoken; and from the consequent intermingling of tongues the various modern languages—Italian, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Provençal, Wallachian, and Rhæto-Romanic (or Roumansch)—arose. The English language, although in its origin and its most essential words a Teutonic tongue, being the successor of the Anglo-Saxon, has borrowed at different times nearly half its words directly or indirectly from the Latin.

Golden Age of Latin.— The earliest Latin writings that have been preserved were composed about two hundred years before Christ. The language ceased to be spoken in the sixth century of our era. The best writers, as Cæsar, Cicero, Sallust, Vergil, Horace, and Livy, flourished in a period—called the Golden Age of Latin Literature—of about one hundred years immediately preceding and following the Christian era.

Periods of Roman Literature.—Roman literature may be divided into the following periods:—

- I. The Pre-Historic Period, to Livius Andronicus, B.C. 240.
- II. The Archaic Period, from Livius Andronicus to Cicero, B.C. 240-70.
- III. The GOLDEN AGE, B.C. 70 to A.D. 14.
  - 1. The Ciceronian Period.
  - 2. The Augustan Period.
- IV. The SILVER AGE, A.D. 14-117.
  - V. The Period of Positive Decline (Brass and Iron Ages), A.D. 117 to the sixth century.

FIRST STEPS IN LATIN.

LESSON I.

THE ALPHABET.

- 1 The Latin alphabet is the same as the English, except that it has no w.
- 2. Letters are divided, according to the position of the vocal organs at the time of utterance, into vowels and consonants.
- 3. The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, y. The vowels may be long, short, or common, i.e. sometimes long and sometimes short. They are marked as follows:—

1.	Long .				•		ā	ē	ī	ō	ũ
2.	Short						ă	ĕ	ĭ	ŏ	ŭ
3.	Common	Ł					ă	ĕ	Ĭ	ŏ	ŭ

- 4. Diphthongs (meaning "double sound") are the union of two vowels in one syllable. The most common diphthongs are ae, oe, au; the less common are eu, ei, ui.
- 5. The consonants p, b, t, d, c (k, q), g, are called mutes; and m, n (nasals), r, l (liquids), h, j, f, v (spirants), s (sibilant), semi-vowels.
- 6. The double consonants are x = (cs or gs) and z = (ts or ds); j = and v are consonant forms of i = and u.

CLASSIFICATION OF LETTERS.1

I. Vowels.

- 7. Vowels are produced when the vocal organs are open, so as to allow an uninterrupted flow of vocal sound; when the vocal sound is interrupted, consonants are produced, but no sharp line separates the least open vowels from the most open consonants.
- 8. The vowels may be divided according to their quality into—

1.	Open.	•		•	•	•	•	•		а
2.	$\mathbf{M}$ edial								e	;	0
3.	Close								i	v		11

- 9. The open vowel is pronounced like a in father, the mouth being fully open. Starting with this sound, and by gradually contracting the vocal organs, the medial vowels, the close vowels, and the more open consonants (like i or j=y, v=w) are produced; and at last the closure of the vocal organs becomes complete when the mutes are uttered.
- 10. e is a medial vowel between open a and close i; o is medial between open a and close u; y occurs in Greek words only.

OBSERVATION 1. The vowel i and the consonant i (often written j) were not distinguished in form by the Romans. But i, combined with a vowel in the same syllable, was a consonant, and was sounded like y; as, mājor (mä-yor). It is now usually written j.

Obs. 2. The vowel u and the consonant u = v, are often interchanged; as: mon-ui, I have admonished; ama-vi, I have loved; the ending -ui in monui becomes -vi in amavi.

II. Consonants.

- 11. Consonants are divided, according to the organs of speech by which they are chiefly uttered, into—
  - 1. Labials (or lip-letters) . . . p, b, m, f, v.
  - 2. Dentals (or teeth-letters). . . t, d, n, s.
  - 3. Linguals (or tongue-letters) . . r, l.
  - 4. Palatals (or palate-letters) . . i, or j = y.
  - 5. Gutturals (or throat-letters) . . c k q, g, n, h.

- 12. Consonants are divided, according to the degree of breathing required in their utterance, into—
  - 1. Smooth . . . . . . . . . p, t, c (k, qu).
  - 2. Middle . . . . . . . . b, d, g.
  - 3. Rough . . . . . . . . f (ph), th, ch.
- 13. The following table shows the consonants according to the two classifications mentioned:—

					Labials.	Dentals.	Gutturals.
Smooth mutes Middle mutes					p b	t d	c (k, qu)
Rough mutes	٠	•	٠	•	f (ph), v	th	ch

- 14. Consonants may also be classified, according to the manner in which they are uttered; as,—
  - 1. Surds<sup>2</sup> . . . . . . . . p, t, k, c, qu.
  - 2. Sonants . . . . . . . . b, d, g.
- 15. The following table shows the classification of consonants:—

	Mu	ıtes.	Semi-Vowels.
	Surds.	Sonants.	Nasals.	Liquids.	Spirants.	Sibilants.
	р	b	m		f, v
	t	d	n			8, Z
				r, l i, or j=y
	ckq	g	n <sup>8</sup>		h
		Surds p t	p b d	Surds.         Sonants.         Nasals.           .         p         b         m           .         t         d         n           .         .         .         .	Surds.         Sonants.         Nasals.         Liquids.           p         b         m            t         d         n	Surds.     Sonants.     Nasals.     Liquids.     Spirants.

Obs. 1. k is used only before a at the beginning of a few words. Obs. 2. q is used only before u.

EUPHONIC CHANGES.4

16. In Latin words, vowels and consonants are often changed in order to secure an easier utterance. These changes are called euphonic changes.

I. Vowel Changes.

- 17. Vowels are in general changed in the direction from the strongest to the weakest, i.e. following the vowel scale on page 24, from a to i on one side, or from a to u on the other, but sometimes across from o to e. Thus:—
  - 1. a changed to i; as, conficio from con and facio.
  - 2. i changed to o; as, virginis and virgo.
  - 3. e changed to i; as, obsideo, from ob and sedeo.
  - 4. a changed to e; as, confectum from con and factum.
  - 5. o changed to u; as, corporis 5 from corpus.

II. Consonant Changes.

- 18. A guttural (c, g, q, or h) before s unites with it, forming x; as,—
  - 1.  $\mathbf{ducs} = \mathbf{dux}$  (gen.  $\mathbf{duc}$ -is).
  - 2. regs = rex (gen. reg-is).
  - 3. coqusi = cocsi = coxi.
  - 4. vehsi = vexi.
  - 19. s between two vowels is generally changed to r; as,—
    - 1. corpŏris from corpus.
    - 2. eram and ero from stem es-.
  - 20. d and t before s are dropped or changed to s; as,—
    - 1. pēs for peds (gen. pēdis).
    - 2. possum for potsum.

This change, by which two consonants become alike, is called assimilation (from ad, to, and similis, like, a change that makes a consonant like the following consonant). Assimilation is partial when the consonant is adapted to the following letter, but does not become identical with it; as,—

- 3. scribsi = scripsi.
- 4. regsi = recsi = rexi.
- 21. Assimilation is very common in the final consonant of prepositions compounded with other words; as,— affero, compounded of ad and fero.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The pupil should omit the study of the classification of the letters for the present; the explanation will be found convenient for reference, and when the verb is taken up the attention of the pupil will be called to this subject as explaining most of the vowel and consonant changes.
- 2. The distinction between a surd and a sonant is the same as that between p and b as heard in pad and bad.
  - 3. Before a guttural, as in ink.
  - 4. See p. 183.

5. 102. 3. c.

Write the alphabet. How many letters has the Latin alphabet? How many vowels are there? Write the long vowels. Write the diphthongs. What diphthongs are seldom used?

LESSON II.

PRONUNCIATION.

22. The pronunciation of Latin is different in different countries. In the United States general usage favors one of two ways, which may be called the Roman (or Phonetic) and the English. Whatever method of pronunciation may be adopted, the pupil should be made thoroughly familiar with the leading features of the Roman method, which is a near approximation to the ancient pronunciation.

ROMAN METHOD.

23. By the Roman method every letter has always the same sound. Each simple vowel is either long or short; a short vowel has the same sound as the corresponding long vowel, but occupies only half as much time in utterance.

I. Sounds of the Vowels.

ā as in āh, like a in father. ă as in ăh, like a in idea.

ē as in prey.
ē as in met.
ī as in machine.
ī as in sit.
ō as in holy.
ō as in obey.
ū as oo in moon.
ū as in full.

y has a sound between that of i and u, like the French u, or German ii.

II. Sounds of the Diphthongs.1

ae like ay (yes), or ai in aisle.
oe like oi in coin.
au like ow in how.

eu like ew in few. ei like ei in eight. ui like we in we.

III. Sounds of the Consonants.

c is always hard, like c in come.
g is always hard, like g in gun.
j is like y in yet.
s is always sharp, like s in sea.
t is always like t in time.
v is like w in we.
qu is like qu in quart.

ch has the sound of k.
th is like th in thin.
ph is like f.
bs and bt are like ps, pt.
gu and su, when making a syllable with the following vowel, like gw, sw.

24. The double consonants are: x = cs (ks), z = dz. The letters not mentioned have the same sound as in English.

EXERCISES.

Pronounce the following words:-

1. ā'-lă,² wing; rā'-pă, turnip; fă'-mēs, hunger; rē'-mex, rower; ă-rē'-nă, sand; frē'-nă, bridle. 2. tă-bel'-lă, tablet; ĭ-tĕr, journey; mĭ-ni'ster, servant; dŏ'-lŏr, pain; hŭ'-mĕ-rŭs, shoulder; ā'-nŭ-lŭs, finger ring; suā'-dĕ-ō, I advise. 3. prae-sĭ'-dĭ-ŭm, guard; nau'-tă, sailor; poe'-nă, punishment; sae'-pĕ, often. 4. lae-tĭ'-tĭ-ă, joy; prĕ'-tĭ-ŭm, price; pă-tĭ-en'-tĭ-ă, patience; coe'-lŭm, heaven; că'-pŭt, head; ŏ'-cŭ-lŭs, eye; jū'-dex, judge; vir'-go, maid; mā'-chĭ-nă, machine; pul'-chĕr, beautiful.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Diphthongs occupy twice as much time in utterance as the short vowels.
- 2. The words will be accented and syllabicated until the subjects of accentuation and syllabication have been explained.

How is Latin generally pronounced in this country? How is long a pronounced? Why is a knowledge of the Roman method important? When does n have the sound of ng? What consonants have the same sound as in English? Are any letters silent?

LESSON III.

SYLLABICATION.

25. A Latin word is divided into as many syllables as it has vowels or diphthongs.

Obs. The English words mile, accurate, separate, abate, would, as Latin words, be syllabicated as follows: mī-le, ac-cu-rā'-te, se-pa-rā'-te, a-bā'-te.

26. A single consonant between two vowels is joined to the second vowel.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. fă'-ber. artisan.
- 3. rē-gi'-na, queen.
- 2. lau'-do, I praise.
- 4. do'-mi-nus, lord.
- 27. When the consonant is doubled, the first belongs to the first syllable, and the second to the second syllable.

EXAMPLES.

1. an'-nus, year.

3. pen'-na, feather.

- 2. bel'-lum, war.
- 4. mit'-to, I send.
- 28. Two or more consonants not doubled between two vowels belong to the following vowel, but l, m, n, r, in connection with another consonant, are joined to the preceding vowel.

EXAMPLES.

1. II'-brī, books.

- 5. am'-bo, both.
- 2. fau'-stus, lucky.
- 6. lin'-gua, tonque.
- 3. frā'-trēs, brothers.
- 7. an'-guis, snake.
- 4. hď-spěs, quest.
- 8. ma'-gnus, great.

29. The parts of compounds are treated as separate words.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. ab'-est (ab, away, est, he is), he is away.
- 2. in-u'-tĭ-lis (in, not, utĭlis, useful), useless.
- 3. ob-I'-re (ob and Ire), to go.
- 30. The last syllable of a word is called the ultimate, or ultima; the next to the last, the penultimate, or penult; and the one before the penult, the antepenultimate, or antepenult.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. an-ten'-nă, sail-yard.
- 4. in-fā'-mi-ă, infamy.
- 2. fě-ne'-stră, window.
- 5. mā'-lă, apples.
- $3.\ \ \mathbf{im\text{-}p\breve{e}\text{-}d\overline{i}\text{-}men'\text{-}t\breve{a}}, baggage.$
- 6. dī-scĭ'-pŭ-lŭs, pupil.

Obs. In the foregoing words point out the ultimate, the penult, and the antepenult.

EXERCISES.

Syllabicate and pronounce the following words: —

1. scrī'ba, clerk; in'sŭla, island; sāl, salt; rā'nă, frog; ărā'tră, plough. 2. ma'ppă, napkin; disci'pŭlŭs, scholar; ar'mă, arms; al'tĕră, another; pēs, foot; hăbē'na, thong; bel'lum, war; sănĭ'tās, health; pă'rĭēs, a wall; dö'lŏr, pain; măgi'ster, master. 3. vul'nŭs, wound; consuētū'dŏ, custom; suā'vĭs, sweet; hae'dŭs, kid; prĕ'tĭŭm, price; cĭcā'trix, scar; laetĭ'tĭă, joy; re'gnŭm,¹ kingdom; pŭ'ĕr, boy; injū'rĭā, injury; dī'xit,² he said; mā'gnus, great; a'mnis,³ river; ad'eō,⁴ I go to; lī'ttĕră, letter.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The combination qn can begin a syllable.
- 2. x is treated in syllabication as a single consonant.
- 3. The combination mn can begin a syllable.
- 4. Compounded of ad, to, and eo, I go.

What is a syllable? How is the quantity of a syllable determined? How can the number of syllables in Latin be found? Why does b belong to the first syllable in abest? What is the last syllable called? The last but one? Write three Latin words, and syllabicate each.

LESSON IV.

QUANTITY.

31. The quantity of syllables is the relative time occupied in pronouncing them. A syllable containing a long or short vowel is said to be long or short by nature, because the Romans so pronounced it. The quantity of such syllables must be learned by observation and practice.

EXAMPLES.

1. ā'ră. altar.

rā'nă, frog.

- 2. proe'lium, battle.
- 4. ărā'tră, plough.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the italicized syllables contain long vowels or diphthongs, and are therefore long. The syllables not italicized contain short vowels, and are therefore short.

- 32. The following rules of quantity decide the length of most syllables not long or short by nature. A syllable is long in quantity—
  - 1. If it contains a diphthong.
  - 2. If its vowel is followed by j, x, or z, or any two consonants except a mute followed by l or r.
  - 3. A syllable formed by contraction is long.
- 33. A syllable is short if its vowel is followed by another vowel, by a diphthong, or by the letter h.

EXAMPLES.

1. IIn gua, tongue.	5. ju stus , j ust .
2. an nus, year.	6. be/lum, war.
3. arvum, ploughed field.	7. du x, leader.
4. laudo, I praise.	8. proelium, battle.

Obs. In each of the foregoing examples the italicized vowel is followed by two consonants, or by a double consonant; the vowel may be long (as in Ex. 5) or short (as in Exs. 1, 2), but the syllable in each case is long. When a short vowel is so placed, it is said to be long by position. In Exs. 2, 5 the quantity of the syllable and of the vowel is the same, i.e. long or short. Exs. 4, 8 contain a diphthong, and are long. The i in proclium is short, according to 33.

34. A syllable may therefore be —

1. Long by nature .	•	•	•	•	as, ā ra.
2. Short by nature .					" r ă na.
3. Long by position					" an nus, gā za.1
4. Short by position				•	" via, tră ho.

35. In a syllable long by position merely, the vowel is pronounced short; as,—

- 1. lūx, like oo in moon.
- 2. nux, like u in full.
- 36. But nf, ns, and j make both the preceding vowel and syllable long.

Note. In the following lessons the quantity of every syllable not determined by the preceding rules will be marked as indicated in Lesson I.; excepting final syllables, which will be marked only when they are long, or until rules have been given by which their quantity may be determined. Thus, in  $\bar{a}$ ra, the absence of any mark over the final a indicates that it is short.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. x, though a double consonant, is treated as a single consonant in syllabication.

What is meant by a vowel being short by nature? When is a vowel short by nature? When long? What is the difference between the length or quantity of a vowel, and the length or quantity of a syllable?

In  $j\bar{u}$  stus the italicized vowel and syllable are both long; in an nus the italicized syllable is long, but the vowel is short. The vowel is said to be long by position. Remember, then, that the quantity of the vowel does not always coincide with the quantity of the syllable. Is the vowel in rex long by nature? Is the vowel in dux long by nature?

LESSON V.

ACCENT.

37. Accent is a special stress of the voice placed upon a syllable in pronouncing it.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. va-ga'-ry. 2. in-fer'. 3. dis'-mal. 4. de-riv'-ing.
- 38. The accent of Latin words is determined by the following rules:—
  - 1. In words of two syllables the accent is always on the first.
  - 2. In words of more than two syllables the penult, if long, is accented; if short, the antepenult is accented.<sup>1</sup>

EXAMPLES.

1. an'nus, year.

5. de'voro. I devour.

2. stel'la. star.

- 6. po'pulus, people.
- 3. in'sŭla,2 island.

4. matro'na, married woman.

 ingĕ'nium.² character.

EXERCISES.

Spell, syllabicate, and pronounce the following words: - rēgīna, queen; ăquĭla, eagle; insŭla, island.

 dŏminus, lord; bellum. war; annus, year; ămīcus, friend.
 jūdex, judge; puĕrī, boys; virgĭnēs, maidens; ănĭmālia, animals; flūmen, river; cīvĭtās, state.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The accent, as affected by an enclitic, will be explained later.
- 2. Notice that the penult is short.

What is accent? Write a word with the accent on the penult. How do you accent Latin words of two syllables? Of three syllables? Is the last syllable of a Latin word ever accented? Does the quantity of the syllable or of the vowel determine the place of accent? (Ans. The quantity of the syllable; the vowel may be short, but the syllable long.) When can a short penult take the accent?

LESSON VI.

THE ENGLISH METHOD.

- 39. For those who prefer to retain the English pronunciation, the following rules are given. The pupil should notice that the long or short vowel-sounds indicated in these rules are wholly independent of the real quantity of the vowel.
  - 1. In monosyllables the vowel has -
  - a. The long sound, if it ends the syllable; as, si, me, spe.
- b. The short sound, if followed by a consonant; as, ab, cum, hoc, has. Except post, monosyllables in es, and (in plural cases) os, where it has the long sound; as, res, hos, es.
  - 2. An accented penult has -
- a. The long vowel-sound before a single consonant (or a mute with l or r), or before a vowel or diphthong; as, pă'ter, lib-er-ā'lis, dě'us, sa'cra, pa'tris.
- b. The short vowel-sound before two consonants (except a mute followed by l or r) or x; as, reg'num, rex'i.
  - 3. An accented antepenult has —
- a. The long vowel-sound before a vowel; as, ĕ'adem, hĭ'e-mis. fŭ'e-rat.
- b. The short vowel-sound before a consonant; as, in'su-la, i-tin'e-ris.

EXCEPTIONS. (a) u before a single consonant (or a mute with l or r) has the long sound: jŭ've-nis, lū'ri-dus, pu'tri-dus; but before bl the short sound, as in res-pub'li-ca.

- (b) a, e, o, before a single consonant (or a mute with l or r) followed by two vowels, the first of which is e, i, or y, have the long sound; as, impe'ri-um, do'ce-o, a'cri-a.
  - 4. In all unaccented syllables the vowel-sound is —
- a. Long, if followed by a single consonant (or a mute with l or r): as do-lo'ris; but final syllables ending in a consonant are short, in a vowel, long; as, con-sul (except es, and in plural cases os at the end of the word).

b. Short before x, or any two consonants; as, bel-lo'rum, rex-is'set.

EXCEPTION. Final a is sounded as in the last syllable of America, as men'sa; and the vowel-sounds in tibi and sibi are as in the English lily.

Note. Compounds generally follow the same rules; but if the first part ends in a consonant, the vowel-sound is short: as, ob'it, red'it, ab-e'rat, præ-ter'e-a, trans'i-tur (except post and its compounds, and final syllables in as and os of plural cases: as, post-quam, hos'ce).

- 5. Diphthongs follow the same rules as the vowels which represent them in English; thus,—
- a.  $\alpha$  and  $\alpha$  have the sound of e; that is, long in cee'lum, a-mce'nus, short in hæs'i-to, a-mcen'i-tas.
- b. In poetry ei may be regarded as a diphthong, as in dein'de, having the sound of i in mind; eu, au, oi, have, when diphthongs, the same sound as in feud, author, coin, as Orpheus, Oileus, aurum; ui is a diphthong, having the long sound of i in huic, cui, hui; ui, in connection with other vowels or diphthongs, sometimes has the sound of w after g or s, as qui, lin'gua, sua'deo, quæ'ro.
- c. In such words as Gāius, Pompēius, Aquilēia, i is sounded like y; as, Gā-yus, Pom-pē-yus, etc.
- 6. Consonants have generally the same power as in English; thus,—
- a. Before e, i, y, and the diphthongs  $\alpha$ , eu,  $\alpha$ , c has the sound of s, and g of j; ch has always the sound of k, as in chemist; c, s, t often have the sound of sh before i followed by a vowel, and before eu when preceded by an accented syllable, and x of ksh, as socius. censui, ratio, caduceus, anxius.

Note. It is to be understood that in these examples the rule is only permissive, and that usage varies considerably among the best authorities. In general, when the word, or the combination of letters, is distinctly foreign to us, it may be better to retain the pure consonant sound, as in men-ti-5'tur, Min'cius, ca-du'ce-us, Ly'si-as, Mœ'si-a, ax-i-o'ma, noc'ti-um.

It is very common, in English pronunciation, to slur or suppress the more difficult consonant-sounds, particularly in such cases as cn, gn, ps, pt, tm, or x, at the beginning of a word, as in Cnidus, gnotus, pseudopteris, Tmolus, xylon. But in an accurate pronunciation of these as Latin or Greek words, the full consonantsound will be retained.

Finally, there can be no correct rule to authorize the slipshod and slovenly habit of enunciation which is frequently allowed. To cultivate a clear and vigorous utterance of unfamiliar words is one of the incidental benefits of careful instruction in a foreign tongue.

LESSON VII.

LATIN VERBS.

- 40. Verbs in Latin, as in English, assert action, being, or state of being.
- 41. Verbs are also classified, according to their meaning, into—
  - Transitive verbs, which require an object; as,—
    He beats the slave.
  - Intransitive verbs, which do not require an object; as,—
     The man runs.
  - 42. Verbs have also voice, mode, tense, number, and person.
  - 43. Verbs have two voices: -
- 1. The active voice, which shows that the subject does the action; as,—

  The father loves his son.
- 2. The passive voice, which shows that the subject suffers the action; as,—

  The son is loved by his father.
- 44. There are four modes: the indicative, subjunctive, imperative, and infinitive. The indicative, imperative, and infinitive have, in general, the same use in Latin as in English. The use of the subjunctive can be learned best in connection with the syntax of the verb.

45 .	Verbs	have	six	tenses $1$ :	three	for	incomplete	action and the							-

I. Tenses for Incomplete Action.

- 1. Present . . . . . . . I write, I am writing.
- 2. IMPERFECT . . . . . . I was writing, I wrote.
- 3. FUTURE . . . . . . I shall write, I will write.

II. Tenses for Completed Action.

- 1. Perfect . . . . . . . I have written, I wrote.
- 2. PLUPERFECT . . . . . I had written.
- 3. Future Perfect . . . . I shall have written.

Obs. The indicative mood has all six tenses; the subjunctive has the present, imperfect, perfect, and pluperfect; the imperative has the present and future only; and the infinitive has the present, perfect, future, and future perfect.

46. Tenses are also distinguished as. —

I. Principal, or Primary Tenses.

- 1. Present. . . . . . . . . I write.
- 2. Perfect Definite . . . . . I have written.
- 3. Future . . . . . . . . . I shall write.

II. Historical, or Secondary Tenses.

- 1. Imperfect . . . . . . . . . I was writing.
- 2. Aorist, or Historical Perfect . I wrote.
- 3. PLUPERFECT . . . . . . . I had written.
- 47. The present, future, pluperfect, and future perfect<sup>2</sup> tenses have, in general, the same use in Latin as in English.
- 48. The imperfect tense expresses an action as going on in past time, i.e. a continued, repeated, or customary past action; as,—

I was writing. I used to write.

49. The perfect tense has two uses, distinguished as perfect definite and agrist, or historical perfect, corresponding to the perfect and past tenses in English; as,—

I have written (definite).

I wrote (aorist, or historical perfect).

- 50. Verbs, like nouns, have two numbers, singular and plural; and three persons, first, second, and third.
- 51. The voice, mode, tense, number, and person of a Latin verb is indicated by the endings; as,— ămat, he loves. ămābat, he was loving.

- 52. The various verbal forms that have voice, mood, tense, number, and person, make up the finite<sup>3</sup> verb. Besides these, there are three other forms derived from verbs, and partaking of their signification. These are:—
- 1. The participle, which gives the meaning of the verb in the form of an adjective. A Latin verb has four participles: two in the active, the present and the future; and two in the passive, the perfect and the gerundive; as,—

Active.

Passive.

Perfect . . . . . amātus, loved.

2. The gerund, which gives the meaning of the verb in the form of a verbal noun of the second declension. It corresponds to the English verbal noun in -ing; as,— # ămandī, of loving.

3. The supine, which gives the meaning of the verb in the form of a verbal noun of the fourth declension. It has two forms, one in -um, the other in -u; as, — ămātum, to love. ămātū, to be loved.

53. The principal parts of a verb are, the present indicative, the present infinitive, the perfect indicative, and the perfect participle. These are called the principal parts, because all the other parts of the verb are formed from them.

Obs. The supine in -um, called by many grammarians one of the principal parts of the verb, belongs, in fact, to only about two hundred Latin verbs; then, again, those verbs that are invariably intransitive have the perfect participle in the neuter gender only. This part, then, called in the dictionaries the supine in -um, must, in most cases, be the neuter of the perfect participle; and I have ventured, in the enumeration of the principal parts of the verb, to give it this name, and also to substitute, in place of supine stem, the more correct term participial stem.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The six tenses are found only in the indicative mood.
- 2. The imperfect, aorist, and pluperfect tenses are sometimes called the preterite tenses.
  - 3. A verb in any mood except the infinitive is called a finite verb.

How many tenses in Latin? Define the word tense. Define voice as used in grammar. (Ans. Voice is a modification which shows whether the subject acts or is acted upon.) Define mode. Mention the primary tenses. How are voice, mode, tense, etc., expressed in English? (Ans. By the use of auxiliaries, or helping words.) How in Latin?

LESSON VIII.

CONJUGATION OF THE LATIN VERB.

Obs. In English, the mode, tense, number, and person of verbs are indicated chiefly by certain words prefixed to the verb, but in some cases by the endings of the verbs; as, Present, he writes; Future, he will write; Imperfect, he was writing. In Latin, these forms are always denoted by the endings of the verb; as, amat, he loves; amābit, he will love; amābat, he was loving. Each of these Latin words shows its person by its ending, which is, therefore, called the personal ending; hence, with Latin verbs, the personal pronouns may be, and generally are, omitted. The changing of these endings to denote some modification of meaning, or to show some relation to other words, is called Conjugation.

54. In order to determine how to conjugate a Latin verb, it is necessary to know the Present Infinitive.

EXAMPLES.

PRESENT. INFINITIVE.

1. ămo, I love; ămāre, to love.

2. mŏneo, I advise; mŏnēre, to advise.

3. rĕgo, I rule; rĕgĕre, to rule.

4. audio, I hear; audīre, to hear.

Obs. The pupil will notice that the infinitive in Latin is formed not as in English, by placing the preposition to before the simple form of the verb, but by adding -re. Each of these verbs has, also, a characteristic vowel before the infinitive ending, which in amo is -\(\bar{a}\)-, in moneo is -\(\bar{e}\)-, in rego is -\(\bar{e}\)-, and in audio is -\(\bar{e}\)-.

55. Accordingly, Latin verbs are divided into four classes, called Conjugations, distinguished from one another by the characteristic vowel before the ending -re of the present infinitive active, as follows:—

Conjugation.	Characteristic Vowels.	Infinitive Endings.
I.	ā	ā-re
II.	ē	ē-re
III.	ě	ě-re
IV.	ī	ī-re

- 1. The vowel before -re is called the stem-characteristic; thus, the stem of verbs of the first conjugation ends in  $\bar{a}$ , the second in  $\bar{e}$ , the third in  $\check{e}$ , the fourth in  $\bar{\imath}$ .
- 2. Besides the present stem, there is often a simpler form that forms the basis of the entire conjugation, called the verb-stem. In the first, second, and fourth conjugations the verb-stem is generally the same as the present stem; in the third conjugation reg- is the verb-stem, and rĕgĕ- the present stem; as,

	Conj. I.	Conj. II.	Conj. III.	Conj. IV.
Verb-stem Infinitive	ămā-	mŏnē-	rěg-, minu-	audī-
	ămā-re,	mŏnē-re,	rěg-ěre, to rule.	audī-re,
	to love.	to advise.	minu-ěre, to lessen.	to hear.

3. The verb-stems of the first, second, and fourth conjugations end in the vowels  $\bar{a}$ ,  $\bar{e}$ ,  $\bar{i}$ ; the verb-stem of the third conjugation ends in a consonant or in u; hence the distinction of vowel and consonant conjugations.

Tell to which conjugation each of the following verbs belongs:—

PRESENT INDICATIVE.	Infinitive.
1. laudo, I praise; 1	laudāre, to praise.
2. dēleo, I destroy;	dēlēre, to destroy.
3. těgo, I cover;	těgěre, to cover.
4. mūnio, I fortify;	munire, to fortify.
5. audio, I hear;	audire, to hear.
6. hăbeo, I have;	hăbēre, to have.
7. haurio, I drain;	haurīre, to drain.
8. numero, I count;	n ŭmĕrāre, to count.
9. fŭgio, I flee;	fŭgĕre, to flee.
10. erro, I wander;	errare, to wander.
11. moveo, I move;	movēre, to move.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Notice that the pronoun I is supplied in translating.

How many conjugations are there? How is each distinguished? What is meant by the conjugation of a verb? How does the Latin verb express tense? person? number?

LESSON IX.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE.

56. All verbs whose characteristic vowel before the ending -re in the Present Infinitive is  $-\bar{a}$ - belong to the first conjugation.

Present Tense.

57. The Present Tense is formed by adding personal endings to the Present Stem.<sup>1</sup>

Person.	For	rmatic	on.	Example.	English.
Sing. 1	Present	Stem	+ 02	ămo	I love.
2	"	"	+8	ămās	Thou lovest.
3	"	"	+ t	ămăt	He loves.
Plur, 1	"	"	+ mus	ămāmus	We love.
2	"	"	+ tis	ămātis	You love.
3	"	"	+ nt	ămānt	They love.

- Obs. 1. Note that the vowel in the ending of the third person singular is shortened; short vowels in final syllables are generally not marked.
- Obs. 2. In English we indicate the person and number of the verb chiefly by means of pronouns standing before the verb; as,

Sing. 1. I love.

Plur. 1. We love.

2. Thou lovest.

2. You love.

3. He loves.
3. They love.

The verb changes its ending in but two forms; with these exceptions it would be impossible to tell the person or number of this verb unless a pronoun was used with it. In Latin the endings of the verbs were originally pronouns, and they are changed, as the pronouns in English are, to indicate the person and number of the verb; as,

love-we	love-he	love-thou
ămā-mus	ămă-t	ămā-s

VOCABULARY.

PRESENT.	Pres. Stem.	Pres. Infinitive.
laudo, praise.8	laudā.4	laudāre.
porto, carry.	portā.	portāre.
pūgno, fight.	pūgnā.	pūgnāre.
vŏco, call.	vŏcā.	vŏcāre.
dōno, give.	dönā.	dönāre.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

- 1. laudat.<sup>5</sup> 3. pūgnamus.<sup>6</sup>
- 5. donātis.
- 7. dōnās.

- 2. vŏcant.
- 4. portas.
- 6. laudāmus.
- 8. pägnant.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. The endings were originally personal pronouns: laudas means not love, but thou lovest. The pronoun, when used as the subject of the verb, need not, therefore, be expressed. Note, further, that the endings show the number and person of the subject, but not the gender.

Obs. This is true, in general, only when the verb is of the first or second person. With the third person, a definite subject should be expressed, unless implied in what precedes or follows.

- 2. Note that the Present Indicative = present stem + personal endings, and that  $\breve{\mathbf{a}}\mathbf{m}\ddot{\mathbf{a}} + \mathbf{o} = \breve{\mathbf{a}}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{o}$ ; also, that it has lost the m (which appears in  $\mathbf{s}\mathbf{u}\mathbf{m}$ , inquam). The o stands for m and the preceding vowel; as,  $\breve{\mathbf{a}}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{o} = \breve{\mathbf{a}}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{a}$ -o-m.
  - 3. Read, I praise, etc.
- The stem is laudā, and by adding the personal ending we get lauda-o, which is contracted into laudo.
  - 5. Remember that the present tense in English has three forms: -
    - 1. laudo, I praise, I am praising, I do praise.
    - 2. laudas, thou praisest, thou art praising, thou dost praise.
    - 3. laudăt, he praises, he is praising, he does praise.
- 6. Observe that no separate Latin word is required for the pronouns I, thou, he, we, they, etc.; thus, pügnāmus, we fight, contains the pronoun we, and is a complete sentence in one word, i.e. contains a subject and predicate; as, pūgnā-mus fight-we pügnä-, signifying fight, is the stem, and -mus, signifying we, the personal ending.

How is the first conjugation distinguished? What is meant by the characteristic vowel? How is the stem found? What are the personal endings? What do these endings show? Does the present tense denote completed or incomplete action? Ans. The present stem, and the tenses formed from it,—present, imperfect, and future,—denote incomplete action.

LESSON X.

FIRST CONJUGATION (continued).

Imperfect and Future Tenses.

58. The Imperfect and Future Tenses are formed, like the Present, by adding the endings to the Present Stem.

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

			Imper	FECT.
Person.	Formation.			Example.	English.

- 1. Analysis of the Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative Active:—
- 1. Present ind. = Pres. stem + Personal endings.
- 2. Imperf. ind. = Pres. stem + Tense-sign (-ba-) + Personal endings.
- 3. Future ind. = Pres. stem + Tense-sign (-bi-) + Personal endings.

OBS. The future, like the present, has lost the m in the first person singular:  $\ddot{a}m\ddot{a}bo = am\ddot{a}bom$  as the present amo = amom (cf. sum).

VOCABULARY.

PRESENT.	Present Stem
1. rŏgo, ask .	rogā
2. ăro, plough.	ărā
3. păro, prepare.	părā
4. narro, narrate.	narrā

EXERCISES.

Analyze; translate into English: --

1. rŏgat.	6. pügnābātis
2. narrant.	7. donābimus
3. rŏgābis.¹	8. părābit.
4. portābant. <sup>2</sup>	9. ărabunt .
5. laudābāmus.	10. včcabis.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. In translating the second person singular, as well as the second person plural, you is commonly used; as, amas, you love, and amatis, you love; but amas is used of one person, and amatis of more than one.
- 2. Observe that, in the conjugation of the imperfect and future, the stem and personal endings are the same as in the present; that between these there is a tense-sign, -ba- in the imperfect and -bi- in the future. The elements of the verb then, in the imperfect and future tenses, are: 1st. The Stem; 2d. The Tense-sign; 3d. The Personal Endings; as,

laudā-bā-mus

praising-were-we

laudā- being the stem; -ba-, were, the tense-sign; and -mus, we, the personal ending.

What is tense? How many divisions of time? What is mode? How many modes? How is the present tense formed? How the future? Write the inflection in the imperfect; in the future.

LESSON XI.

LATIN NOUNS.

INFLECTION.

59. The meaning of Latin nouns is altered by Inflection; that is, by changing the form of the word, generally the endings, to denote some modification of its meaning, or to show its relation to other words. The Inflection of nouns, of pronouns, and of adjectives, is called Declension. The Inflection of verbs is called Conjugation.

Stem and Suffix.

60. The body of the word, to which the suffix is attached, is called the stem; as, mīlītis: mīlīt- is the stem, and -is the termination.

When the stem ends in a vowel and the suffix begins with a vowel, contraction takes place, and the final vowel of the stem sometimes disappears; as, mensae: the stem is mensāe, and the suffix -ī-s, which unite to form mensae, the s being dropped.

1. Each case-form, therefore, contains two distinct parts: the stem, which gives the general meaning of the word; and the case-suffix, which shows the relation of that meaning to some other word; as, in militis, of a soldier: the general idea, soldier, is expressed by the stem milit-; the relation of, by the suffix -is.

Obs. It may be found convenient to divide inflected words not only into stem and termination, but into base and termination, the base being the part of the word that remains unchanged by inflection; as, servus (which stands for servos), a slave, gen. servī, of a slave. servō- is the stem, -ī is the termination, or case-suffix; the o is dropped before i to form servi, of a slave; but serv-, to which the case-endings are added, remains unchanged by inflection, and may be called the base.

Modifications of Nouns.

61. In Latin, as in English, nouns have Gender, Number, Person, and Case.

GENDER.

- 62. The gender of English nouns is determined by their meaning.<sup>2</sup> Gender of Latin nouns is determined either by their meaning or by their endings. When determined by their meaning, it is called Natural Gender; when by their endings, Grammatical Gender.
  - 63. Rules for gender according to meaning: —
  - Names of male beings are masculine; as, Romulus, Romulus; agrīcola, farmer; equus, horse.
  - Names of females are feminine; as,
     Cornēlia, Cornelia; mulier, woman; puella, girl.
- 3. Some nouns without natural gender have their gender determined by their meaning; as:
  - (1) Rivers, winds, months, and mountains are masculine; as, Tiběris, the Tiber; Aquilo, north wind; Aprilis, April.
- (2) Cities, countries, towns, islands, trees, poems, and gems are feminine; as,

Aegyptus, Egypt; Corinthus, Corinth.

(3) Indeclinable nouns are neuter; as, fas, divine right; nihil, nothing.

NUMBER AND PERSON.

64. Latin nouns have two numbers, singular and plural; and three persons, first, second, and third.

CASES.

65. In Latin<sup>3</sup> the same noun may have six different forms to express its relation to other words; these forms are called the six cases of the noun. The names of the cases are:—

1. The Nominative, the case of the subject of the sentence. It answers the question who? or what?; as,

The boy reads. Who reads?—The boy.
The fire burns. What burns?—The fire.

Boy and fire are, therefore, in the nominative case.

2. The Genitive, usually translated into English by the possessive case, or by the preposition of. It answers the question whose? of whom? of what?; as,

The man's coat. Whose coat?—The man's.
The heat of the fire. Of what?—Of the fire.

Man's and of the fire are genitives.

3. The Dative, usually translated by the prepositions to or for. It answers the question to or for whom or what?; as,

The teacher gives a book to the boy. To whom?—To the boy.

To the boy is, therefore, in the dative.

4. The Accusative, the object of a transitive verb, and of many Latin prepositions. It names the object, whom? or what?; as,

The man strikes the boy. Strikes whom?—The boy. The child fears the fire. Fears what?—The fire.

Boy and fire are accusative.

5. The Vocative, or the case used in addressing a person or thing; as,

O boy! O fire!

The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars.

Boy, fire, and Brutus are in the vocative case.

6. The Ablative, usually translated by from, with, by, in, or at; as,

The boy strikes the ball with the bat. With what? — With the bat.

Then with the bat is the ablative.

Obs. 1. The Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Ablative are called the oblique cases.

Obs. 2. A seventh case, the Locative, denoting the place where, is found in a few words.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE CASES AND THEIR ENGLISH EQUIVALENTS.

Latin Case.	Relation to Other Words.	Corresponding Case in English.	Answers what Question.
Nominative.	Subject.	Nominative.	who? or what?
Genitive.	Possessive, or of.	Possession, or of with objective.	whose? of whom? of what?
Dative.	Indirect Object.	Objective, with to or for.	To or for — whom? or what?
Accusative.	Direct Object.	Objective.	whom? or what?
Vocative.	Case of Address.	Independent.	Used in addressing person or thing.
Ablative.	Adverbial.	Objective, with with, in, from, or by.	With, in, from, by, at — · whom? or what?

DECLENSION.

66. Latin nouns have five Declensions, which are distinguished by the final letters of the stem, or by the terminations of the genitive singular; as,

Declension.	Genitive Ending.	Characteristic.
I.	ae	$\bar{\mathbf{a}} = a$ -stems.4
II.	ī	$\check{o} = o$ -stems.
III.	ĭs {	i or a consonant  = consonant or i-stems.
IV.	ūs (uis)	$\bar{\mathbf{u}} = u$ -stems.
v.	ēi	$\bar{\mathbf{e}} = \mathbf{e}$ -stems.

Obs. The method of distinguishing the declension by the ending of the genitive singular had better be adopted at first, because it is used in dictionaries and vocabularies to designate the declension, and because the use of the stem is confusing to young pupils. The plan of cutting off -rum or -um from the genitive plural in order to find the stem, and so determine the declension, presupposes that the pupil is already able to decline the word.

- 1. General Rules of Declension: -
- (1) Neuter nouns of all declensions have the nominative, accusative, and vocative singular alike; the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural are also alike, and always end in ᾱ.
- (2) The nominative, accusative, and vocative plural are alike in all nouns of the third, fourth, and fifth declensions.
- (3) The nominative and vocative are alike, except in the singular of nouns in -us of the second declension.
- (4) The dative and ablative plural are always alike.
- (5) The genitive plural always ends in -um.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences. State the Latin case to be used to represent each noun:—

1. The sailor has a cottage. 2. The cottage of the sailor has a table. 3. Galba sees the gates of Rome. 4. Titus wounded the man with an arrow. 5. Titus gave the book to his friend. 6. The sailors of Galba wound the sailors of Titus with arrows. 7. The soldiers of Cæsar defend the towers with stones. 8. Cæsar sees the walls of Rome. 9. The leaders of the people give peace to the city.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The base is the same as the stem with the final vowel removed; the endings, therefore, contain the final vowel of the stem and the suffixes, both being obscured by contraction. If the stem ends in a consonant, then the stem and base are the same, and the endings are the simple case-endings; as, reg-is. Reg- is both the stem and the base to which the case-endings may be attached unchanged.
- 2. Note that gender in English denotes sex, masculine nouns denoting males, feminine nouns females, and neuter nouns neither male nor female. In Latin, this natural distinction of gender is applied only to males and females; the gender of all other nouns depends on artificial distinctions, and is determined by special rules.

- 3. English nouns have few changes of forms. The possessive case is the only one that always has a special form.
- 4. The final vowel of the stem is called the stem-letter, or stem-characteristic.

Define inflection. How many cases have nouns? How is the gender of Latin nouns determined? What is meant by grammatical gender? Name the cases. What is inflection? How does inflection differ from declension? What parts of speech are declined? What are the properties of Latin nouns? Define the word "properties." How many declensions have Latin nouns? Explain the meaning of stem; of base.

LESSON XII.

NOUNS. - FIRST DECLENSION.

67. Nouns of the First Declension end in  $-\check{a}$  and  $-\check{e}$ , feminine:  $-\check{a}s$  and  $-\check{e}s$ . masculine.

Nouns in -a 2 are thus declined: -

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.	Case Endings.
		Flura.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	mensa,3 a table.4	mensae, tables.	*-a	-ae
GEN.	mensae, of a table.	mensārum, of tables.	- a. e	-ārum
DAT.	mensae, to, for a table.	mensīs, to, for tables.	-ae	-īs
Acc.	mensam, a table.	mensās, tables.	-am	- ā .8
Voc.	mensa, O table.	mensae, O tables.	-a	-ae
ABL. {	mensā, with, from, or by a table.	mensis, with, from, or by tables.	} -ā.	-īs

PARADIGM.

VOCABULARY.5

ăqua, -ae, <sup>6</sup> F., <sup>7</sup> water. puella, -ae, F., girl. insŭla, -ae, F., island. porta, -ae, F., gate. nauta, -ae, M., sailor. ăgricola, -ae, M., farmer. victoria, -ae, F., victory. umbra, -ae, F., shade.

EXERCISES.

Decline the following words like mensa. Give the meaning, the case, the stem, the gender, the number, and the case-endings of each:—

1. insŭlae.

4. puellīs.

7. puella.

2. agricolae.

5. puellae.

8. nautae.

3. nautārum.

6. ăgricŏlārum.

9. aquae.

68. The declension of the following Greek nouns is inserted for convenience of reference; they should be omitted for the present:—

Cı	ases.	cŏmētēs, m., comet.	ěpĭtŏme, F., epitome.	Aenēās, u., Æneas.
Singular.	Nom. GEN. DAT. Acc. Voc. ABL.	cŏmētēs cŏmētae cŏmētae cŏmētēn cŏmētā cŏmētā	nētae ěpitómēs A nētae ěpitómae A nētēn ěpitómēn A nētă ěpitómē A
Plural.	Nom. GEN. DAT. ACC. VOC. ABL.	cŏmētae cŏmētārum cŏmētīs cŏmētās cŏmētae cŏmētīs	ěpitómae ěpitómārum ěpitómīs ěpitómās ěpitómae ěpitómīs

SYN. Porta is the gate of a city; janua, the door (street-door) of a house; valvae, folding-doors in a temple and fine buildings.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Nouns in -ē, -ās, and -ēs are Greek words, mostly proper names.
- 2. All nouns in -ā are feminine unless they denote males; as, nauta, a sailor, is masculine by signification. (See 63.)
- 3. The base of mensa is mens., and to this the case-endings are added to form the cases. The stem of mensa is mensā; the final  $-\bar{a}$  of the stem disappears in the dative and ablative plural.

- 4. As there is no article in Latin, mensa may mean table, a table, or the table, according to the sense required.
- 5. The pupil should learn the vocabularies so well that he can give at once the English when the Latin is pronounced, or the Latin when the English is pronounced.
  - 6. The ending -ae is the case-ending of the genitive. (See 61.)
- 7. In the vocabularies, M. indicates the masculine gender; F., the feminine; and N., the neuter.
- 8. In translating the exercises, give all possible meanings of each form. For example, insulae may be genitive or dative singular, or nominative or vocative plural: of an island, to or for an island, ye islands, or O islands.

How do you distinguish nouns of the first declension? How the gender? How do you find the stem? (This can be found by taking away the case-ending of the genitive plural, -rum.) How do you accent agricolae? What is the quantity of the penult of puella? How many numbers have Latin nouns? How many cases? Name them. How many genders?

LESSON XIII.

SUBJECT AND PREDICATE.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. agricola vocat, the farmer calls.
- 2. agricolae vocant, the farmers call.
- 3. puellae laudant, the girls praise.

Obs. In the sentence the farmer calls, farmer is the subject, and is in the nominative case; calls is the predicate. Study the other examples, and note (1) if the subject is singular, the verb is singular; (2) if the subject is plural, the verb must also be plural; and (3) that the subject and the predicate agree in person as well as in number. Hence the following rules:—

SUBJECT-NOMINATIVE.

69. Rule I.—The subject of a finite verb is put in the nominative case.

AGREEMENT OF THE VERB.

70. Rule II.—A finite verb agrees with its subject-nominative in number and person.

71. Model for parsing nouns: -

agrīcola vocat, the farmer calls: agrīcola is a masculine noun, masculine by signification (64)¹; first declension, because it has -ae in the genitive singular; stem, agrīcolā-; declined, sing. agrīcola, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolae, agrīcolas, agrīcolas, agrīcolas. It is nominative singular, and is the subject of vocat, according to Rule I.: The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative case.

72. Model for parsing verbs: —

agricola vocat, the farmer calls: vocat is a transitive verb of the first conjugation, indicative mode, present tense, third person singular, to agree with the subject agricola, according to Rule II.: A finite verb agrees with the subject-nominative in number and person.

VOCABULARY.

rēgīna, -ae, F., queen.

scrība, -ae, M., clerk.

occupo, -āre, taķe possession of, seize.

dōno, -āre, give.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English:—

- rēgīna laudat.<sup>8</sup>
- 4. Laudās.4
- 2. scribae portant.
- 5. Laudāmus.
- 3. puellae laudant.
- 6. Rēgīnae donant.

Translate into Latin: -

- 1. We fight, they fight, he fights. 2. The sailor calls.
- 3. The queen praises. 4. The queens praise. 5. We praise.
- 6. They establish.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. These figures refer to sections in this book.
- 2. Give the infinitive of each verb.
- 3. When the subject of the verb is expressed, the pronoun, although contained in the verb, is not needed in English; thus, regina laudat, the queen praises, not the queen she praises.
  - 4. The subject of laudas is implied in the ending of the verb.
  - 5. Remember that the article is not to be translated.
- 6. As to the order of words in the Latin sentences, the subject usually stands first, but the predicate may be placed before the subject for the sake of emphasis.

What is a transitive verb? Define subject; predicate. What part of speech must the subject always be? Why is the u in puella short?

LESSON XIV.

SUBJECT AND OBJECT.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. agrīcola nautās vocat, the farmer calls the sailors.
- 2. rēgīna puellās laudat, the queen praises the girls.
- 3. ămīcītiam confirmat, he establishes friendship.

Obs. In the sentence the farmer calls the sailors, farmer is the subject, calls the predicate, and sailors, which completes the meaning of the verb by telling whom or what the farmer calls, is the direct object. Notice that this object in English is in the objective case, and follows the verb calls; the direct object in Latin is in the accusative case, and precedes the verb. Hence the following rule:—

DIRECT OBJECT.

- 73. RULE III. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative.
- a. Many verbs that are transitive in Latin are translated into English by a verb and preposition; as, pecuniam postulat, he asks for (demands) money.

74. Model for parsing the object: -

agricola nautas vocat, the farmer calls the sailors: nautas is a masculine noun of the first declension, masculine by signification, and first declension because it has -ae in the genitive singular; stem, nautā-; declined, sing. nauta, nautae, nautae, nautam, nauta, nautā, plural nautae, nautārum, nautās, nautās, nautae, nautīs. It is in the accusative plural, the object of vocat, according to Rule III.: The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative.

VOCABULARY.

filia,<sup>1</sup> -ae, F., daughter. pĕcūnia, -ae, F., money. ămīcītia, -ae, F., friendship. ĕpistūla, -ae, F., letter. păro,<sup>2</sup> prepare. ăro, plough. do,<sup>3</sup> give. exspecto, expect.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English:—

Agrīcŏlae⁴ nautam vŏcant.
 Vŏcāmus.

Translate into Latin: --

- 1. The queen calls. 2. The queen calls her daughter.
- 3. They establish friendship.
  4. They praise, they call, they prepare.
  5. The queen praises.
  6. We praise.
  7. The girls are expecting 1 letters.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. A few words of the first declension have the dative and ablative plural in -ābus; as, fīlia, a daughter; dea, a goddess.
  - 2. Write the infinitive.
  - 3. The infinitive of do is dare; short a before -re.
  - 4. See 63.
- 5. Render her daughter. The pronouns his, her, their, are seldom expressed in Latin, when no confusion could arise from their omission. In translating, they are to be supplied from the context.

- 6. Not to be translated.
- 7. Remember that the indicative has three forms in English.

Which cases of the first declension are alike in the singular? Which in the plural? Write the ablative singular of filia. How many ways can you translate vocant? Name the stem of vocant. Is vocant a complete sentence? why? What is a sentence? What is the case of the direct object in Latin? What tenses express incomplete action? Where does the direct object usually stand?

LESSON XV.

NOUNS. — SECOND DECLENSION.

- 75. Nouns of the Second Declension end in -er, -ir, -us, and -os, masculine; -um and -on, neuter.
  - a. Those in -os or -on are Greek words, chiefly proper nouns.
  - 1. Nouns in -us are declined as follows: -

PARADIGM.

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	dŏmĭnus, a lord.	dŏmĭnī, lords.
GEN.	dŏmĭnī, of a lord.	dŏmĭnōrum, of lords.
DAT.	domino, to or for a lord.	dominis, to or for lords.
Acc.	dŏmĭnum, a lord.	dŏminōs, lords.
Voc.	dŏmĭne, O lord.	dŏminī, O lords.
ABL. {	domino, with, from, or by a lord.	dŏmĭnīs, with, from, or by lords.

- 2. The stem of nouns of the second declension ends in -o-; thus the stem of dominus is domino-.
- 3. The characteristic -o- becomes -u- in the nominative of nouns in -us or -um; it disappears in the endings -i and -is (for -o-i and -o-is). The nominative singular of dominus was originally dominos.

4. The case-endings are as follows: —

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Non.	-us	-ī
GEN.	-ī	-ōrum
DAT.	-ō	-เีธ
Acc.	-um	-ōs
` Voc.	-е	-ī
ABL.	-ō	-īs

- 5. The genitive of nouns in -ius and -ium ends in a single -ī: as, filius, gen. filī; Hŏrātius, gen. Hŏrātī. The vocative of proper names in -ius contract -ie into -ī without change of accent: as, Hŏrātī, O Horatius; also, filius has filī in the vocative.
- 6. Nearly all nouns in -us are masculine; but the names of trees, plants, etc., are feminine by the general rule (63. 3 (2)).

VOCABULARY.

servus, -I, M., slave.

ămīcus, -I, M., friend.

ŏoŭlus, -I, M., eye.

Gallus, -I, M., a Gaul.

filius, -I, M., son.

hortus, -I, M., garden.

postŭlo, demand.

Rōmānus, -I, M., a Roman.

pūgno, fight.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English:—

8. O. V. T.

expugno, storm, capture.

- 1. Rēgīna ămīcum ămat.
- 2. Amīcī servos vocābunt.
- 3. Servõs laudābimus.
- 4. Amīcos ămābātis.
- 5. Amīcī ămīcōs ămant.
- 6. Servī pūgnant.

LESSON XVI.

NOUNS. — SECOND DECLENSION.

76. Nouns in -er, -ir, are declined as follows:—

PARADIGM.

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	măgister, a master.	măgistrī, masters.
GEN.	măgistrī, of a master.	măgistrorum, of masters.
DAT.	măgistro, to or for a master.	magistris, to or for musters.
Acc.	măgistrum, a master.	măgistros, masters.
Voc.	mägister, O master.	măgistri, O masters.
ABL. {	mägiströ, with, from, or by a master.	mägistrīs, with, from, or by masters.
Nom.	puer, a boy.	puěrī, boys.
GEN.	puěrī, of a boy.	puĕrōrum, of boys.
Dat.	puěrō, to or for a boy.	pueris, to or for boys.
Acc.	puĕrum, boy.	puĕrōs, boys.
Voc.	puer, O boy.	puěrī, O boys.
ABL. {	puěrō, with, from, or by a boy.	puěris, with, from, or by boys.

1. deus, a god (stem deo-), is declined as follows:

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	deus	deī, diī, dī
GEN.	deī	deōrum
DAT.	deō	deīs, diīs, dīs
Acc.	deum	deōs
Voc.	deus	deī, diī, dī
Авь.	deō	deīs, diīs, dīs

2. The endings of the nominative and vocative singular are wanting in nouns in -er; thus, puer is for puerus; the e in puer belongs to the stem, and is not dropped. Most other nouns of the second declension whose stem ends in -ro-, preceded by another consonant, drop us and insert e in the nominative; as, ager, stem agro. The -us of the nominative and vocative has been dropped, and e inserted. The following nouns retain e in all the cases: viz., puer, boy; socer, father-in-law; gener, son-in-law; vesper, evening; liberi (used only in plural), children; and a few others.

The Genitive and the Appositive.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Labienus legătus, Labienus, the lieutenant.
- 2. Filia 1 reginae, the daughter of the queen, or the queen's daughter.
- 3. Filia ămici, the daughter of the friend, or the friend's daughter.

Obs. In the first example, observe that the noun lieutenant denotes the same person or thing as Labienus; it modifies Labienus by telling what Labienus is meant. It has the same case and the same number, and is said to be in apposition (a modifier in near position).

In the second example, of the queen, or queen's, limits daughter by telling what or whose daughter is spoken of, and is, therefore, a modifier of it. The three examples represent two kinds of noun modifiers,—the possessive and the explanatory; or, in Latin, the genitive and the explanatory. In Latin, note that the limiting word in the first example is in the same case as the word it limits; that it denotes the same person or thing as the noun, or name, preceding. In the second and third examples note: (1) that the limiting word is in the genitive; (2) that it denotes a different person or thing from that denoted by the limited noun; and (3) that the relation of this genitive to the limited noun is expressed in English either by of or by the possessive. Notice, finally, that the genitive stands after the noun which it limits. It may, however, be placed before the noun for the sake of emphasis; as, rēgīnae fīlia, the queen's daughter. Hence the following rules:—

APPOSITIVE.

- 77. RULE IV. A noun used to describe another noun or pronoun, and denoting the same person or thing, is put in the same case.
- 1. This construction is called apposition, and the limiting noun an appositive.

GENITIVE WITH NOUNS.

78. Rule V.—A noun limiting the meaning of another noun, and denoting a different person or thing, is put in the genitive.

VOCABULARY.

äger, ägrī, M., field.
gĕner, gĕnĕrī, M., son-in-law.
vir, virī, M., man.
liber, librī, M., book.
narro, narrate, tell.
vicus, -ī, M., village.

campus, -ī, field.
făber, fabrī, M., smith.
ēnuntio, report.
pŏpŭlus, -ī, M., people.
vasto, lay waste.
schŏla, -ae, F., school.

SYN. Ager is a field in general; arvum, the ploughed field; and campus, the enclosed field, or plain.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English:—

Servī agrum ărābunt.
 Puĕrī vŏcant.
 Vĭrī laudant.
 Fīliam¹ rēgīnae laudant.
 Gĕner ărat.
 Măgistrī vŏcant.
 Fīlium² vŏcat.

Translate into Latin: --

We are ploughing<sup>3</sup> the field.<sup>4</sup>
 They call the boys.
 They praise the man's sons.
 They were praising the men.
 The queen's daughter is calling.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. What is the dative plural?
- 2. Form the genitive and vocative.
- 3. How many forms has the indicative present?
- 4. Notice the order of the Latin words.

What endings do nouns in -r drop? Is the vowel u in puer long or short? Which syllable of Hörātius is accented? Of Hörātī?

LESSON XVII.

NOUNS. - SECOND DECLENSION.

79. Nouns in -um are declined as follows:—

PARADIGM.

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	bellum, war.	bellă, wars.
GEN.	belli, of war.	bellorum, of wars.
Dat.	bello, to or for war.	bellis, to or for wars.
Acc.	bellum, war.	bellă, wars.
Voc.	bellum, O war.	bellă, O wars.
ABL.	bello, with, from, or by war.	bellis, with, from, or by wars.

1. Like bellum, decline: -

- 1. templum, temple.
- 3. exemplum, example.
- 2. donum, gift.
- 4. oppidum, town.

Dative Case after Transitive Verbs.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Librum puĕrō dat, he gives the book to the boy.
- Galba Belgīs insīdiās părat, Galba prepares snares for the Belgians.

OBS. In the sentence, he gives the book to the boy, or he gives the boy the book, note that the verb gives is transitive, and that it is followed by the direct object, book, in the accusative, and an indirect object, boy, in the dative. Hence the following rule:—

INDIRECT OBJECT.

80. Rule VI.—The indirect object of an action is put in the dative.

1. After many transitive verbs the dative of the indirect object is used, together with the accusative of the direct.

2. The indirect object is also used after some intransitive and passive verbs. But some verbs, transitive in English, are intransitive in Latin; and some, intransitive in English, are transitive in Latin.

VOCABULARY.

līttĕra, -ae, F., letter (of alphabet). festino, hasten. līttěrae (pl.), -ārūm, F., letter, epistle. insĭdiae (pl.), -ārum, snares, amhush. oppidum, -ī, N., town. rŏsa, -ae, F., rose. matrona. -ae. F., married woman. consilium, -ī, N., counsel, plan. auxilium, -I, N., aid.

via, -ae, F., way, road. castrum, -I, N., fort, pl. camp. Belgae, -ārum, M., Belgian. jugum, -ī, N., voke. monstro. show. porta, -ae, F., gate. dono, give. im-ploro, implore.

SYN. Pueri, children, as a class; liberi, children, with reference to their parents.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English.—

1. Agricola viam nautīs monstrat. 2. Mātrona rosās 3. Fīlia¹ rēgīnae puellīs libros donābit.² fīliābus dant. 4. Titus Lăbienus legătus consilia Gallorum enunciat. Romānīs consilia Belgārum enunciābit. 6. Romānī oppida expugnābunt.

Translate into Latin: —

1. He gave the book to the boy. 2. Labienus was storming the town. 3. We report the plans of the Gauls. 4. We report the plans of the Gauls to the Romans. 5. They show the way to the men.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Fīlia is the subject, which is modified by rēgīnae; donābit is the simple predicate, modified by the direct object libros, and the indirect object puellis.

2. Note the order of the words: the indirect object usually precedes the direct.

What nouns of the second declension are neuter? What is the difference in the manner of declining magister and puer? What cases are alike in neuter nouns?

LESSON XVIII.

PREPOSITIONS.

81. Latin Prepositions are used either with the Accusative or with the Ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. in Galliam, into Gaul.
- 2. in Gallia, in Gaul.
- 3. cum viris, with (in company with) the men.
- 4. ex (or ē) provinciā, from (out of) the province.
- 5. per oppida, through the towns.

Obs. Note that the preposition in, with the accusative, means into; with the ablative, it means in. per means through, and is followed by the accusative; cum is followed by the ablative, and means with (in company with).

VOCABULARY.

cum, prep. w. abl., with.

de, prep. w. abl., from, concerning, for.

 $\mathbf{\tilde{e}}$ ,  $\mathbf{ex}$ , prep. w. abl., from, out of.

ā,¹ ab, prep. w. abl., from, away from.

ad, prep. w. acc., to, towards. frümentum, -ī, N., grain.

ōra, -ae, F., coast, shore.

prōvincia, -ae, F., province.

sine, prep. w. abl., without.

Gallia, -ae, F., Gaul.

in, prep. w. acc., into; w. abl., in or on.

ambŭlo, walk.

hăbito, dwell in.

porto, carry.

comporto, collect.

EXERCISES.

Analyze the following sentences; parse each word; translate into English:—

Frümentum in prövinciam² portant.
 In oppidō hăbitābat.
 Măgister cum puĕrīs in agrō ambŭlat.
 Vir ab însŭlae ōrā ambŭlat.
 Cum Belgīs ămīcĭtiam cōnfirmant.
 Frümenta ex agrīs comportant.
 Auxĭlium ā virīs implōrant.
 Rōmānī agrōs vastābunt.

Translate into Latin: -

1. They dwell in the town. 2. In the province. 3. Into the province. 4. He conveys grain from the fields. 5. In the town. 6. Into the town. 7. He conveys the grain into the town. 8. He walks in the field with (his)<sup>3</sup> son. 9. They walk away from the shore. 10. With the Gauls. 11. He establishes friendship with the Romans.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- ā and ē are used only before words beginning with a consonant;
   ab and ex before either a vowel or a consonant.
- 2. A preposition with its noun is a phrase; when the phrase limits a verb, as it does in this case, it is called an adverbial phrase; when it limits a noun, it is an adjective phrase. No special model is necessary for parsing nouns with prepositions.

Obs. Observe the distinction between the prepositions in and ex, and ad and ab. in (with the accusative) and ex denote motion to and from the inside of a place; ad and ab (or a) denote motion to and from the outside of a place. Thus, věnit in Itāliam, when one comes into Italy; ex Itāliā, when one comes out of Italy; but ad Itāliam, to Italy, when there is no notion of entering into Italy conveyed; just so ab Itāliā, away from Italy, when it is simply expressed that he came away from Italy.

3. Words in parenthesis are not to be translated.

Which cases do prepositions govern? Mention a preposition that governs the accusative. What kind of a phrase is a preposition and its noun?

LESSON XIX.

ADJECTIVES. - FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS.

- 82. Adjectives are words used to describe nouns; and as nouns are of different genders, adjectives are declined to agree with the genders of the noun.
- 1. Adjectives of the first and second declensions have one form for the masculine gender, another for the feminine, and a third for the neuter. Thus:—

The masculine is declined like dominus.

The feminine is declined like mensa.

The neuter is declined like bellum.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. vĭr bŏnus, a good man.
- 3. virī bonī, good men.
- rēgīna bona, a good queen.
   viros bonos, good men.
  - 5. templum magnum, a great temple.

Obs. In these examples, note that the adjectives are all in the same gender, number, and case as the nouns. Hence the following rule:—

AGREEMENT OF ADJECTIVES.

83. Rule VII.—Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

1. Declension of adjectives of the first and second declensions (stems ending in  $-\check{o}$ - or  $-\bar{a}$ -) is as follows:—

PARADIGM. — bŏnus, good.

G	Singular.			Plural.
Cases.	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.
Nom.	bŏnus	bŏna	bŏnum	bŏnī	bŏnae	bŏna
GEN.	bŏnī	bŏnae	bŏnī	bŏnōrum	bŏnārum	bŏnōrum
DAT.	bŏnō	bŏnae	bŏnō	bŏnīs	bŏnīs	bŏnīs
Acc.	bŏnum	bŏnam	bŏnum	bŏnōs	bŏnās	bŏna
Voc.	bŏne	bŏna	bŏnum	bŏnī	bŏnae	bŏna
ABL.	bŏnō	bŏnā	bŏnō	bŏnīs	bŏnīs	bŏnīs

2.	Decline	together	mūrus	altus,	a high	wall.
	1			(

Cases.	· Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	mūrus altus, a high wall.	mürī altī, high walls.
GEN.	mūrī altī, of a high wall.	műrörum altörum, of high walls.
DAT.	mūrō altō, to or for a high wall.	mūrīs altīs, to or for high walls.
Acc.	mūrum altum, a high wall.	mūros altos, high walls.
Voc.	mūre alte, O high wall.	mūri altī, O high walls.
ABL.	mūrō altō, with, from, or by a high wall.	mūrīs altīs, with, from, or by high walls.

- 3. Adjectives usually stand after their nouns, but an emphatic adjective may stand before the noun.
- 4. Adjectives are often used as nouns, especially in the plural masculine or neuter: as, bonī, good men; multa (neut. plur.), many things; omnia, all things.

84. Model for parsing an adjective: -

rēgīnam bonam laudo, I praise the good queen: bonam is an adjective of the first and second declensions; stems, bono- and bonā-; declined, singular bonus, bona, bonum, etc.; plural boni, bonae, bonā, etc. It is in the accusative feminine singular, and agrees with rēgīnam, according to Rule VII.: Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

VOCABULARY.

multus, -a, -um, many.

nŏvus, -a, -um, new.

cārus, -a, -um, dear.

altus, -a, -um, high or deep.

māgnus, -a, -um, large.

flūvius, -I, M., river.

rāpidus, -a, -um, swift.

dīscīpūlus, -I, M., pupil.

mūrus, -I, M., wall.

lacrīma, -ae, F., tear.

Rhēnus, -I, M., Rhine (river).

rīpa, -ae, F., bank.

lātus, -a, -um, broad.

vērus, -a, -um, true.

Syn. Mūrus denotes any wall; păries (gen. -ĕtis), wall of a house; moenia (gen. -ōrum), wall of a city to protect from the enemy.

- 85. Decline together the following, making the adjective agree with the noun in gender, number, and case.
  - 1. oppidum münītum, a fortified town.
  - 2. puer bonus, a good child.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

- 1. Multīs cum lacrīmīs. 2. In¹ provinciam māgnam.
- 3. Per multōs agrōs. 4. Cum servīs bŏnīs. 5. Trans² Rhēnum pūgnat. 6. Importāmus frūmentum in Galliam.

  7. Mārister bŏnus dat librum pŏvum cārō discipnilō 3. 8. Ad.
- Măgister bonus dat librum novum caro discipulo.<sup>3</sup>
   Ad ripam Rhēni.

Translate into Latin: -

- Of the high walls.
   Across the broad river.
   The master gives the book to the good boy.
   With many men.
   With good slaves.
   Across the broad rivers.
   The good girl loves the queen.
- SYN. Mägister (mägis, greater) is a master of a school, of a feast, etc.; dominus, master of a family, or of slaves.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Note the meaning of in, followed by the accusative.
- 2. The preposition trans is followed by the accusative, and means across.
- 3. The pupil is expected to analyze the sentences, to point out the modifiers of the subject and of the predicate, and to parse each word.

What is an adjective? Of what declensions are adjectives? The rule.for the agreement of adjectives?

LESSON XX.

ADJECTIVES. - FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS.

86. Besides adjectives in -us, -a, -um, there are others of three terminations in -er, -a, -um. They are declined as follows:—

PARADIGM.	— niger,	black.
-----------	----------	--------

C	Singular.			Plural.
Cases.	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.
Nom.	nĭger	nigra	nigrum	nigrī	nigrae	nigra

- 1. niger is declined in the masculine like magister, and drops the e; tener is declined in the masculine like puer, and keeps the e. Both are declined in the feminine like mensa, and in the neuter like bellum.
- 2. Most adjectives in -er drop the e in inflection; i.e., are declined like niger. The following retain the e, and are declined like tener:—
  - 1. miser, wretched.
- 4. lăcer. torn.
- 2. asper, rough.
- 5. līber, free.
- 3. těner, tender.
- 6. prosper, fortunate.

And the compounds of -ger and -fer.

- 87. Decline together, making the Adjective agree with the Noun in gender, number, and case:—
  - 1. puer aeger, a sick boy.
- 2. vir liber, a free man.
- 3. puella pulchra, a beautiful girl.

VOCABULARY.

aeger, -gra, -grum, sick.
miser, -ĕra, -ĕrum, wretched.
noster, -tra, -trum, our.
asper, -ĕra, -ĕrum, rough.
Rōmānus,¹-a, -um, Roman.
Rhŏdănus,-I, M., Rhone (river). occūpo, seize.

pŏpŭlus, -ī, M., people.

meus, -a, -um (voc. M. mī), my.
pĕrīcŭlum, -ī, N., danger.
lŏcus,² -ī, M., place.
castra, -ōrum (pl.), N., camp.
mātrīmōnium, -ī, N., marriage.
lūdus. -ī, M., school.

SYN. Miser (opp. beātus, fortunate), said of one who feels himself unfortunate; infēlix (opp. fēlix), of one for whom nothing goes according to his wish.

EXERCISES.

Pronounce; translate; decline each noun, and give its stem; parse the verbs:—

Magnō cum³ pĕrīculō.
 Ex Galliā.
 In Galliam.
 In Galliā.
 Trans Rhŏdănum in Galliam.
 In aspĕrīs locīs castra lāta conlōcat.
 Rōmānī lībĕra Gallōrum⁴ oppida occupant.
 Puellae bŏnae rēgīnam pulchram ămant.

Translate into Latin: -

1. In great danger. 2. With great danger. 3. In company with the beautiful girl. 4. The beautiful girl loves the queen. 5. Out of Gaul into Italy. 6. Into the free town. 7. The Roman people seize the towns.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- In the Latin expression for Roman people the adjective Romanus always follows the noun.
- 2. locus is masculine in the singular, but is both masculine and neuter in the plural, and is thus declined: nom. locī, passages in books, and loca, places; gen. locorum; dat. locīs; acc. locos and loca; voc. locī and loca; abl. locīs.
  - 3. cum stands between the adjective and the noun.
- 4. The genitive of the possessor (190) usually stands between the noun and the adjective limiting the noun.

With what cases are Latin prepositions used? When is in used with the accusative? What is the gender of nouns of the second declension? How does viri aegri differ in meaning from aegri viri?

What is the meaning of castra in the singular? (See General Vocab.) What is the regular position of an adjective? What is the stem of tener? Is a final in the first declension ever long? When? What is the regular position of the genitive? Give the reasons for the accent of the following words: amīcī, servorum, tenera, Rhodanus.

LESSON XXI.

FIRST CONJUGATION. - ACTIVE VOICE.

PERFECT, PLUPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT.

- 88. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Tenses denote completed action, and are formed by adding the endings to the perfect stem.
- 89. The Perfect Stem of a verb of the First Conjugation is formed by adding  $-v\bar{\imath}$  to the present stem; as,

Pres. Infin. Pres. Stem. Perf. Stem. Perf. Ind. ămāre ămā- ămāvī- ămāvī pūgnāre pūgnā- pūgnāvī- pūgnāvī

EXAMPLES.

Obs. The i in the perfect is undoubtedly a part of the stem; and, as there is nothing to be gained by considering  $am\bar{a}v$ - the perfect stem, the correct form is here given.

PERFECT TENSE.

PLUPERFECT TENSE.

Person.	Formation.	Example.	English.
Sing. 1 2 3 Plur. 1 2 3	Perf. stem + ram " + rās " + rat " + rāmus " + rātis " + rant	āmāvēram āmāvērās āmāvērat āmāvērāmus āmāvērātis āmāvērant	I had loved. Thou hadst loved. He had loved. We had loved. You had loved. They had loved.
	FUTURE P	ERFECT TEN	SE.
Sing. 1 2 3 Plur. 1 2 3	Perf. stem + ro " " + ris " " + rit " " + rĭmus " " + rĭtis " " + rint	ămāvēro āmāvēris āmāvērit āmāvērimus āmāvēritis āmāvērint	I shall have loved. Thou wilt have loved. He will have loved. We shall have loved. You will have loved. They will have loved.

Obs. The characteristic vowel of the stem is shortened in the first person plural of the perfect, and in the third person plural it is changed to  $\bar{e}$ ; in the pluperfect and future perfect it is changed to  $\bar{e}$ . Final consonants are usually less distinctly pronunced, and for this reason are oftener dropped. In this way amaverunt is shortened to amavere,—in this form v is never dropped.

- 1. Analysis of the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Active of all Conjugations:—
- 1. Perfect = Perf. stem + Personal endings.
- 2. Pluperfect = " + Tense sign -ra- + Personal endings.
- 3. Fut. perfect = " + Tense sign -ri- + Personal endings.
- 2. In the tenses formed from the perfect stem, v between two vowels is often suppressed, and the second vowel is merged in the first (except ie); as,

EXAMPLES.

Pluperfect	ămāvēram = ăma eram = ămāram
FUTURE PERFECT	ămāvěro = ămaero = ămāro
PERFECT, 3d per. plur
Perfect, 2d per. plur	ămāvisti = ămaisti = ămāstī

3. The synopsis of the verb consists of the different forms, arranged according to the stems (see p. 261). The synopsis of the Indicative Mode is as follows:—

VOCABULARY.

PRES. IND.	PRES. INF.	PERF. IND.
∀ŏcō	vŏcāre	vŏcāvī, call.
оссйро	occŭpāre	occupāvī, seize, occupy.
vasto	vastāre	vastāvī, lay waste, devastate.
√ŏlo	volāre	volāvī, $fly$ .
vulněro	v ulněrare	vulněrāví, wound.
rŏgo	rŏgāre	rŏgāvī, ask.
hiĕmo	hiĕmāre	hiĕmāvī, pass the winter.

in matrimonium dare, to give in marriage.

SYN. Vŏco, call, and to address with the appropriate title; nōmino, call, or mention by name.

EXERCISES.

Pronounce; translate; decline each noun, and give its stem; parse the verbs:—

Vŏcāvĕrat.
 Pugnāvĕrit.
 Pugnābit.
 Rogāvĕrātis.
 Vŏcāvĕrĭmus.
 Laudāvĕrit.

 Gallī oppĭdum occūpāvĕrant.
 Amīcĭtiam cūm Rōmānīs cōnfirmāvĕrit.
 Circum³ Rōmam hiĕmāvĕrant.
 Cassius Tĭtō⁴ fīliam in mātrīmōnium dĕdit.

Translate into Latin: -

1. They had called. 2. We have called. 3. Ye were calling. 4. They will call. 5. They call, or are calling. 6. They did fight. 7. They fought. 8. They have fought. 9. They had fought. 10. We praise the boy. 11. We praised the boy. 12. We have praised the boy. 13. We had praised. 14. We shall have praised.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. do is irregular; it has a short before -re, and the perfect is dedi.
- 2. Translate the perfect both ways; as, he has laid waste, and he laid waste.
- 3. The preposition circum means around, and is followed by the accusative, as are also trans, across, inter, between, among, and propter, on account of.
  - 4. Note the two objects of dedit.

Obs. Note that the pluperfect and future perfect have, in addition to the personal endings, a tense sign, -ra, -ri; as,

amāvě-ra-nt, loved-had-they,

the perfect stem being  $\mathbf{am\bar{a}v\bar{i}}$ ; the pluperfect tense sign -ra, had; the personal ending -nt, they.

What kind of time does the perfect denote? What are the divisions of time? How is the present stem found? The perfect stem? Decline filia.

LESSON XXII.

FIRST CONJUGATION. - ACTIVE VOICE.

IMPERATIVE MODE. - QUESTIONS.

- 90. Simple sentences are, in Latin as in English: —
- 1. DECLARATIVE; as, puer laudat, the boy praises.
- 2. Interrogative; as, puerne 1 laudat, does the boy praise?
- 3. Imperative; as, laudāte, praise ye.
- Exclamatory; as, quam fortiter pugnat, how bravely he fights!
- 91. In Latin, questions are asked by means of Interrogative Pronouns, Adverbs, or Particles, and are not distinguished by the order of the words, as they are in English.
- 1. In simple questions, expecting the answer yes or no, an Interrogative Particle is used, indicating what answer is expected.

- a. Questions with the syllable -ne appended (enclitic) ask for information, without indicating what answer is expected.
  - b. Questions with nonne expect the answer yes.
  - c. Questions with num expect the answer no.
  - 2. For questions with Interrogative Pronouns, see 245.
- 92. The Imperative Mode is used in commands, exhortations, and entreaties.

VOCATIVE.

93. Rule VIII.—The vocative is used, either with or without an interjection, in addressing a person or thing.

VOCABULARY.

arma, -ōrum (pl.), N., arms. proelium, -ī, N., battle.

Galba, -ae, M., Galba. porta, -ae, F., gate.
aedificium, -ī, N., building.
vĭr, vĭrī, M., man.
insīdiae, -ārum (pl.), F., snares.

ròsa, -ae, F., rose.
narro, tell, narrate.
cōpia, -ae, F., abundance.
copiae (pl.), F., forces.
Titus, -ī, M., Titus. nātūra, -ae, F., nature.
nēgōtium, -ī, N., business.

Syn. Vir, a man, a distinguished man, a husband; homo, inis, a man, a human being, includes both sexes (opposed to vir = a fellow).

EXERCISES.

Pronounce; translate; decline each noun, and give its stem; parse the verbs:—

Vastāte provinciam.
 Vītā, Tīte, proelium.
 Vŏcāt puĕros.
 Mātronane¹ puellam vŏcat? Vŏcat.
 Nonne Galba însidiās părat?
 Num poēta rēgīnae² rŏsam dat?

Translate into Latin: -

1. Call. 2. Call (ye). 3. Call the men. 4. Does the sailor call? Yes. 5. Does the farmer plough? 6. Tell the story. 7. Call the men, Cassius. 8. Hasten, men. 9. Haste (ye). 10. Call the men from the fields. 11. Praise (ye). 12. Praise the pupils.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. -ne is an enclitic, i.e. it seems to lean on the word before it. The most common enclitics are -que (and), -ve, and -ne, used in asking questions, and also cum, with, when used with pronouns; as,— pueri puellaeque adsunt, the boys, and girls too, are here.

-que is the enclitic; in English, too is the enclitic. The -ne appended to mātrona in Ex. 4 throws the accent on the penult; as, mā-tro-na'ne.

- 2. Dative case.
- 3. See Rule VIII.
- 4. See 75. 5.
- 5. Use the preposition.

From what stem is the imperative formed? Does the imperative denote completed action? Give the personal endings of the imperative. Note that the imperative has no first person. How many tenses has the imperative?

LESSON XXIII.

NOUNS. - THIRD DECLENSION.

- 94. Nouns whose genitive singular ends in -is belong to the Third Declension.
- a. The nominative endings are various: a, e, i, o, y, c, l, n, r, s, t, and x; and nouns of all three genders belong to this declension.
- 95. Nouns of the Third Declension may be divided into two classes:—
  - 1. Nouns whose stem ends in a consonant.
  - 2. Nouns whose stem ends in the vowel i.
- 96. Nouns whose stem ends in a consonant increase in the genitive; that is, the genitive has more syllables than the nominative; as, jūdex, jūdic-is.
- 97. Nouns whose stem ends in a vowel do not increase in the genitive; as, turris, turris. See 110 and 113.
- 98. Consonant stems are divided, like the consonants, into-
- 99. The sign of the Nominative Singular is s, which, however, is dropped after l, n, r, s, or combines with c or g of the stem to form x = c or g + s; t or d disappears before s; as, st. mlit-+s=mlits=mlits (with change of vowel) = mles. The nominative of neuter nouns is the same as the stem (with sometimes changed vowel, see 100.2).

- . 1. Note that the stems are princip-, trab-, hiem-.
- 2. In forming the nominative, the vowel before the final consonant of the stem is often changed. The most common changes are:—
  - (1) From i to e; as princeps, from stem princip.
  - (2) From i to u; as caput, from stem capit.
  - (3) From i to o; as virgo, from stem virgin.
  - (4) From o to u; as corpus, from stem corpor- (which stands for corpos-).
  - (5) From e to u; as ŏpus, from stem ŏpĕr.

 The brothers love (their) sisters.
 They have liberated the consul.
 To Cæsar, the consul.
 They accuse Cæsar, the consul.
 The judge praises the king.
 I praise the justice of the king.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

How is the nominative singular of most nouns formed? (Ans. The nominative is formed by adding s to the stem.) What exceptions? (Ans. Neuters, and nouns whose stem ends in a lingual.) păter, māter, frāter (gen. patris, matris, fratris), seem not to increase in the genitive. The stems are really păter, māter, frāter, and they are contracted to pătr, mātr, frātr; i.e., pătris stands for pătĕris, etc.

  - 2. The case-endings are the same as those given in 100.
- 3. The s of the nominative and vocative singular unites with c or g of the stem to form x; as,  $r\bar{s}gs = r\bar{s}x$ . See 32.2.

FINAL SYLLABLES.

- 4. Hitherto long final syllables have been marked; the quantity of final syllables will hereafter be marked only when not determined by the following rules:
  - a. Most monosyllables are long.
  - b. Final i, o, and u are long; a, e, and y, short. Final a is long in the ablative singular of the first declension.
  - c. Final as, es, and os are long; is, us, and ys, short.
- 5. In the increments of nouns a and o are generally long; e, i, u, and y, short.

Exc. -is is long in plural cases.

 Rōmŭlus nōmen nŏvae urbī dat.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What nouns belong to the third declension? What is meant by the stem of a word? How may the stem of nouns of the third declension be found? (Ans. 1st. The stem of nouns ending in a consonant is found by dropping -is of the genitive singular; 2d. The stem of nouns ending in a vowel is found by dropping -s of the genitive singular; 3d. The stem of monosyllabic nouns ending in two consonants is found by dropping -is for the singular, and -s only for the plural: as, urbs, st. urb (sing.), urbi-(plural). See 113.) What becomes of the s that is added to the stem to form the nominative in dūx (gen. dǔc-is)? of the d in the stem of lǎpis (gen. lǎpid-is)? What is the ending of the genitive singular of nouns of the third declension?

LESSON XXVII.

NOUNS. — THIRD DECLENSION.

- 108. Vowel stems of the Third Declension end in -i; as, turris, stem turri. Nouns of this class include the following:—
  - 1. Nouns in -is and -es not increasing in the genitive.
  - 2. Neuters in -e, -al, -ar.
  - 3. Monosyllables with stems ending in two consonants.
  - 4. Most nouns in -ns and -rs.

PARADIGMS.

- 1. Only five or six nouns in common use have -im in the accusative singular; and about as many have -em or -im.
- 2. All stems in -i- have -ium in the genitive plural; the accusative plural is often written -is instead of -is.
  - 109. Decline together the following:—
    - 1. ignis clārus, a bright fire.
    - 2. collis asper, a rugged hill.

VOCABULARY.

cănis, cănis, m. and f., dog. hostis, hostis, m. and f., enemy. supero, -āre, -āvī, conquers. prō, prep. w. abl., before, for, instead of.

inter, prep. w. acc., between, among.

fīnis, fīnis, M., limit; pl., territory. nŭměrus, -ī, M., number. latro, latrāre, latrāvī, bark.

SYN. Hostis is a foreign enemy in war; inimīcus, a private, personal enemy; adversārius, any opponent.

EXERCISES.

Pronounce; translate; decline each noun, and give its stem; parse the verbs:—

Cănis latrat.
 Nonne hostes agros vastant?
 Caesar hostes săperabat.
 Rex turres oppūgnābit.

- 5. Mīlitēs pro lībertāte pūgnant. 6. Inter fīnēs Gallorum.
- 7. In hostium nŭměrō. 8. Cănēs pūgnant. 9. Caesar turrim oppūgnābat.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Cănis forms the genitive plural in -um, as cănum; so also panis, bread; and jŭvěnis, a youth.

Do nouns having i-stems increase in the genitive? What is meant by increasing in the genitive? How do such nouns form the nominative from the stem? What vowel change is common? In what does the genitive plural usually end?

LESSON XXVIII.

NOUNS. - THIRD DECLENSION.

110. Neuters ending in -e, -al, -ar are declined as follows:—

PARADIGMS.

	Cases.	măre, sea.	änimal, an animal.	calcar, spur.	Case- Endings.

1. The stem of mare ends in -i-, which is changed in the nominative to e. The stem of animal ends in  $-\bar{a}li$ -, the i being dropped, and the a shortened in the nominative singular; as, stem animal, nominative animal stands for animal, the final e being lost, and does not, therefore, increase in the genitive.

111. Rules for Position: -

- 1. Adjectives and genitives generally follow their nouns.
- 2. Adverbs and oblique cases, with or without prepositions, generally immediately precede the verb.
  - 3. The indirect object generally precedes the direct object.
- 4. When a noun with an adjective is limited by a noun in the genitive, the adjective stands first, and the genitive between it and its noun; as, magnum rēgīnae pōcŭlum, the large cup of the queen; or, the queen's large cup.
- 5. The rules may be reversed for the sake of emphasis; then the emphatic place for the verb is at the beginning;

for the object, at the end of a sentence; for the genitive, before the noun it limits; for the adjective, before the noun; for the adverb, at a distance from the verb; for the indirect object, after the direct.

LESSON XXIX.

NOUNS. - THIRD DECLENSION.

- 113. Many nouns in -s and -x, generally preceded by a consonant, were originally i-stems. These are:—
- 1. Nouns of one syllable, with stems ending in two consonants.
  - 2. Nouns of two or more syllables ending in -ns or -rs.
- 3. Note that these nouns are declined in the singular like consonant stems, and in the plural like vowel stems.

Rules for the Oblique Cases of Nouns of the Third Declension.

ACCUSATIVE SINGULAR.

114. The accusative singular of all neuter nouns is like the nominative. The accusative singular of masculine and feminine nouns generally ends in -em; but a few proper nouns in -is, denoting places or rivers, have the accusative in -im, and also sitis, tussis, and vis; a few have either -em or -im, as febris, turris, nāvis.

ABLATIVE SINGULAR.

- 115. The ablative singular commonly ends in -e; but
- 1. Neuters in -e, -al, and -ar have -i in the ablative.
- 2. Nouns that have -im in the accusative, and names of months in -er or -is, have -ī in the ablative.
- 3. Nouns that have -em or -im in the accusative have their ablative in -e or -ī: ignis, fire, nāvis, vessel, turris, tower, cīvis, citizen, fīnis, end, and a few others, have -e or -ī.

GENITIVE PLURAL.

- 116. The genitive plural generally ends in -um; but
- 1. Nouns that have -i or both -e and -i in the ablative singular have -ium in the genitive plural.
- 2. Nouns in -es and -is, not increasing in the genitive singular, have -ium in the genitive plural.
- 3. Nouns of one syllable ending in -s or -x preceded by a consonant have -ium in the genitive plural.
- 4. Nouns of two or more syllables ending in -ns or -rs, and names of nations in -ās and -īs, generally have -ium in the genitive plural.

VOCABULARY.

mons, montis, M., mountain. urbs, urbis, F., city. pars, partis, F., part.

lītus, lītŏris, n., shore.

sto, stāre, stětī, stand. lūx, lūcis, F., light. ante, prep. w. acc., before. servo, servāre, servāvī, preserve.

- 1. sinistra pars, the left side.
- 2. rūpēs sĭnistra, a rock on the left.
- 3. ŏpus complētum, a finished work.

Obs. Note that, in nouns of the third declension, the stem is the same as the nominative; as, consul, genitive consul-is, or becomes the same after the vowel is modified; as, nomen, genitive nomin-is; or that s is added to the stem to form the nominative; as, hostis, genitive hosti-s.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

- 1. Partem urbis occupant. 2. Consul in urbe habitabat.
- Rōmŭlus nōmen nŏvae urbī dat.
   Frātrēs in lītŏre măris cum sŏrōrĭbus stant.
   Ante lūcem.
   De monte in flūmen.
   In monte.
   In pāce părāmus bellum.
- 9. Mīlitēs arcem servābant.

Syn. Oppidum is a fortified town, a fortress; a small city or town; urbs, a large city (with reference to its buildings; especially to Rome); civitas, a state, (1) a community living under the same laws; (2) right of citizenship; res publica, a commonwealth.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is the genitive plural of mons, urbs, pars? Are these words declined in the singular like consonant stems? What three classes of nouns of the third declension? (Ans. 1st. Consonant stems; 2d. Vowel stems; 3d. Mixed stems.) What nouns have -i as the regular ending in the ablative singular? What nouns have -e or -i? In what does the nominative plural of masculine and feminine nouns end? (Ans. -5s.) In what, the nominative plural of neuter nouns? (Ans. In -a, and those whose ablative singular ends in -i only, or in -e and -i, have -ia.) What nouns have -ium in the genitive plural? How is the nominative formed from the stem? What is the regular ending of the accusative singular? What nouns have -im in the accusative?

LESSON XXX.

THIRD DECLENSION. - RULES OF GENDER.

118. The rules for gender, when determined by the meaning, have been given under 63.

EXAMPLES.

1. Caesar, M., Cæsar.	7. hostis, M. or F., enemy.
2. nauta, m., sailor.	8. cīvis, m. or f., citizen.
3. vir, m., man.	9. jüdex, m. or f., judge.
4. Tullia, F., Tullia.	10. Roma, F., Rome.
5. mülier, F., woman.	11. Rhēnus, M., Rhine.
6. puella, r., girl.	12. Mārtius, M., March.

Obs. Examine the foregoing words, and give the gender of each noun and the rule. Note that Exs. 7-9 designate either males or females, and that they are of the common gender (c.).

Rules of Gender.

- 119. The following are the rules for gender when determined by the endings of the nominative singular:—
- 1. Nouns of the third declension ending in -o, -or,  $-\bar{o}s$ , -er,  $-\bar{e}s$ ,  $-e\bar{s}$  (increasing in the genitive to -idis or -itis) are masculine.

EXAMPLES.

- sermo, -ōnis, M., speech.
   dŏlor, -ōris, M., pain.
   trāmes, -Itis, M., path.
   flōs, flōris, M., flower.
   éques, -Itis, M., horseman.
- 4. carcer, -ĕris, M., prison. 8. mīles, -ĭtis, M., soldier.
- 2. Nouns of the third declension ending in  $-\bar{a}s$  (gen.  $-\bar{a}tis$ ),  $-\bar{e}s$  (not increasing in the genitive), -is, -ys, -x, -s (preceded by a consonant); also -do, -go (gen. -inis), -io (abstract<sup>1</sup> and collective<sup>2</sup>), and -ūs (gen. -ūdis, -ūtis), are feminine.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. aetās, -ātis, r., age.
- 2. cīvītās, -ātis, F., state.
- 3. nūbēs, -is, F., cloud.
- 4. nāvis, -is, F., ship.
- 5. chlamys, -ydis, f., cloak.
- 6. pāx, pācis, f., peace.
- 7. urbs, urbis, F., city.

- 8. pars, partis, F., part.
- 9. trabs, trăbis, F., a beam.
- 10. ĭmāgo, -ĭnis, F., image.
- 11. multĭtūdo,-ĭnis, F., multitude.
- 12. orātio, -onis, f., speech.
- 13. lěgiō, -ōnis, F., legion.
- 14. virtūs, -ūtis, F., virtue.
- 3. Nouns of the third declension ending in -a, -e, -i, -y; -c, -l, -t; -ar, -ur, -us (genitive  $-\check{o}ris$  or  $-\check{e}ris$ ), and -men (genitive  $-\check{m}inis$ ), are neuter.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. poēma, -ătis, N., poem.
- 2. măre, -is, N., sea.
- 3. lac, lactis, N., milk.
- 4. vectīgal, -ālis, N., revenue.
- 5. căput, -Itis, N., head.
- 6. calcar, -āris, N., spur.
- 7. guttur, -ŭris, N., throat.

- 8. tempus, -ŏris, N., time.
- 9. gěnus, -ĕris, N., class.
- 10. nomen, -Inis, N., name.

14. ănīmal, -ālis, N., animal.

- 11. agmen, -Inis, N., army.
- 12. lătus, -ĕris, N., side.
- 13. rēte, rētis, N., net.
- 120. The following nouns in common use are exceptions to these rules:—
- Exc. 1. Arbor, a tree, căro, flesh, and ordo, order, are feminine; aequor, the sea, marmor, marble, and cor, cordis, the heart, are neuter; ordo, rank, is masculine; Iter is neuter.
- Exc. 2. Latin nouns ending in -nis are masculine or doubtful; as, crīnis, hair, ignis, fire, pānis, bread, are masculine. The following are masculine or feminine: amnis, a river, cinis, ashes, fīnis, end, clūnis, the haunch, cănis, a dog, fūnis, a rope; the plural fīnēs, boundaries, is always masculine.
- Exc. 3. Dens, a tooth, fons, a fountain, mons, a mountain, and pons, a bridge, are masculine.

1. The locative case of nouns of the third declension ends like the dative, sometimes like the ablative; as, Karthāgǐnī, or Karthāgǐne, at Carthage; rǔrī, in the country.

EXERCISES.

Determine by the foregoing rules the gender of the following nouns:—

- 1. consul. -ŭlis, consul.
- 2. sermō, -ōnis, discourse.
- 3. ōrātiō, -ōnis, speech.
- 4. dux, dŭcis, leader.
- 5. multitudo, -Inis, multitude.

- 24. princeps, -Ipis, chief.
- 25. sēmen. -Inis, seed.
- 26. lītus. oris. shore.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. An abstract noun is the name of a quality; as, valor, virtue.
- 2. A collective noun denotes in the singular number, a collection of individuals; as, army, legion.

How many ways of determining the gender of nouns? What are they? What nouns are masculine by signification? What, by termination? What nouns in common use are exceptions? Give the rules for feminine nouns. What are the terminations of neuter nouns?

LESSON XXXI.

ABLATIVE.

CAUSE, MANNER, MEANS, AND INSTRUMENT.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. pallidus īrā fuit, he was pale with anger.
- magnö flētū auxīlium ā Caesăre pĕtunt, with a flood of tears they seek aid from Cæsar.
- Divitiacus Gallorum animos verbis confirmat, Divitiacus encourages the minds of the Gauls by (or, by means of) words.

- ferro dimicant fratres, the brothers fight with the sword for their country.
- 5. mīlitēs lapidibus pūgnant, the soldiers fight with stones.

Obs. In the foregoing examples the nouns that denote the cause (īrā), the manner (flētū), the means (verbīs), the instrument (ferrō, lăpidībus), by which the action of the verb is performed, are in the ablative without a preposition, and are modifiers of the predicate. This usage is expressed by the following rule:—

ABLATIVE CASE.

122. Rule IX.—The cause, manner, means, and instrument are denoted by the ablative without a preposition.

123. Rule for position: —

Expressions of manner, means, and instrument are placed after the direct object; those of cause usually precede it; all precede the predicate.

VOCABULARY.

pědes, pědítis, M., foot-soldier. lăpis, lăpídis, M., stone. săgitta, -ae, F., an arrow. vester, -tra, -trum, your. tĭmĭdus, -a, -um, timid, afraid. passer, passĕris, m., sparrow. musca, -ae, F., fly. dēvŏro, -āre, -āvi, devour.

Syn. Consilium, advice, counsel; concilium, an assembly, a meeting (of part of the people); lex, a law passed in a comitia, an assembly of the whole people, and regularly approved; scītum (plēbiscītum), a law passed in a concilium.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English:—

- Caesar urbem crěmat.
   Păter tuus urbēs Galliae igne crěmat.
   Regnum cōpiis conciliābat.
   Virōs igne crěmant.
   Hostium săgittae rēgem vestrum vulněrant.
- 6. Amāte, puĕrī, sŏrōrēs. 7. Consŭlēs oppidis nōmina dant.
- Mīlitēs consulis laudant.
   Virginem timidam vocant.
   Passer magno cum gaudio muscam dēvorābat.
   Marcī
- 10. Passer magnō cum gaudiō muscam devorabat. 11. Marci filius Gallīs signum tŭbā dat.

Translate into Latin: -

1. He gives a name. 2. He gives a name to the city.
3. He gives a name to the new city. 4. The soldiers have called. 5. The soldiers have called the consul. 6. They have praised. 7. They have praised the eloquence of the consul. 8. The father calls (his) son. 9. The consul praised the soldier. 10. The consul praised the valor of the soldier. 11. They are fighting. 12. They are fighting with the sword. 13. The brothers are fighting with the sword. 14. To<sup>2</sup> the city. 15. Into the city. 16. Out of the city. 17. Away from the city. 18. With the chiefs. 19. They burn the city. 20. They burn the city with fire.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The ablative of manner commonly takes cum unless an adjective is used, then cum may be omitted.
- 2. Note that when there is motion towards a person or place (except names of towns), a preposition with the accusative is used; the dative is wrong.

What nouns end in in the ablative singular? In ium in the genitive plural? What is the gender of mons? Give the rule for the gender of nouns of the second declension. What is the gender of nauta? Give the rule. The gender of nouns not provided for by the rules must be learned by practice; as, jūs (gen. jūris), right, and iter (gen. itiněris), journey, march, are both neuter. Name the stems of măre, mōs, ănimal, iter, ignis, mons, rex, corpus.

LESSON XXXII.

SUBJECT AND COPULA.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. rēgīna bŏna, a good queen.
- 2. rēgīna bona est, the queen is good.
- 3. Tullia, filia reginae, poetam laudat, Tullia, the daughter of the queen, praises the poet.

- 4. Tullia filia reginae est, Tullia is the daughter of the queen.
- 5. puella ămăta est, the girl is loved.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that in Ex. 1 the adjective simply modifies the noun, without the intervention of a verb; in Ex. 2 the adjective is connected with the noun by means of the verb est. The first adjective is called an attributive adjective, the second is a predicate adjective, and is called the complement. In Ex. 3 note that the descriptive noun filia stands in the same part of the sentence as the subject which it modifies; it is called an appositive. In Ex. 4 the descriptive noun is used to form the predicate, and is called a predicate noun, or complement. Note that the predicate adjective agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case, the predicate noun agrees with the subject in case. Note the position of the predicate adjective; it may, however, precede the verb for the sake of emphasis. In Ex. 5 the verb sum helps to form the perfect tense of the verb, and is therefore called an auxiliary verb; hence,—

124. The verb sum is either an auxiliary or a copulative verb. It is an auxiliary verb when it helps to form some of the tenses of other verbs; it is copulative when it joins the subject to some other word which is used to describe the subject. The word thus used to describe the subject may be a noun or an adjective, and is called the complement. If the descriptive word is a noun, it is called a predicate noun; if it is an adjective, then it is called a predicate adjective.

PREDICATE NOUN.

125. Rule X.—A noun in the predicate, denoting the same person or thing as the subject, agrees with it in case.

OBS. Note that a noun used to describe another noun or pronoun, and denoting the same person or thing, is put in the same case. When the descriptive noun is in the same part of the sentence, it is called an Appositive; and when it stands in the predicate, usually after intransitive verbs of to be, to become, to remain, etc., and with passive verbs of naming, calling, choosing, appointing, etc., it is called a Predicate Nominative.

PREDICATE ADJECTIVE.

126. Rule XI.—A predicate adjective agrees with its subject in gender, number, and case.

127. Partial Paradigm of sum, I am.

Obs. The verb sum, I am, belongs to none of the four conjugations; it is both irregular and defective, i.e., it wants certain parts. It is used in Latin, as in English, to help conjugate the passive voice of regular verbs.

PRINCIPAL PARTS.

Present Stem, es		PERFECT	Stem, ful
Present.	Infinitive.	Perfect.	Futur e Part.
sum	esse	fui	fütürus

INDICATIVE PRESENT.

3. The islands are small. 4. She is the daughter of the sailor. 5. We are Romans. 6. The cities are large.
7. There is a large town. 8. We are friends. 9. It is a large town. 10. The town is large.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. What is the rule for the gender of Arar?
- 2. In English, when the subject is indefinite, we use the word there with some form of the verb to be; as, insula est parva may mean the island is small, an island is small, (there) is a small island, (it) is a small island, or the island is a small (one).

What is the present tense of sum? Why is sum called a copula? What is the noun or adjective after it called? Why? Note that the complement, if a noun, agrees with the subject in case; if an adjective, in gender, number, and case. Note that the verb sum in all the foregoing examples is copulative.

LESSON XXXIII.

INDICATIVE OF SUM. - PREDICATE GENITIVE.

129. The verb sum is conjugated in the Indicative Mode as follows:—

Person.	Present.	Perfect.	Aorist.
Sing. 1	sum, I am.	fuī, I have been.	I was.
2	es, thou art.	fuisti, thou hast been.	Thou wast.
3	est, he is.	fuit, he has been.	He was.
Plur. 1	sŭmus, we are.	fuimus, we have been.	We were.
2	estis, you are.	fuistis, you have been.	You were.
3	sunt, they are. {	fuerunt, they have been.	They were.

2	ěritis, you will be.	fuĕrĭtis, you will have been.
3	ĕrunt, they will be.	fuerint, they will have been.

130. Predicate Genitive.

EXAMPLES.

- haec domus Caesaris est, this house is Caesar's property, or this is Caesar's house.
- 2. haec hostium ĕrant, these things were the enemy's.
- 3. est săpientis, it is the part of a wise man.
- 4. hoc est praeceptoris, this is the business of the instructor.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the noun which the genitive limits is omitted; that these genitives all stand in the predicate after the verb sum, and that the word to be supplied is a general word suggested by the sense. In translating into English, we supply the words part, property, duty, office, business, characteristic, etc. The idiom may be expressed in the following rule:—

PREDICATE GENITIVE.

131. RULE XII.—A noun in the predicate, denoting a different person or thing from the subject, is put in the genitive.

- 1. The predicate genitive occurs most frequently with sum and făcio, and the passives of puto, habeo, and existimo.
- 2. The genitive of Personal Pronouns is never used in this construction; the neuter of the corresponding Possessive Pronoun is used; as,

EXAMPLE.

est tuum (not tuī) vidēre, it is your duty to see.

VOCABULARY.

LESSON XXXIV.

ADJECTIVES. - THIRD DECLENSION.

- 132. Adjectives of the Third Declension are declined like nouns, and may have
  - 1. A different form for each gender in the nominative singular.
  - 2. Two forms, one for the masculine and feminine, and another for the neuter.
  - 3. The same forms for all three genders.
- 133. Adjectives of the Third Declension in -er have three endings in the nominative, and are declined like acer, sharp. The stem ends in -i-.

PARADIGM.

- 134. Decline like acer the following:
  - 1. cěler, cělěris, cělěre, swift.
  - 2. ĕquester, ĕquestris, ĕquestre, equestrian.
  - 3. ălăcer, ălăcris, ălăcre, lively, eager.
- 1. Cěler is the only adjective of this class that keeps the e before the r in the oblique cases. Cěler, when used as an adjective, has the genitive plural in -ium; but as a noun, denoting military rank, it has cělěrum in genitive plural, and cělěre in ablative singular.
- Obs. Note that adjectives ending in -er have -i in the ablative singular of all genders.

135. Adjectives of two endings have -is or -or in the nominative masculine and feminine, and -e or -us in the neuter. They are declined like mītis, mild, and mītior, milder.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Endings enclosed in brackets are rare.

Give the stem of acer. How are adjectives of three endings declined? Give the ablative singular of acer. How are adjectives of two endings declined? Give the ablative singular of mītis. The genitive plural. What is an adjective?

LESSON XXXV.

ADJECTIVES. — THIRD DECLENSION.

136. Adjectives of one ending in the nominative are strictly consonant stems, but they follow in part the declension of vowel stems; that is, they have -i or -e in the ablative singular, -ia in the neuter plural, and -ium in the genitive plural. In other cases they follow the declension of consonant stems. They all end in s, x, l, or r, and are declined like audāx, bold.

PARADIGMS.

Rules for the Oblique Cases of Adjectives of the Third Declension.

ABLATIVE SINGULAR.

137. Most adjectives of the third declension have -i in the ablative singular, but consonant stems have -i when used as adjectives, -e when used as nouns. Participles in -ns, when used as such, or as nouns, regularly have -e; but as adjectives,  $-\bar{i}$ .

GENITIVE AND NEUTER PLURAL.

138. The genitive plural commonly has -ium. Consonant stems have -ium when the stem-characteristic is preceded by a long vowel or by a consonant; -um, when the stem-characteristic is preceded by a short vowel; as, audāx, gen. plur. audācium; dīves, gen. sing. dīvītis, gen. plur. dīvītum; so vētus (vētēris), vētērum; über (übēris), übērum; caelebs, unmarried, caelībum. The neuter plural has -ia; only vētus has vētēra.

Participles have -ium; as, amans, amantium.

- 139. Decline together the following:—
- 1. puella fēlīx, a happy girl. 3. dönum ingēns, a large gift.
- 2. măre ingēns, a vast sea. 4. servus audāx, a bold servant.

 The town is old.
 The women are not happy.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Towards.

What adjectives have but one ending? Are they vowel or consonant stems? Do they increase in the genitive? In what does the ablative singular end? In what does the genitive plural end? Does the ablative always end in -i? Does the genitive plural always have -ium? Explain when they have -i in the ablative, and when -e.

LESSON XXXVI.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

ABLATIVE WITH COMPARATIVES.

140. Adjectives are compared, in Latin as in English, in three ways: 1st. Regularly, i.e., by adding peculiar terminations; 2d. By prefixing the adverbs magis and maxime, more and most; and 3d. Irregularly.

I. Regular Comparison.

141. Adjectives are regularly compared by adding to the stem of the positive, after the final vowel has been dropped, the following endings:—

СОМ	PARATIV	7 E.	su	PERLATIV	E.
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fen.	Neut.
-ior		-ius	-issīmus	-issĭma	-is sim um

EXAMPLES.

Positive.	Stem.	Comparative.	Superlative.
dūrus, hard.	dūro-	dūrior, harder.	dūrissimus, hardest, very hard.
dulcis, sweet.	dulci-	dulcior, sweeter.	dulcissimus, sweetest.
prūdens, sagacious.	prūdent-	prūdentior, more sagacious.	prūdentissimus, most sagacious.
fēlīx, happy.	fēlīc-	felicior, happier.	fēlīcissīmus, happiest.

- 1. Note that the stems are durð, dulcī, prüdent, fēlic; the final vowel disappears before the initial vowel of the suffix.
  - 2. All superlatives are declined like bonus, bona, bonum.
- 3. All comparatives, except plus, are declined like mělior, better.

PARADIGM.

Cases.	Singu	lar.	Plur	al.
Nom.	Masc. & Fem. mělior	Neut. mělius	Masc. & Fem. měliōrēs	Neut. měliōra

Acc. Voc.	měliorem mělior	mělius mělius	měliörēs, -īs měliörēs	měliōra měliōra
ABL.	měliō:		měliöri

Obs. Note that the ablative singular ends in -e or  $-\bar{\imath}$ ; the neuter plural in -a; the accusative plural, masculine and feminine, in  $-\bar{e}s$  or  $-\bar{\imath}s$ ; and the genitive plural in -um, not -ium.

142. The Construction with Comparatives.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. servus est felicior rege, the slave is happier than the king.
- 2. servus est felicior quam¹ rex, the slave is happier than the king.

Obs. In the first example, note that the comparative is followed by the ablative; in the second example, quam, than, is used with the comparative, and the following word is in the same case as the noun preceding the adjective. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ABLATIVE WITH COMPARATIVES.

143. Rule XIII.—The comparative degree is followed by the ablative when quam, than, is omitted.

1. Comparatives with quam are followed (by the nominative, or) by the case of the corresponding noun before them.

EXAMPLES.

- fortiörem vidi nöminem quam Mărium, I have seen no braver man than Marius; or
- Hibernia minor quam Britannia existimătur, Ireland is considered smaller than Britain.
- 144. Model for parsing comparatives and superlatives:—

servus est fēlīcior rēge, the servant is happier than the king: fēlīcior is an adjective in the comparative degree, from the positive fēlīx; stem fēlīc-, comp. fēlīcior, super. fēlīcissīmus. Fēlīcior is an adjective of the third declension, and is declined like mělior, mělius, etc. It is nominative singular masculine, and agrees with servus. Rule VIII.: Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

VOCABULARY.

răpāx, -ācis, ravenous. Cicerō, Cicerōnis, m., Cicero. doctus, -a, -um, learned. grăvis, -e, heavy, severe.

äer, äĕris, M., the air. clārus, -a, -um, clear, famous. vēlōx, gen. vēlōcis, swift. mendāx, -ācis, lying.

SYN. Vulnero, to wound by a cut or thrust; saucio, to wound in any way.

 Lūx est vēlōcior quam sŏnĭtus.
 Rōma clārissĭma³ urbs ĕrat.
 Gallōrum omnium fortissĭmī sunt Belgae.
 Jūra est mons altissĭmus.

Translate into Latin: -

1. The men are happy. 2. We are happier. 3. The soldiers are brave. 4. The brave soldiers are powerful. 5. The soldiers are more powerful. 6. The journey was difficult. 7. Gold is heavier than silver. 8. The servants are very happy. 9. The Romans were braver than the Gauls. 10. Cicero was a very renowned orator. 11. The soldiers are braver than the general.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Quam is a conjunction, and is not inflected; it means than.
- 2. The subject is included in the verb.
- 3. The superlative is not always translated by most; it is sometimes best rendered by very. So the comparative may be translated in various ways; as, audācior, bolder, rather bolder (i.e. bolder than usual), too bold.

In how many ways are adjectives compared? Decline the comparative of potens, altus. To what declension of adjectives do superlatives belong? What is the rule for the agreement of adjectives? By what case is the comparative degree followed?

LESSON XXXVII.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

GENITIVE AND DATIVE WITH ADJECTIVES.

II. Comparison by Adverbs.

145. Adjectives ending in -us preceded by a vowel (except those in -quus) commonly form their comparative and superlative by means of the adverbs magis, more, and maxime, most.

EXAMPLES.

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
ĭdōneus, fit.	măgis idōneus	māximē idoneus
dŭbius, doubtful.	măgis dŭbius	māximē dŭbius
nŏxius, hurtful.	māgis noxius	māxīmē nŏxius

1. Adjectives in -quus form their comparatives and superlatives regularly; as, antīquus, ancient, antīquior, antīquissīmus.

146. Dative with Adjectives.

EXAMPLES.

- victoria Germānorum populo Romāno periculosa est, the victory of the Germans is dangerous to the Roman people.
- 2. puella ĕrat mātri sĭmīlis, the girl was like her mother.
- 3. castrīs Idoneus locus est, the place is suitable for a camp.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note the adjectives periculosa, similis, and idoneus, and that each is construed with the dative. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

DATIVE WITH ADJECTIVES.

- 147. Rule XIV. The dative is used after many adjectives to denote the object to which the quality is directed.
- 1. The adjectives that take the dative are chiefly those signifying useful, pleasant, friendly, fit, like, inclined, ready, easy, clear, equal, and their opposites; also those signifying near; many compounded with con-; and verbals in -bilis.

- 2. Similis and dissimilis take also the genitive, especially of persons, when denoting likeness or unlikeness in Character.
  - GENITIVE WITH ADJECTIVES.

148. Rule XV. — Many adjectives are followed by the genitive to complete their meaning.

1. The adjectives governing the genitive are those denoting desire, knowledge, memory, fulness, mustery, participation, guilt, and their opposites; and verbals in -ax.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. avidus laudis, desirous of praise.
- 2. měmor virtūtis, mindful of virtue.
- 3. belli pěritus, skilled in war.

VOCABULARY.

cārus, -a, -um, dear.
Idōneus, -a, -um, suitable.
Inīmīcus, -a, -um, unfriendly, hostile.

Belgae, -ārum, m. pl., the Belgians. pěrīcŭlōsus, -a. -um, dangerous. ămīcus, -a, -um, friendly. Graecus, -a, -um, Greek.

Syn. Animus, the mind, the soul; mens, thought or intellectual faculty; anima, the life, the vital principle.

How are adjectives compared by means of adverbs? What is an adverb? Compare beautifully. What class of adjectives are followed by the dative? Give the rule.

LESSON XXXVIII.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

III. Irregular and Defective Comparison.

149. Adjectives in -er form their comparative regularly, but their superlative is formed by adding -rimus to the nominative.

EXAMPLES.

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
ācer, sharp.	ācrior	ācerrimus
miser, wretched.	mĭsĕrior	misĕrrimus
cĕler, swift.	cĕlĕrior	cělerrimus
pulcher, beautiful.	pulchrior	pulcherrimus
nĭger, black.	nĭgrior	nigerrimus

- 1. Also větus, old (gen. větěris) has the super. věterrimus.
- 2. The following six adjectives in -ilis, declined like mītis, form their superlative by adding -līmus to the stem, after dropping the final vowel:—

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
făcilis, easy. difficilis, difficult. similis, similar. dissimilis, unlike. grăcilis, slender. hŭmilis, low.	făcilior difficilior similior dissimilior grăcilior hŭmilior	fācillimus difficillimus sĭmillimus dissĭmillimus grācillimus hŭmillimus

3. Compound adjectives ending in -dicus, -ficus, -vŏlus, form their comparatives in -entior, and their superlatives in -entissimus (as if from positives ending in -ens)<sup>1</sup>; as,

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
mălėdicus, slanderous.	mălĕdicentior	mālēdīcentissīmus
běněficus, beneficent.	bĕnĕficentior	bēnēfīcentissīmus
běněvŏlus, benevolent.	bĕnĕvŏlentior	bēnēvŏlentissīmus

NOTE. These comparatives and superlatives are formed as from the participles dicens, saying, făciens, doing, volens, wishing.

4. The following adjectives, in common use, are compared irregularly: —

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
bŏnus, good. mălus, bad. māgnus, great. parvus, small. multus, much. dīves, } rich.	mělior, better. pējor, worse. mājor, greater. minor, less. plūs (neut.), more. dīvītior, } richer.	optimus, best. pessimus, worst. māximus, greatest. minimus, least. plūrimus, most. dīvitissimus, dītissimus,

150. Defective Comparison.

- 1. Seven adjectives have no positive; they are -
  - 1. citerior, citimus, hither, hithermost.
  - 2. dětěrior, děterrimus, worse.
  - 3. interior, intimus, inner, innermost.
  - 4. ōcior, ōcissimus, swifter.
  - 5. prior, prīmus, former, first.
  - 6. propior, proximus, nearer, next.
  - 7. ultĕrior, ultĭmus, farther, farthest.
- 2. The following are irregular in the superlative<sup>1</sup>:—

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.	Meaning.
extěrus	extěrior	extrēmus and extimus	outward.
infěrus	infěrior	infimus and imus	lower.
sŭpěrus	sŭpěrior	suprēmus and summus	upper.
postěrus	postěrior	postrēmus and postūmus	next.

3. The following adjectives are irregular: - jŭ vě nis,¹ young.	<pre>{ jūnior } { mĭnor nātū }</pre>	mĭnĭmus nātū

sěne x , old.	<pre>{ sĕnior } } major nātū {</pre>	māxīmus nātū

151. Compare the following:—

- 1. celer, swift. 4. miser, wretched.
- 2. audāx, bold. 5. ămans, loving.
  - 5. amans, loving. 9. diligens, diligent.

8. lātus, broad.

- 3. fortis, brave. 6. săpiens, wi
- 6. săpiens, wise. 10. bŏnus, good.
  - 7. altus, high.

- Obs. 1. The comparative may be translated in various ways; as, audācior, bolder, rather bold, too bold.
- Obs. 2. The superlative audācissīmus may mean boldest or very bold.
- OBS. 3. The superlative with quam denotes the highest degree possible; as, quam plūrimi, as many as possible; quam maximum, as large as possible.
- Obs. 4. Per in composition with adjectives has the force of very; as, permägnus, very great.

VOCABULARY.

prīmus, -a, -um, first. sõl, sõlis, M., sun. terra, -ae, F., earth. lūna, -ae, F., moon. prŏpior, prŏpius, nearer. citěrior, citěrius, hither. sŭpěrior, sŭpěrius, higher, upper.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. These words are added for convenience of reference; they can be omitted for the present.
  - 2. The summit of the mountain.

How do adjectives ending in -er form their comparatives? How may superlatives be translated? What adjectives form their superlatives like făcilis? What is meant by comparison of adjectives? How many degrees of comparison are there? How is each formed? How declined?

LESSON XXXIX.

USE OF ADVERBS. - FIRST CONJUGATION. PRESENT, IMPERFECT, AND FUTURE PASSIVE.

EXAMPLE.

miles fortiter pugnat, the soldier fights bravely.

Obs. In the foregoing sentence, note that the soldier fights expresses a fact in a general way. We may add a word, and say the soldier fights bravely, we may add a word to bravely, and say the soldiers fight very bravely. Here very modifies bravely; very bravely modifies the predicate. Such words as very and bravely are called Adverbs (ad, to, and verbum, word, or verb). This use of adverbs is expressed in the following rule:—

USE OF ADVERBS.

152. Rule XVI. — Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs.

153. Rule of position:—

The adverb generally precedes the word it limits; but fere usually stands between the adjective and the noun; as, omnes fere homines, almost all men.

Voices of Verbs.

- 154. Transitive verbs have two voices, the Active and the Passive.
  - 1. The active voice shows that the subject is the actor.
  - 2. The passive voice shows that the subject is acted upon.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mägister laudat, the teacher praises.
- 2. discipulus laudātur, the pupil is praised.
- 3. discĭpŭlus laudātus est, the pupil has been praised.

OBS. In the foregoing examples the form of the verb shows whether the subject is the actor, or the thing acted upon. These different forms of the verb are called voice. The passive form in English is compounded, and may be resolved into some form of the verb to be, and the complement, which is the perfect participle of a transitive verb.

155. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Tenses, Indicative Mode, Passive Voice, are formed by adding the verbal endings to the present stem. They are inflected as follows:—

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

			P	RESENT.
Person.	Formation.		nation.	Example.	English.
Sing. 1	Pres.	ster	n + or	ămor	I am loved.
2	"	"	+ ris or re	ămāris, -re	Thou art loved.
3	"	"	+ tur	ămātur	He is loved.
Plur. 1	"	66	+ mur	ămâmur	We are loved.
2	"		+ minī	ămâminī	You are loved.
3	"	"	+ ntur	ămantur	They are loved.
			Im	PERFECT.
Sing. 1	Pres.	sten	ı + bar	ămābar	I was being loved.
2	"	"	+ bāris,-re	ămābāris, -re	Thou wast being loved.
3	"	66	+ bātur	ămābātur	He was being loved.
Plur. 1	66		+ bamur	ămābāmur	We were being loved.
2	66	"	+ bāmini	ămābāminī	You were being loved.
3	"	"	+ bantur	ămābantur	They were being loved.
			F	UTURE.
Sing. 1	Pres.	stem	ı + bor	ămābor	I shall be loved.
2	"	"	+ běris, re	ămāběris, -re	Thou shalt be loved.
3	"	"	+ bĭtur	ămābĭtur	He shall be loved.
Plur. 1	"	"	+ bimur	ămābimur	We shall be loved.
2	"	"	+ biminī	ămābiminī	You shall be loved.
3	"	"	+ buntur	ămābuntur	They shall be loved.

- 156. Analysis of the Present, Imperfect, and Future Passive:—
- 1. Notice that the passive voice of these tenses differs from the same tenses in the active voice only in the endings; as,
- a. Pres. Act. = pres. st. + personal endings; as, ămā + mus, we love. Pres. Pass. = pres. st. + personal endings + passive sign; as, ămā-mu-r, we are loved.

- b. Imperf. Act. = pres. st. + tense sign (-ba-) + personal endings; as, ămā-bā-mus, we were loving. Imperf. Pass. = pres. st. + personal endings + passive sign; as, ămā-bā-mu-r, we were loved.
- c. Future Act. = pres. st. + tense sign (-bi-) + personal endings; as, ămā-bi-mus, we shall love. Future Pass. = pres. st. + personal endings + passive sign; as, ămā-bi-mu-r, we shall be loved. The second person singular future has -bĕ- instead of -bĭ-; as, ămā-bĕ-ris or -re.
- Ons. 1. The passive voice is a reflexive form, made by adding the reflexive stein - $s\ddot{e}$ -(- $sr\ddot{a}$ -) to the active; the s changes to r, except in the second person singular; as,

Sing. 1 amo-s(e) = amo-r Plur. 1 ama-mu(s)-s(e) = amā-mu-r

2 ama-si-s(e) = amā-ri-s 2 - - -

 $3 \text{ ama-tu-s}(e) = \text{am\bar{a}-tu-r}$   $3 \text{ ama-ntu-s}(e) = \text{am\bar{a}-ntu-r}$

Obs. 2. Amor is for ămā-or, same as ămo is for ămā-o.

OBS. 3. The distinction in meaning between the tenses denoting Incomplete action and those denoting Completed action is often obscured in English on account of the want of special forms to express incomplete action in the passive; as, bellum părătur means, not the war is prepared, but the war is preparing, is being prepared. The perfect bellum părătum est means war has been prepared, and so war is prepared (or aorist, war was prepared). Notice the imperfect bellum părābātur, war was preparing, not war was prepared.

VOCABULARY.

culpo, culpāre, culpāvī, culpātum, blame. ŏnus, ŏnĕris, N., burden.

porto, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, carry.

ācrīter, adv., sharply, fiercely. grāvīter, adv., heavily, severely. cĕlĕrīter, adv., quickly. audacter, adv., boldly.

1. We are blamed. 2. They are praised. 3. You were being praised. 4. They will be praised. 5. The girls are called. 6. The boy is calling. 7. The men fight bravely. 8. They will be carried. 9. We were being called. 10. They will be called. 11. He is (being) praised. 12. He was being praised. 13. They blame the Romans severely. 14. They are blamed severely by the Romans.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is meant by voice in grammar? How many voices? Give the meaning of the present passive in Latin. What verbs only can be in the passive voice?

LESSON XL.

ADVERBS.

FORMATION, CLASSIFICATION, AND COMPARISON.

I. Formation of Adverbs.

EXAMPLES.

Adjective.	Stem.	Adverb.
<ol> <li>cārus, dear.</li> <li>dīgnus, worthy.</li> <li>pulcher, beautiful.</li> <li>mĭser, wretched.</li> </ol>	cāro- dīgno- pulchro- mĭsĕro-	cārē, dearly. dignē, worthily. pulchrē, beautifully. mĭsĕrē, wretchedly.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the adjectives are all of the first and second declensions; that the adverbs are formed by changing -o-, the characteristic vowel of the stem, into  $-\bar{e}$ . Hence the rule:—

157. Adverbs are formed from adjectives of the First and Second Declensions by changing the characteristic vowel of the stem to  $-\bar{e}$ .

EXAMPLES.

Adjective.	Stem.	Adverb.
1. fortis, brave. 2. grāvis, heavy.	forti- grăvi-	fortiter, bravely. grăviter, heavily.
<ol> <li>äcer, eager.</li> <li>fĕrōx, wild.</li> <li>săpiēns, wise.</li> <li>prūdēns, prudent.</li> </ol>	ācri- fĕrōc- săpient- prūdent-	ācrīter, eagerly. fērōcīter, wildly. săpienter, wisely. prūdenter, prudently.

Obs. Note (1) that the adjectives are all of the third declension; (2) that 1, 2, 3 add -ter to the stem; (3) that 4 assumes -i-before the suffix -ter; (4) that 5 and 6 end in -ns, gen. -nt-is; (5) that these adjectives drop -t- from the stem before adding -ter. Hence the rule:—

158. Adverbs are formed from adjectives of the third declension by adding -ter to the stem; but stems ending in c, k, or g assume -i- before the suffix -ter, and those in -nt-drop final t of the stem before adding -ter.

159. Some adjectives of the first and second declensions have adverbs in -ter as well as in  $-\bar{e}$ ; as,

Adjective.	Stem.	Adverb.
1. dūrus, severe.	dūro-	dürē and düriter
2. fīrmus, firm.	firmo-	firmē and firmiter
3. largus, bounteous.	largo-	large and largiter
4. hūmānus, courteous.	hümāno-	hūmānē and hūmāniter
5. miser, wretched.	misĕro-	misërë and misëriter

160. The neuter accusative of many adjectives is used as an adverb; neuter comparatives are especially so used.

EXAMPLES.

Adjective.	Accusative.	Adverb.
1. multus, much.	multum	multum
2. făcilis, easy.	făcile	făcile
3. rěcens, late.	rěcens	rĕcens
4. ācer, eager.	ācrius	acrius
5. dulcis, sweet.	dulce	dulce
6. prīmus, first.	prīmum	prīmum

II. Classification of Adverbs.

161. The adverbs enumerated in the foregoing examples denote, for the most part, the manner of the action, and are therefore called adverbs of manner. Adverbs may also denote the time, the place, the degree, or the cause of the action expressed by the verb.

III. Comparison of Adverbs.

- 162. The comparative of adverbs that are regularly compared is the same as the neuter accusative singular of the comparative of adjectives, and consequently ends in -ius.
- 1. The superlative of the adverb is formed from the superlative of the adjective by changing the final vowel of the stem to  $-\bar{e}$ .

Adjectives.	Adverbs.
Positive.	Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
cārus, dear.	cārē	cārius	cārissīmē
miser, wretched.	( mĭsĕrē ( mĭsĕrĭter)	mĭsĕrius	miserrimē
$\mathbf{aud}\mathbf{ar{ax}}$ , $bold$ .	( audācter ( audāciter)	audācius	audācissīmē
lě vi s, light .	lěviter	lěvius	lěvissĭmē
ācer, eager. prūdens, prudent. fēlix, happy.	äcriter prüdenter fēlīciter	ācrīus prūdentius fēlīcĭus	ācerrīmē prūdentissīmē fēlīcissīmē

EXAMPLES.

2. If the adjectives are irregular in their comparison, the adverbs have the same irregularity.

EX.

Adjectives.	Adverbs.
Positive.	Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
bŏnus, good. mălus, bad. multus, much. māgnus, great.	běne măle multum	mělius pējus plūs măgis	optimē pessimē plūrimum māximē

3. A few adverbs not derived from adjectives are compared.

EXAMPLES.

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
diū, for a long time.	diūtius	diūtissīmē
saepe, often.	saepius	saepissīmē

- 4. Form from each of the following adjectives an adverb, and compare it:
  - 1. similis, -e, like.
  - 2. fortis, -e, brave.
  - 3. cěler, -ĕris, -ĕre, quick.
  - 4. grăvis, -e, heavy.
  - 5. liber, -ĕra, -ĕrum, free.
  - 6. amicus, -a, -um, friendly.
- 7. aeger, -gra, -grum, sick.
- 8. amans, gen. -ntis, loving.
- 9. ēlēgāns, gen. -ntis, elegant.
- 10. altus, -a, -um, high, deep.
- 11. cupidus, -a, -um, greedy.
- 12. fěrox, gen. -ocis, fierce.

163. Model for parsing adverbs: —

mulites fortiter pugnant, the soldiers fight bravely: fortiter is an adverb of manner (161), derived from the adjective fortis (157); compared, fortiter, fortius, fortissime (157); of the positive degree, and modifies pugnant, according to Rule XVI.: Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is an adverb? What is the usual position of an adverb in a sentence? (Ans. It stands immediately before the word it limits.) How are adverbs classified? How are adverbs formed from adjectives of the second declension? How from adjectives of the third declension? How are adverbs compared? How are English adverbs formed? Form an adverb from brave; compare it. Write a sentence in English containing an adverb of place; of manner; of degree.

LESSON XLI.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

PERFECT, PLUPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT PASSIVE.

164. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Tenses of the Passive Voice are made up of the Perfect Participle in combination with the forms of sum.

EXAMPLE. - ămāre, to love.

1. The Participial Stem is formed by adding -to, nom. -tus (often changed to -so, nom. -sus), to the present stem.

EXAMPLES.

PRESENT.	PRES. STEM.	PERF. STEM.	PART. STEM.	Nom.
ămo	ămā-	ămāvī-	ămātō-	ămātus
vŏco	vŏcāt-	vŏcāvī-	vŏcāto-	vŏcātus

165. Analysis of the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Passive:—

- 1. The perfect = partic. stem + -s together with sum.
- 2. The pluperfect = partic. stem + -s together with eram.
- 3. The future perf. = partic. stem + -s together with ero.

Obs. 1. The perfect participle has three endings for the three genders, and is declined like bonus; as, ămātus, -a, -um. It must agree, like an adjective, in gender, number, and case, with the subject.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. puer ămătus est, the boy was loved.
- 2. virgo ămāta est, the virgin was loved.
- 3. nomen amatum est, the name was loved.
- 4. pueri amati sunt, the boys were loved.
- 5. virginēs ămātae sunt, the virgins were loved.
- 6. nomina amata sunt, the names were loved.
- Obs. 2. In the foregoing examples, note that the participle agrees with the subject like an adjective.

VOCABULARY.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Written also enuncio.
- 2. Dative case.
- 3. The agrist (perf.) passive.
- 4. Imperfect passive.
- 5. Imperfect active.

From what stem is the perfect passive formed? What are the principal parts of a verb? Mention the three stems. What verbs can have a passive voice? Can they take an object in the passive voice?

LESSON XLII.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

PRESENT, IMPERFECT, AND FUTURE ACTIVE.—ABLATIVE OF AGENT.

166. All verbs whose characteristic vowel before the ending -re in the Present Infinitive is  $\bar{e}$ , belong to the Second Conjugation. Thus —

PRESENT.	Pres. Stem.	Pres. Inf.
mŏneo	mŏnē-	mŏn ē -re
hăbeo	hăb ő -	hăbē-re
terreo	terrē-	terrë-re
tăceo	tăcē-	tăc ē -re

1. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Active are formed by adding the verbal endings to the present stem.

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The personal endings are the same as in the first conjugation; the "connective vowel," or the final vowel of the stem, is  $\tilde{e}$  instead of  $\tilde{a}$ , and is retained in the present tense.]

			P	RESENT.
Person.	Formation.		Example.	English.
Sing. 1	Pres.	sten	1+0	mŏneo	I advise.
2	"	"	+ s	mŏnēs	Thou advisest.
3	"	66	+ t	mŏnet	He advises.
Plur. 1	"	"	+ mus	mŏnēmus	We advise.
2	"	44	+ tis	mŏnētis	You advise.
3	"	"	+ nt	mŏnent	They advise.
Imperfect.
Sing. 1	Pres.	sten	1 + bam	mŏnēbam	I was advising.
2	66	"	+ bās	mŏnēbās	Thou wast advising.
3	44	"	+ bat	mŏnēbat	He was advising.
Plur. 1	"	"	+ bāmus	mŏnēbāmus	We were advising.
2	"	"	+ bātis	mŏnēbātis	You were advising.
3	"	"	+ bant	mŏnēbant	They were advising.
Future.
Sing. 1	Pres.	sten	ı + bo	mŏnēbo	I shall or will advise.
2	"	"	+ bis	mŏnēbis	Thou wilt advise.
3	"	"	+ bit	${ t m}$ ŏ ${ t n}$ ē ${ t b}$ i ${ t t}$	He will advise.
Plur. 1	"	66	+ bimus	mŏnēbimus,	We shall or will advise.
2	"	"	+ bĭtis	mŏnēbitis	You will advise.
3	"	"	+ bunt	mŏnēbunt	They will advise.

a. The verbal endings are the same as in the first conjugation. See 58.1.

167. Ablative of Agent.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. vulněrātus est săgittīs, he was wounded with arrows.
- 2. vulněrātus est ā mīlite, he was wounded by a soldier.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, compare the two ablatives; note that the noun sagittis, which designates the instrument by which the action expressed by the verb is performed, is in the ablative, without a preposition, according to Rule IX. In the second sentence the ablative designates the person, or agent, by which the action expressed by the verb is performed, and it is accompanied by the preposition a or ab. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ABLATIVE OF AGENT.

168. Rule XVII.—The voluntary agent after a passive verb is put in the ablative with  $\bar{a}$  or ab.

VOCABULARY.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is the characteristic vowel of the second conjugation? In what does the present stem end? Analyze the imperfect; i.e., mention the stem, the tense sign, the personal endings.

LESSON XLIII.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

PERFECT, PLUPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE.

- 169. The Perfect Stem of a regular verb of the Second Conjugation may be formed,—
- 1. By adding  $v\bar{v}^1$  to the present stem. (This rule is applicable to but few verbs.)
- 2. By dropping e of the present stem and adding  $u\bar{\imath}$ . This is the more common way of forming the perfect stem of the second conjugation.

EXAMPLES.

Present.	Pres. Stem.	Perf. Stem.	Part. Stem.
dēleo, destroy.	dēlē-	dēlēvī-	dēlēto-
mŏneo, admonish.	mŏnē-	mŏnuī-	monito-

PRINCIPAL PARTS.

Present.	Pres. Inf.	Perfect.	Participle.
dēleo	dēlēre	dēlēvī	dēlētum
mŏneo	mŏnēre	mŏnuī	mŏnĭtum

170. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Tenses are inflected as follows:—

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The personal endings are the same as in the first conjugation; the characteristic vowel of the stem changes from  $\bar{\imath}$  to  $\bar{e}$  in the third person plural of the perfect, to  $\bar{\imath}$  in the first person plural, and to  $\check{e}$  in the pluperfect and future perfect.]

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. The -vi of the perfect stands for fui, perfect of sum; as, ămā-(st. of amo) + fui = perf. ămāfui = ămāui = ămāvi; so dēlē-(st. of dēleo) + fui = dēlēfui = dēlēui = dēlēvi; mon(ē-) + fui = monfui = monui (the final vowel of the stem being dropped); also, doc(e-) fui = docfui = docui. Sometimes the final vowel of the stem is weakened to i and retained in the participial stem; as, moneo, monere. monus. monitum.

2. Some verbs drop the characteristic vowel of the stem and add -si to form the perfect; as,  $aug(\bar{e}-) + s\bar{s} = aug\bar{s} = aux\bar{s}$ ;  $m\bar{a}n(\bar{e}-) + s\bar{s} = mans\bar{s}$ ;  $j\bar{u}b(\bar{e}-) + s\bar{s} = jubs\bar{s} = juss\bar{s}$ ; but indulgeo, indulge, indulgere, indulsī, indultum, where the g as well as the characteristic vowel of the stem is dropped.

How many stems has a verb? How many uses has the perfect? How can you distinguish verbs of the second conjugation? How do verbs of this conjugation form their perfects?

LESSON XLIV.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

PRESENT, IMPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE PASSIVE.

171. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Perfect Indicative Passive are inflected as follows:—

LESSON XLV.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

PERFECT, PLUPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE PASSIVE.

173. The Participial Stem of verbs of the Second Conjugation is formed by adding -to (or -so), nom. -tus (or -sus), to the verb-stem. Some verbs change final  $\bar{e}$  of the present stem to short i in the participial stem; others drop the stem vowel altogether. Many verbs of this conjugation have no participial stem.

- 1. The stem of nouns of the fourth declension ends in -u, which is usually changed to i before -bus. Masculine and feminine nouns form the nominative by adding s; neuters, which are very few, have for the nominative the simple stem lengthened to u.
- 2. The dative and ablative plural of the following words ends in -ūbus: artus, joint, partus, child-birth, portus, harbor, trībus, tribe, vĕru; and also of words of two syllables in -cus, as lăcus.
- 3. A few nouns of the fourth declension are feminine; as, domus, house, Idüs (pl), Ides, manus, hand, acus, needle, and some others.
- 4. Carefully distinguish the fourth from the second declension:—
  - (1) A noun with nominative in -us and genitive in -ī is of the second declension.
  - (2) A noun with nominative in -us and genitive in -ūs is of the fourth declension.

- 1. Only two nouns of the fifth declension are masculine: dies, a day, měrīdies, midday; though dies is sometimes feminine in the singular, especially when it means a fixed time.
- 2. Only two nouns of this declension are declined throughout the plural; they are dies and res. In some words, only the nominative, accusative, and vocative plural are used; others want the plural entirely.

3. The stem of nouns of this declension ends in  $-\bar{e}$ , which appears in all the cases, but it is generally shortened in the ending  $-\bar{e}i$  when preceded by a consonant, and also in the ending -em.

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The characteristic vowel of the present stem changes to i, u, etc., in the inflection of the verb. The personal endings and tense signs are the same as in the first conjugation, except those of the future, where the characteristic vowel changes to  $\bar{a}$  or  $\hat{e}$  before the personal endings.]

Obs. In the formation of the tenses, note that the future of the first and second conjugations always has the tense sign -bi; the i disappears before o (as,  $\underline{\mathtt{Amabio}} = \underline{\mathtt{Amabo}}$ ), and becomes u in the third person plural. The future of the third conjugation consists of the present stem (the characteristic vowel being lengthened) and the personal endings; i becomes e in the second and third persons singular, and in the plural.

- 1. We write, we were writing, we shall write. 2. He reads, he was reading, he will read. 3. We send, we were sending, we shall send. 4. The queen writes a book.
- 5. Friends will send books. 6. The boys were writing.
- 7. They had called a slave. 8. Cæsar hastens into Gaul.
- 9. The Romans are carrying on war with the Gauls. 10. We read, they write. 11. We draw up the line of battle, we were drawing up the line of battle.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. For words not given in the special vocabularies, look in the general vocabulary at the end of the book.
  - 2. By long marches.

Define sentence. What are the essential parts of a sentence? Mention the personal endings of the present, of the imperfect, of the future indicative.

LESSON XLIX.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

PERFECT, PLUPERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE.

177. The Perfect Stem of verbs of the third conjugation is regularly formed by adding  $-s\bar{\imath}$  to the verb-stem.

EXAMPLES.

Pres. Ind.	Pres. Inf.	Verb-Stem.	Perfect Stem.
rěgo	rěg-ěre	rĕg- {	rěg + sī = rēgsi (see 18) = rēxī
scrībo	scrīb-ěre	scrīb- {	scrīb + sī = scrībsi (see 20) = scrīpsī

1. The Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Indicative Active are inflected as follows:—

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The personal endings are the same as in the first and second conjugations. Note the change of the characteristic vowel of the stem to short i, to long e, and then to short e.]

2	"	" + riti	is	rēx	ěr itis	You 1	vill have ruled.
3		" $+ rin$	t	rēx	ěrint	They	will have ruled.

178. Formation of the Perfect Stem.

1. The perfect stem of the third conjugation is regularly formed by adding -sī to the verb-stem.

- 2. Some verbs have a reduplicated perfect; i.e., the first consonant of the word is prefixed with a vowel, generally  $\check{e}$ .
- Obs. 1. Compound verbs omit the reduplication, except do, sto, disco, and posco, sometimes curro.

EXAMPLE.

Present. Pres. Inf. Perfect. Participle. cădo, fall. căděre cěcidí cāsum

Obs. 2. The vowel of the stem is often weakened to i, and before r to  $\check{\epsilon}$ ; in the example above  $\check{a}$  is weakened to  $\check{\epsilon}$ .

Obs. 3. Sometimes the reduplication has been lost.

EXAMPLE.

findo, split. findere fidi (which stands for fifidi).

3. The stem vowel is sometimes lengthened.

EXAMPLES.

ăgo, do, ăgĕre ēgī ĕmo, buy, ĕmĕre ēmī

4. The perfect stem has sometimes the same form as the present stem, with i added.

EXAMPLES.

ru-o ru-ĕre ruī vert-o vert-ĕre vertī

5. Sometimes the vowel of the stem is transposed and lengthened.

EXAMPLE.

cer-no cer-něre crē-vī crē-tum

- 6. Stems of the third conjugation, like those of the third declension, are divided, according to their final consonant, into:—
  - I. LABIAL STEMS, p, b, m: as, carp-o, pluck, carp-sī; scrīb-o, write, scrip-sī; prēm-o, pluck, pres-sī.
  - II. Dental Stems, t, d, s, n, (s): as, mit-to, send, mī-sī; claud-o, clau-sī; cēd-o, ces-sī.
  - III. LINGUAL STEMS, r, l: as, gĕr-o, ges-sī; vel-lo, tear, vel-lī (vulsī).
  - IV. GUTTURAL STEMS, c, qu, k, g, h: as, dīc-o, say, dix-ī; coqu-o, cook, cox-ī; ping-o, paint, pinx-ī; trăh-o, draw, trăx-ī.
    - v. u-Stems: as, minu-o, lessen, minu-i.

179. Laws of Euphony: -

1. b is changed to p before s.

EXAMPLES.

scrībo, write, perf. (scribsi) = scripsī. nūbo, marry (of woman), perf. (nubsi) = nupsī.

2. t and d are dropped before s, or become with s, ss.

EXAMPLES.

```
mitto, send, perf. (mittsī) = mīsī. claudo, shut, " (claudsī) = clausī. laedo, injure, " (laedsī) = laesī. cēdo, yield, " (cedsī) = cessī.
```

3. c, q, qu, h, with s, become x.

EXAMPLES.

```
dīco, say, perf. (dicsi) = dixī.
jungo, join, " (jungsi) = junxī.
coquo, cook, " (coqusi) = coxī.
trăho, draw, " (trahsi) = trăxī.
```

4. Verbs whose stems end in l, m, n, or r, and a few others, form their perfects in  $-u\bar{\imath}$ ; those whose stems end in a vowel form their perfects in  $-v\bar{\imath}$  ( $-\bar{u}v\bar{\imath}$ ,  $-\bar{e}v\bar{\imath}$ ,  $-\bar{i}v\bar{\imath}$ ).

EXAMPLES.

cŏlo	cŏlĕre	cŏluī, cultivate.
ălo	ălĕre	ăluf, nourish.
sĕro	sĕrĕre	sĕruī, connect.
frěmo	frěměre	frěmuĭ, rage.
pōno	pōněre	pŏsuī, place.
pāsco (v. st. pā-)	pascěre	pāvī, feed.
cerno	cerněre	crēvī (178. 5), decide.
cŭpio	cŭpěre	cupivi, desire.

VOCABULARY.

rĕgo	regëre	rēxī, rule.
carpo	carpĕre	carpsī, pluck.
đũco	dūcĕre	dūzī, lead.
pingo	pingĕre	pinzī, paint.
necto	nectĕre	nēxī, or nēxuī, tie.
n ūbo	nüběre	nupsī, marry (said of a woman).
ascendo 1	ascenděre	ascendi, ascend.

EXERCISES.

Form the perfect of the following verbs, and account for the euphonic changes:—

- 1. dimitto. dismiss.
- 2. contendo, hasten.
- 3. cingo, surround.
- 4. duco, lead.
- 5. těgo, cover.
- 6. lüdo, play.
- 7. tango,2 touch.

- 8. dico, say, tell.
- 9. vinco, conquer.
- 10. dēlīgo, select.
- 11. trăho, draw.
- 12. defendo, defend.
- 13. claudo, shut.
- 14. frango,8 break.

He hastened into Gaul.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Stems ending in -nd form the perfect by adding -i, not -si.
- 2. tango: verb-stem tag-, present stem tang-, present tango, infinitive tangère, perfect tětīgī.
  - 3. The verb-stem is frag-, the present stem frang-, perfect fregi.
  - 4. Why ablative?
- 5. When the object consists of two or more nouns joined by et, and, both must be in the accusative.
- 6. When the subject consists of more than one noun joined by et, and, the verb must be plural.

How is the perfect stem of the third conjugation regularly formed? How are stems of the third conjugation classified?

LESSON L.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

PRESENT, IMPERFECT, AND FUTURE INDICATIVE PASSIVE. - ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT.

180. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative Passive are inflected as follows:—

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The personal endings and tense signs are the same as in the first and second conjugations, except in the future, where the vowel changes to a, and then to  $\bar{e}$ , as in the future active.]

			$\mathbf{P}_{\mathbf{R}}$	ESENT.

2	"	"	+ mĭnī	rĕgēmĭnī	You will be ruled.
3	"	"	+ ntur	regentur	They will be ruled

1. Note the change in the present of short e to i, and in the third person plural to u. In the imperfect the characteristic is long e; in the future a, which changes to  $\bar{e}$ .

ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT.

181. Rule XVIII.—The ablative is used to denote accompaniment, usually with the preposition cum.

1. Note that with, when it means together with or in company with, is translated by cum with the ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mitto servum cum puĕrō, I send a slave WITH A BOY.
- nostri ĕquitēs cum funditōribus săgittāriisque flümen transgressi sunt, our cavalry crossed the river with the slingers and archers.
- 2. Carefully distinguish this construction from the instrumental ablative, which shows with what or by what an action is done.

EXAMPLE.

puer vulněrātus est săgittīs, the boy was wounded with (by) arrows.

VOCABULARY.

PRESENT.	PRES. INF.	Perfect.	Participle.
cingo	cingĕre	cinxi	cinctum, surround.
frango	frangere	frēgī	fractum, break.
occīdo	occīdĕre	occīdī	occīsum, $kill$ .
dīvĭdo	dīv ĭdĕre	dīvīsī	dīvīsum, divide.
dīlĭgo	dīlĭgĕre	dīlēxī	dilectum, love.
đ ē lĭgo	đēlĭgĕr e	đēlēgī	dēlectum, select.
dēfendo	dēfendĕre	dēfendī	dēfensum, defend.
vinco	vincĕre	vīcī	victum, conquer.
vīvo	vī vĕre	vīxī	victum, live.
laedo	laedĕre	laesī	laesum, hurt.
flecto	flectěre	flēxī	flēxum, bend.
mergo	mergĕr e	mersī	mersum, $dip$ .

Obs. Form the perfect of each verb, and account for the euphonic changes.

183. Euphonic changes: —

1. g, qu, h become c before t.

EXAMPLES.

rěgo, rule, part. stem (regtus) = rectus, -a, -um cŏquo, cook, " (coqutus) = coctus, -a, -um trăho, draw, " (trăhtus) = tractus, -a, -um

II. b becomes p before t.

EXAMPLES.

F N.

scrībo, write, partic. stem (scrībtus) = scriptus, -a, -um nūbo, marry, " " (nubtus) = nuptus, -a, -um

III. d and t are dropped before the t of the participial stem. which is then changed to s.

EXAMPLES.

laedo, injure, partic. stem (laedtus) = laesus, -a, -um claudo, shut, " " (claudtus) = clausus, -a, -um flecto, bend, " " {flecttus} - flexus, -a, -um rv. In some cases, but rarely, the d or t of the stem becomes s.

EXAMPLES.

cēdo, yield, partic. stem (cedtus) = cessus, -a, -um mitto, send, " (mittus) = missus, -a, -um

v. b is sometimes assimilated, and tt becomes ss or s.

EXAMPLE.

jŭbeo, command, partic. st. (jŭbtus = jut-tus) = jussus, -a, -um

vi. Verbs with present stem ending in ll, rr, change the participial suffix -t- to -s-, and drop l or r of the stem.

EXAMPLES.

fallo, deceive, partic. st. (falltus = falsus) = falsus, -a, -um curro, run, " (currtus = cur-sus) = cursus, -a, -um

NOTE 1. The verb-stem is fal-; fallo = falio (faljo); cur-, curio (curjo).

NOTE 2. In enumerating the principal parts of the verb, we give the neuter of the perfect participle.

EXAMPLES.

Pres. Ind. Pres. Inf. Perf. Ind. Participle.
dico dic-ere dixi dictum

Learn the principal parts of the following verbs, and account for the euphonic changes:—

vīvo	vīvěre	vīxī	victum, live.
dūco	dūcĕre	dūxī	ductum, lead.
dīvĭdo	dīvidĕre	dīvīsī	dīvīsum, divide.
lūdo	lūděre	lüsī	lūsum, play.
căno	cănĕre	cĕcĭnī	, sing.
lĕgo	lĕgĕre	lēgī	lectum, read.

184. Two Accusatives with one Verb.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Caesărem sententiam rogāvit, he asked Cæsar (his) opinion.
- Caesar Aeduös frümentum flägitävit, Cæsar demanded corn of the Ædui.
- Titus rēgem sermönem cēlāvit, Titus concealed the conversation from the king.
- Caesar sententiam ā consŭle rogātus est, Cæsar was asked his opinion by the consul.
- 5. pācem ab Romānīs pětit, he seeks peace from the Romans.

Obs. Note that in Exs. 1, 2, and 3 the verbs of asking, demanding, concealing, are in the active voice, and are followed by two accusatives, one of the person, the other of the thing. In Ex. 4 the verb of asking is in the passive voice, and the accusative of the person in the active becomes the subject in the passive. In Ex. 5 the person after a verb of asking (petit) is put in the ablative with a preposition. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

TWO ACCUSATIVES. - PERSON AND THING.

185. Rule XIX.—Verbs of asking, demanding, teaching, and concealing take two accusatives, one of the person and the other of the thing.

- 1. The accusative of the thing may remain with the passive voice of verbs of teaching, and also with rogo.
- 2. Pĕto and postŭlo generally take the accusative of the thing and the ablative of the person with ā or ab; quaero, the accusative of the thing and the ablative of the person with ē, ex, ā, ab, or de.

SYN. Pěto, to beg, rogo, to ask, are general terms for either a request or a demand; postulo, to demand as a right; flägito, to demand with earnestness; posco, to ask as a right, as a price, or salary.

- 2. Dative after cārī.
- 3. Masculine by preference.

LESSON LII.

FOURTH CONJUGATION.

PRESENT, IMPERFECT, AND FUTURE INDICATIVE ACTIVE. — ACCUSATIVE OF THE SAME PERSON.

186. The Fourth Conjugation includes all verbs that have i long before -re in the present infinitive. The present stem is found by dropping -re of the present infinitive.

EXAMPLE.

Pres. Ind. audio, hear.

Pres. Inf. audīre Pres. Stem. audī1. The Present, Imperfect, and Future Tenses, Indicative Active, are formed by adding the verbal endings to the present stem.

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

[The personal endings and the tense signs are the same as in the first and second conjugations, except in the future, where the characteristic vowel of the stem becomes a or  $\bar{e}$ . The third person plural indicative is audiunt, not audi-nt.]

Present.
Person.	1	forma	tion.	Example.	English.
Sing. 1	Pres.	stem	+ 0	audio	I hear.
2	"	"	+ s	audīs	Thou hearest.
3	"	"	+ t	audit	He hears.
Plur. 1	"	"	+ mus	audīmus	We hear.
2	"	"	+ tis	audītis	You hear.

Sing. 1	Pres.	stem	+ bam	audiēbam	I was hearing.
2	"	"	+ bās	audiēbās	Thou wast hearing.
3	"	"	+ bat	audiēbat	He was hearing.
Plur. 1	66	"	+ bamus	audiēbāmus	We were hearing.
2	66	"	+ bātis	audiēbātis	You were hearing.
3	"	"	+ bant	audiēbant	They were hearing.
			Fu	TURE.
Sing. 1	Pres.	stem	+ m	audiam	I shall or will hear.
2	66	"	+ s	audiēs	Thou wilt hear.
3	"	"	+ t	audiet	He will hear.
Plur. 1	"	"	+ mus	audiēmus	We shall or will hear.
2	"	"	+ tis	audiētis	You will hear.
3	"	"	+ nt	audient	They will hear.

187. Two Accusatives of the Same Person.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Caesărem consulem creaverunt, they elected Caesar consul.
- consules creantur Caesar et Servilius, Caesar and Servilius are elected consuls.
- 3. Romulus urbem Romam vocāvit, Romulus called the city Rome.
- urbs Roma ā Romulo vocāta est.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the verbs of electing, calling, choosing, making, etc., are followed by two accusatives of the same person or thing; one accusative is the direct object of the verb, and the other is an essential part of the predicate, and is called the Predicate Accusative. (In Exs. 2 and 4 consules and Roma are predicate nominatives after creantur and vocata est.) The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

TWO ACCUSATIVES OF THE SAME PERSON OR THING.

188. Rule XX.—Verbs of naming, calling, choosing, making, reckoning, regarding, esteeming, showing, and the like, take two accusatives of the same person or thing.

VOCABULARY.

Form the infinitives of the following verbs of the fourth conjugation:—

1. mūnio, fortify.

4. pūnio, punish.

2. věnio, come.

5. dormio, sleep.

3. ērŭdio, educate.

6. finio, finish.

- 2. Synopsis of Rules for Forming the Perfect Stem: -
- 1. Most Vowel Stems (55.3) form the perfect stem by adding  $-v\bar{\imath}$  ( $-u\bar{\imath}$ ) to the characteristic vowel of the present stem: as, amo, amavī; dēleo, dēlēvī; moneo, monuī; audio, audīvī.
- 2. Most Consonant Stems form the perfect stem by adding -sī to the verb-stem: as, dūco, dūxī; těgo, tēxī.
- 3. Many Labial and Lingual Stems, and a few others, form the perfect stem by adding -ui to the verb-stem: as, domo, domui; alo, alui; těneo, těnui.
- 4. A few Consonant Stems form the perfect stem simply by adding -I to the verb-stem (this is the case when the stem vowel is long by nature or by position): as, accendo, accendI; verto, vertI; prě-hendo, prě-hendI.
- 5. The Perfect Stem is sometimes formed by reduplication and by adding  $\bar{a}$  to the verb-stem (the stem vowel a is generally weakened to i, but before r to e): as, cădo, căcidī; tondeo, tŏtondī; căno, căcinī; părio, pēpērī.
- 6. Some verbs lengthen the stem vowel and add to form the perfect (that is, the reduplication disappears and the vowel is lengthened): as, lego (16-11gI = 16-1g-I = 18gI), legI; facto (f6-f1c-I = f8-Ic-I = f8cI), f8cI; capio, cepI; ago, egI.

Obs. The v is often dropped and the syllable contracted; as, ma(v) or ma(v) and ma(v) and ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma(v) and ma(v) are ma

190. Subjective, Possessive, and Objective Genitives.

- 1. oppidum Rēmorum, a town of (i.e., belonging to) the Remi.
- 2. Divitiaci studium, the zeal of Divitiacus (i.e., the zeal that Divitiacus manifests).
- 3. amor gloriae, love of glory (i.e., a desire to obtain glory).
- 4. timor hostium crescit, fear of the enemy (i.e., fear towards the enemy, not fear experienced by the enemy) increases.

Obs. In the first example, note that the genitive designates the possessor; it is called the possessive genitive. In Ex. 2 the genitive designates the subject or agent of the action or feeling; it is called the subjective genitive. In Exs. 3 and 4 the genitive designates the object towards which the action or feeling is directed; it is called the objective genitive. Hence the qualifying genitive may be—

- 1. A Possessive Genitive, denoting the author or the possessor; as, Caesaris provincia, Cæsar's province.
- 2. A SUBJECTIVE GENITIVE, denoting the subject or agent of the action or feeling; as, amor Del, the love of God (i.e., the love which He feels).
- 3. An Objective Genitive, denoting the object of the action or feeling; as, amor Del, love to (i.e., towards) God.

192. Dative with Intransitive Verbs.

EXAMPLES.

- hace sententia puero placet, illa displacet, this opinion pleases the boy, that displeases (him).
- 2. mīlitis est ducī pārēre, it is the duty of a soldier to obey the leader.
- 3. fortuna favet fortibus, fortune favors the brave.

Obs. We have already learned that the dative is the case of the indirect object, and is used to express the person or thing to or for whom or which anything is done. In the sentence, I send the book to the boy, boy in Latin must be in the dative, as mitto librum puero; but in the sentence Casar comes to the city, city in Latin is not dative, — a preposition must be used, as Caesar ad urbem venit. In the foregoing examples, note that the verbs are intransitive; that they signify to favor, to please, to obey, etc.; that they are followed by the dative generally without the sign to or for. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

DATIVE WITH INTRANSITIVE VERBS.

- 193. RULE XXI.—The dative of the indirect object may be used with most intransitive verbs signifying to favor, please, trust, assist, and their contraries; also, to believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, spare, pardon, be angry.
- 1. Some verbs which, from their signification, might be included in the foregoing lists are transitive, and take the accusative; as, jūvo, adjūvo, to help, laedo, to injure, dēlecto, to delight, offendo, to offend, and jūbeo, to command.
- 2. Verbs compounded with sătis, běne, măle, take the dative.

EXAMPLE.

illis sătisfăcere, to satisfy them, lit. to do enough for them.

2. The Participial Stem of verbs of all four conjugations is generally formed by adding -to (euphonically -so), nom. -tus (or -sus), to the present stem.

195. Accusative and Ablative of Time.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. prīmo anno occīsus est, he was killed in the first year.
- 2. multõs annos mănēbit, he will remain many years.

Obs. In Ex. 1 note that anno answers the question when? within what time? In Ex. 2 annos answers the question how long? This Latin idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ACCUSATIVE AND ABLATIVE OF TIME.

196. Rule XXII.—Time when, or within which, is put in the ablative; time how long, in the accusative.

1. The use of the preposition in with the ablative, and per with the accusative, in order to express the time with greater precision, is common.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. in diebus proximis decem, within the next ten days.
- per annös viginti certätum est, the war was waged FOR twenty years.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Written also conficiabant.

When does a verb in -io keep the i? What is the verb-stem of capio? Ans. The verb-stem of capio is cap; the present stem is formed by adding -i (= jo = io) to the verb-stem. Inflect the present of capio; of jaoio. The compounds of jacio are written and pronounced as follows: (ex + jaoio) = 6ioio, pronounced as if written -5-yioio; so also abloio (=ab + jaoio) = abyloio, etc.

LESSON LVII.

USES OF THE DATIVE.

DATIVE OF INTEREST, - DATIVE OF PURPOSE.

Obs. We have learned that the dative may be used with transitive or intransitive verbs; the datives with these verbs are essential to the completion of the sense, and are usually so closely connected with their verbs that they could not be omitted. The dative is often merely added to a sentence, which would make complete sense without it, for the purpose of designating the person or thing interested in the action of the verb, or affected by it. This use of the dative, called dative of interest, may be stated as follows:—

198. Dative of Interest.

- 1. The dative of advantage and disadvantage.
- 2. The dative of possessor.
- 3. The dative of apparent agent with perfect participles and gerundives (this dative designates the person interested in doing the action, and not merely the agent).
- 4. The dative of reference (this dative depends not on a single word, but is loosely connected with the whole predicate, and merely designates the person or thing with reference to whom or which the action is done).
- 5. The dative used where the English idiom would lead us to expect the genitive.
- 6. The dative of purpose or end, denoting the object or end for which something is or is done.

DATIVE OF PURPOSE OR END.

199. Rule XXIII.—The dative is used with sum and a few other verbs to denote the purpose or end, usually with another dative of the person or thing affected or interested.

EXAMPLES.

- domus dominis aedificata est, non muribus, a house is built for its owners, not for the mice. (See 198.1.)
- 2. mini est amicus, I have a friend, lit. there is a friend to me (emphasizes the fact of possession; see 198. 2).
- 3. vīrtūs nobis colenda est, we have virtue to cultivate. (198.3.)
- 4. těgimenta găleis milités făcere jübet, he orders the soldiers to make coverings for their helmets. Găleis depends on těgimenta făcere rather than on făcere alone. (See 198. 4.)
- 5. lēgātī Caesarī ad pēdēs prolotunt, the ambassadors threw themselves at Cæsar's feet, lit. to Cæsar at his feet. (198. 5.)
- sānāvit mihi filium, he cured my son, out of regard to me;
   sānāvit filium meum, he cured my son, not caring whose son. (See 198. 5.)

- māgnō ūsuī nostrīs fuit, it was of great service to our men. (See 198. 6.)
- 8. tertiam ăciem nostrīs subsīdiō mīsit, he sent the third line as a relief to our men. (See 198. 6.)

OBS. Note that the dative of purpose takes the place of the complement, i.e., it is a predicate dative. The two datives (purpose with another dative) occur after only a few verbs, such as esse and verbs of giving, coming, sending, leaving, and a few others.

LESSON LVIII.

PREPOSITIONS.

- 200. Prepositions show the Relation between a Noun or Pronoun and some other word.
  - 1. Twenty-six prepositions are followed by the accusative:
  - 1. ad, to, towards, at (opposite of ab).
  - 2. adversus, -um, against, towards.
  - 3. ante, before.
  - 4. spud (chiefly of persons), near, at, with, at the house of, in the writings of.
- circā, -um, -iter, around, about (circiter is used chiefly with numerals).
- 6. cis, citra, on this side.
- 7. contrā, against.
- 8. ergā, towards (usually of friendly relations).

- 9. extră, outside, beyond.
- 10. infrā, below, under.
- 11. inter, between, among.
- 12, intrā, within.
- 13. juxtā, next to.
- 14. ob, for, on account of.
- 15. penes, in the power of.
- 16. per, through, by the aid of.
- 17. pone, behind.
- 18. post, behind, after, since.

- 19. praeter, past, besides.
- 20. prope, near.
- 21. propter, on account of.
- 22. sĕcundum, following, after, according to.
- 23. suprā, above.
- 24. trans, across, on the other side.
- 25. ultrā, beyond.
- 26. versus, towards (placed after noun).
- 2. Ten prepositions are followed by the ablative:
  - 1. ā, ab, abs, from, after, by.
  - 2. absque, but, for, without (rare in classic authors).
  - 3. coram, in presence of.
  - 4. cum, with.
  - 5. de, down from, from, concerning.
- 6. ē, ex, out of, from.
- 7. prae, before, in comparison with.
- 8. pro, before, for, instead of.
  - 9. sine, without.
- 10. těnus, up to, as far as (sometimes with genitive).
- 3. The following four prepositions are followed by the accusative when motion to a place is implied; by the ablative when rest in a place is implied:
  - in, denoting motion to a place, INTO with accusative; rest in a place, IN with ablative.
  - sub, denoting motion to a place, UNDER with accusative; rest in a place, UNDER with ablative.
  - super, denoting motion to a place, ABOVE with accusative; rest in a place, ABOVE with ablative.
  - supter (subter), denoting motion to a place, UNDER with accusative; rest in a place, UNDER with ablative.
- Obs. 1. Tĕnus (with abl.), like versus (with acc.), is placed after its case; and cum is annexed to the ablative of the personal and relative pronouns.
- Obs. 2.  $\overline{\mathbf{A}}$  and  $\overline{\mathbf{s}}$  are used before consonants;  $\mathbf{ab}$  and  $\mathbf{ex}$  before vowels and consonants.
  - 201. The Use of Prepositions.

We have learned (81. N. 2) that a preposition with its object is a prepositional phrase (or adjunct). Such a phrase enables us to express an idea more distinctly: as, Casar came there; if we substitute into Gaul for there, the sentence reads Casar came into Gaul, expressing the thought with greater precision than with the adverbalone. The preposition with its object, into Gaul, or in Galliam, is a phrase modifying the verb.

The pupil should gradually commit the lists of prepositions to memory.

202. Dative with Verbs Compounded with a Preposition.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. dux suis militibus ădĕrat, the leader was assisting his soldiers.
- 2. Caesar Galliae praefuit, Cæsar ruled over Gaul.
- 3. Caesar interfuit pugnae, Caesar was present in the battle.

Obs. Verbs compounded with certain prepositions govern the dative, when they acquire a meaning from the preposition which calls for the dative. When the simple verb is transitive, the compound may take both the dative and the accusative: as, jungëre, to join, takes the accusative; but adjungëre, to join to, takes the dative also; when the verb is intransitive, it takes the dative only. Hence the following rule:—

DATIVE WITH COMPOUNDS.

203. Rule XXIV.—The dative of the indirect object is used with many verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, pro, sub, and super. and sometimes circum.

VOCABULARY.

Aquitania, F., Aquitania, a province in Southern Gaul.
Pyrenael, -ōrum, M. Pl., the Pyrenees. pertineo, pertinere, pertinui, stretch.
specto, spectare, spectavi, spectatum, look at.
septentriones, -ōnum, M., the north.
divido, dividere, divisi, divisum, separate, divide.
dives, -itis, rich.
incolo, -colere, -colui, —, inhabit, dwell.
contendo, contendere, contendi, contentum, contend, hasten.
pervenio, pervenire, perveni, perventum, arrive at.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: --

- 1. Aquītānia ā Gărumnā flūmine<sup>3</sup> ad Pyrenaeos pertinet.
- 2. Apud Helvētiōs nōbilissimus et dītissimus fuit Orgětŏrix.
- 3. Gallōs ab Aquītānīs Gărumna flūmen dīvidit. 4. Germānī trans Rhēnum incolunt. 5. Spectat inter occāsum solis et septentrionēs Aquītānia. 6. Caesar hībernīs Lābiēnum praeposuit. 7. Belgae ad inferiorem partem flūminis Rhēnī pertinent. 8. Caesar in Itāliam māgnīs itinerībus contendit. 9. Apud 6 Ciceronem legimus. 10. Mīlītēs omnēs in oppidum irrumpunt.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Commit to memory the prepositions that always require the ablative.
  - 2. No participial stem.
  - 3. How is flumine parsed?
  - 4. Subject of spectat.
  - 5. Why ablative?
- 6. Apud is used with names of authors (instead of in, with the name of the work). Translate, we read in Cicero.
- 7. Most of the prepositions enumerated above are often used as prefixes in composition with verbs, and modify their meaning: as, pōnĕre, to place; post-pōnĕre, to place after. A few prepositions are never used alone, but always occur in composition:—

amb-, round, about; as, ambire, to walk around.

con-, together; as, conjungere, to join together.

dī-, dis-, asunder; as, discēdere, to depart.

in-, with adjectives and verbs, means not, un-; as indoctus, unlearned; I-gnosco not to know.

re- or red-, back, again; as, reficere, to make again, refit.

sē-, aside; as sēdūcere, to lead astray.

vē-, not (serves to negative the positive idea in the word with which it is compounded, or intensifies it); vēgrandis, not large.

When do in and sub require the accusative? How does the use of a differ from ab? When is to the sign of the dative? When must it be translated by ad?

LESSON LIX.

CLASSES OF CONJUNCTIONS.

- 204. Conjunctions connect words, phrases, or clauses; they are divided into two general classes, Coördinate and Subordinate.
- 1. Coördinate Conjunctions connect words, phrases, or clauses of the same rank.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. luna et stella fulgebant, the moon and the stars were skining.
- puĕrī stŭdent et puellae lūdunt, the boys study and the girls play.
- 3. pueri puellaeque ludunt, the boys and the girls are playing.
- 4. mllites atque imperator, the soldiers and the commander too.

I. Coördinate Conjunctions.

205. The Coördinate Conjunctions comprise —

1. Copulative Conjunctions, denoting union: as, et, and; -que (enclitic), and; atque, and; ao, and; et...et, both...and; nec, neque, and not; neque...neque, nec...neo, neither...nor.

EXAMPLE.

His father is dead, and his friends have deserted him.

2. Disjunctive Conjunctions, denoting separation: as, aut, vel, or; aut...aut. vel...vel, either ... or.

EXAMPLE.

Either his father is dead or his friends have deserted him.

3. Adversative Conjunctions, denoting opposition: as, sed, autem, vērum, vērō, but; at, but, on the contrary.

EXAMPLE.

His father has abandoned him, but his friends have not.

4. Illative (inferential or conclusive) Conjunctions, denoting inference: as, ergō, igitur, itaque, therefore.

EXAMPLE.

His father has abandoned him, therefore his friends will.

5. Causal Conjunctions, denoting cause: as, nam, namque, ënim, ëtënim, for.

EXAMPLE.

His friends will abandon him, for his father has done so.

II. Subordinate Conjunctions.

Obs. A subordinate clause is so united to another clause (or clauses) as to be dependent on it; as, the messenger departed when he was sent. Here the messenger departed is the principal, or leading clause; when he was sent modifies departed, and is the subordinate clause. Dependent clauses perform the office of a noun, an adjective, or an adverb, and hence are called noun, adjective, or adverb clauses; they are often named from the subordinate conjunctions by which they are introduced. (See 317.)

206. The Subordinate Conjunctions comprise —

- 1. Temporal, denoting time; as, cum, when.
- 2. Comparative, denoting comparison; as, quam, vělut, as, just as.
- 3. Conditional, denoting condition; as, sī, if.
- 4. Concessive, denoting concession; as, licet, although.
- 5. Final, denoting purpose or end; as, ut, ne, that, that not.
- 6. Consecutive, denoting consequence or result; as, quin, so that not; ut, so that.
  - 7. Causal, denoting cause; as, quid, quod, quoniam, because.
- 8. Interrogative, used in asking questions: as, -ne (enclitic), nonne, num, whether; an, or; annon, or not.

Obs. 1. Of the three words meaning and -

a. et connects independent words and clauses, as in Exs. 1, 2.

de (enclitic) connects words or clauses that are to be considered together, or as a whole, as in Ex. 3.

- c. atque (ad, in addition to, and que, and), and also, indicates that the second word is more important than the first, as in Ex. 4.
- Obs. 2. Most of the causal conjunctions are subordinate.

207. Model for Parsing a Conjunction: —

In Ex. 1 et is a coördinate conjunction, and connects the compound subject luna and stella. Hence the following rule:—

208. Rule XXV. — Conjunctions connect words, phrases, clauses, and sentences.

EXERCISES.

Parse the conjunctions in the following sentences: -

Něque păter něque fīlius virum laudat.
 Hostēs Ităliam longê lātēque vastāvěrant.
 Līběrī ěrant nön māgnī, sed bŏnī pulchrīque.
 Hŏmĭnēs sunt aut fēlīcēs aut infēlīcēs.

LESSON LX.

GENITIVES IN -ius.

IMPERATIVE MODE, ACTIVE VOICE.

209. Nine Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions have their genitive singular in -īus, and dative in -ī, in all genders. These adjectives are:—

ălius, other.tōtus, whole.alter, other (of two).nüllus, none.üllus, any.neuter, neither.sōlus, alone.ünus, one.üter, which (of two).

1. The plural of these adjectives is declined like the plural of bonus. The singular is thus declined:—

PARADIGMS.

Cases.			Sing	ular.

Voc. Abl.	ăliō	ăliā	ăliō	altěrō	altěrā	altěrô

- 210. The Imperative Mode has two tenses, the Present and the Future.
  - 1. The Present Imperative has only the second person.
  - 2. The Future Imperative has the second and third persons.
  - 3. The first person of the Imper. is supplied by the Subjunctive.
  - 4. The Negative of the Imperative is ne.
- 211. The Present and Future Imperative Active of the Four Conjugations is inflected as follows:—

	FIRST CONJUGATION.
	Person.	Formation.	Example.	English.

- Obs. 1. Note that the personal endings are the same for all four conjugations. The characteristic vowel of the stem is the same as in the infinitive active, i.e.,  $\bar{a}$ ,  $\bar{e}$ ,  $\bar{e}$ ,  $\bar{i}$  (but in the third conjugation the  $\bar{e}$  changes to  $\bar{i}$ , and in the future third person plural to u). Note the future third person plural of the fourth conjugation.
- Obs. 2. Four verbs, dīco, dūco, făcio, fĕro, with their compounds, drop the final vowel of the imperative; as, dīc, dūc, făc, fĕr. But compounds in fĭcio retain the final e; as, confice.
- Obs. 3. For the first person of the imperative, see p. 241; for the expression of a negative command (i.e., a prohibition), see 278. 2.

LESSON LXI.

NUMERALS.

ACCUSATIVE OF TIME AND SPACE.—ABLATIVE OF DIFFERENCE.

- 212. Numeral adjectives express number; they are divided into three principal classes:—
  - CARDINALS, which answer the question how many: as, unus, one; tres, three.
  - Ordinals, which express rank or order; they answer the question which in order, or one of how many: as, primus, first.
  - 3. DISTRIBUTIVES, which answer the question how many to each, or how many at a time: as, bini, two each, or two by two; bis bina māla, twice two apples.
  - 4. Numeral adverbs answer the question how often: as, bis, twice.

213. The Cardinal Numbers are indeclinable, except unus, one, duo, two, tres, three, and the hundreds beginning with ducent, two hundred. The hundreds are declined like the plural of bonus; and the first three cardinals are declined as follows:—

- 1. In the plural, unus often has the meaning of same, only. It is also used in its ordinary sense with a plural noun of a singular meaning; as, una castra, one camp.
  - 2. Mille is either an Adjective or a Noun: -
  - a. As an Adjective it is indeclinable, and limits the noun; as,

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mīlle hominēs, a thousand men.
- 2. cum bis mille hominibus, with two thousand men.
- b. As a noun it is indeclinable in the singular; in the plural it is declined like the plural of măre (110): mīlia, mīlium, mīlībus, mīlia, mīlībus. It is followed by the genitive, unless a declined numeral comes between, as in Ex. 3; as,

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mile hominum, a thousand men (lit., of men).
- 2. tria mīlia hominum, three thousand men (lit., of men).
- 3. tria milia trecenti milites, three thousand three hundred soldiers.

- Obs. 1. The numbers between 20 and 100 are expressed either by the larger numeral first without et, or by the smaller numeral first with et; as, viginti tinus, twenty-one, or tinus et viginti, one and twenty. The numbers above 100 always have the larger number first; as, centum et sexägintä sex, or centum sexägintä sex, one hundred and sixty-six.
- Obs. 2. The numerals 18, 19, 28, 29, 38, 39 have the smaller numeral first, with the preposition de to indicate subtraction; as, duŏdēvīgintī, ūndēvīgintī, duŏdētrīgintā, etc.
- 3. Distributive numerals are sometimes used to show a plural signification in those nouns, the plural forms of which have otherwise a singular meaning; as, bina castra, two camps; binae aedēs, two houses; binae littěrae, two epistles. Duo castra would mean two forts; duae aedēs, two temples; duae littěrae, two letters (of the alphabet).
- Obs. 3. The year is expressed by annus with the ordinal numerals; as, annus mīllēsīmus octingentēsīmus octōgēsīmus quintus, the year 1885.
- Obs. 4. Prior is used instead of primus when only two things are spoken of; alter is often used for secundus.
  - 214. Accusative of Time and Space.

EXAMPLES.

- Rōmŭlus septem et trīgintā rēgnāvit annōs, Romulus reigned thirty-seven YEARS.
- fossa pěděs trěcentôs longa est, sex pěděs alta, the ditch is three hundred FEET long, six FEET deep.
- 3. castra ab urbe milia passuum octo absunt, the camp is eight MILES distant from the city.

Obs. Note that annos, in Ex. 1, expresses duration of time; that pedes and milia, in Exs. 2 and 3, denote the extent of space, and are also in the accusative. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ACCUSATIVE OF TIME AND SPACE.

- 215. Rule XXVI.—Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative.
- 1. Distance is sometimes expressed by the ablative. (See Ablative of Difference, 302.)

EXAMPLE.

milibus passuum sex ā Caesăris castris consedit, he encamped AT THE DISTANCE of SIX MILES from Caesar's camp.

2. Duration of time may be expressed by per with the accusative, and sometimes, though rarely, by the ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- lüdi děcem per diës facti, the games were celebrated THROUGH ten entire DAYS.
- pūgnātum est continenter horis quinque, they fought for five hours incessantly.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

Amīcus meus hābet duōs fīliōs et duās fīliās.
 Oppidum Rēmōrum ab castrīs octo mīlia passuum aberat.
 Mons decem mīlia trēcentōs pēdēs altus est.
 Erant itinera duo; ūnum per Sēquānōs; alterum per provinciam nostram.
 Mīlia passuum tria ab urbe castra posuit.
 Quot hōrās hābet ūnus diēs? Quattuor et vīgintī.
 Mīlibus passuum sex ā Caesaris castrīs consēdit.
 Decem annōs urbs oppūgnāta est.

Translate into Latin: -

1. The boy has six books. 2. The men have ten apples.
3. Cæsar will come with ten vessels. 4. Cæsar leads out five legions from Italy. 5. The town is six miles distant.
6. The river is sixteen feet deep. 7. The river is twenty-two feet deep. 8. The mountain is four thousand feet high.
9. Three gifts, seven hostages, five kings, a thousand soldiers, eleven friends, ten towns. 10. The first friend, the second town, the third king, the ninth queen, the tenth enemy. 11. They fought five hours. 12. He lived sixty years.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- The pupil should learn the declension of unus, duo, and tres, and memorize the cardinals to one hundred, and the ordinals to twenty.
- 2. The adjectives longus, latus, and altus usually accompany the accusative of space.

What is a cardinal number? Decline unus. Is unus ever used in the plural? Mention the ordinal numbers from first to twentieth. Decline duo.

LESSON LXII.

IMPERATIVE PASSIVE OF THE FOUR CONJUGATIONS. THE PLACE TO WHICH.

216. The Imperative Passive of the Four Conjugations is inflected as follows:—

	First Conjugation.
	Person.	Formation.	Example.	English.
	Sing. 1
nt.	2	Pres. stem $+$ re	ămāre	Be thou loved.
Present.	3

Ī	Plur. 1
-	2		- 1: 4
1	3	Pres. stem + ntor	audiuntor	They shall be heard.

Obs. Note that the characteristic vowel of the stem is variable in the third conjugation, weakened to  $\ell$  and then to u; the stem of the third person plural future of the fourth conjugation, is audiu.

217. The Place to Which.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. in Galliam vēnit, he came into Gaul.
- 2. in Italiam contendit, he hastens into Italy.
- 3. ad urbem venit, he came to the city.
- 4. Rômam profectus est, he set out for Rome.
- 5. Corinthum pervenit, he came to Corinth.
- 6. puer domum That, the boy was going home.
- 7. rus Ibo, I will go to the country.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that in 1, 2, 3, the names of the places to which the motion is directed are not the names of towns; in each case the preposition is expressed. In Exs. 4, 5, the nouns denoting the place to which the motion is directed are names of towns; the accusative is used without a preposition. Note, further, that domum, domos, and rus, like names of towns, have no preposition. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

THE NAME OF THE PLACE TO WHICH.

- 218. Rule XXVII. The name of the place whither, or to which, regularly requires the preposition in or ad.
- 1. But with names of towns and small islands, and with domum, domos, and rus, the preposition is omitted.

VOCABULARY.

šduco, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, educate.
strēnuē (adv.), briskly, vigorously.
Brītannia, -ae, f., Britain.
attingo, -tingĕre, -tīgī, tactum, touch, reach.
instītūtum, -ī, N. custom; pl. institutions.
gĕro, gĕrere, gessī, gestum, bear, carry on.
vergo, vergĕre, ——————————, turn, lie toward.
persuādeo, -suādēre, -suāsī, -suāsum, convince, persuade.
făcīle, fācīlius, fācīlissīme, easily.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: —

Puer, běne ēdŭcāre.
 Puer, strēnuē exercēre.
 Puer, pròbē excòlère.
 Puer, dīligenter ērŭdīre.
 Puer, běne ēdŭcātor, strēnuē exercētor, pròbē excòlitor, dīligenter ērŭdītor.
 In fines Vōcontiōrum diē septimō pervēnit.
 Hōrā quartā Britanniam attigit.
 Nocte ad Caesarem pervēnērunt.
 In Galliā ultĕriōre multōs¹ annōs mănēbimus.
 Proximō diē Caesar ē castrīs cōpiās suās ēdūxit.
 Cōnsul Athēnās prŏfectus est.
 Caesar Mīlētum prŏpĕrāvit.
 Multī ex urbe rūs migrābant.
 Sērō dŏmum vēnistī.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

The quantity of long final syllables has hitherto been marked; the pupil should be taught to account for the quantity of all final syllables.

Define the imperative. How many tenses has the imperative? Are the personal endings the same for all four conjugations? After verbs of motion, how is the place to which expressed? With names of towns, how is the place to which expressed? What other words omit the preposition?

LESSON LXIII.

CLASSIFICATION OF SENTENCES.—ANALYSIS OF SIMPLE SENTENCES.

- 219. Sentences may be classified, with respect to their meaning, as:—
  - 1. Simple. 2. Complex. 3. Compound.
- 220. A Simple Sentence contains but one subject and one predicate, either of which may be compound.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Messengers come.
- 2. The swift messengers come quickly.
- 3. The boys and girls laugh and play.

Ons. Messenger is the subject of the first sentence, and come is the predicate. In Ex. 2 the and swift modify messengers, and are called the Modifiers of the Subject. The swift messengers is the modified, or logical subject; come quickly is the modified, or logical predicate. The third sentence has a compound subject, boys and girls, connected by the coordinate copulative conjunction and, and a compound predicate.

221. A Complex Sentence is composed of one independent clause in combination with one or more dependent clauses.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. The general, who is cautious, will succeed.
- 2. When the rain descended, the floods came.

Obs. The first sentence contains two parts: the general will succeed, and who is cautious. Each part contains a subject and predicate, and is called a clause; hence the definition:—

222. A clause is a part of a sentence containing a subject and predicate.

Obs. The clause, who is cautious, really performs the office of an adjective, as we may use in place of it simply the word cautious, and say the cautious general will succeed. The adjective clause, who is cautious, performing the office of a single word, is called a Dependent Clause; the other clause, the general will succeed, not performing the office of a single word, is called an Independent Clause. The two clauses, connected by who, are so combined that one modifies the other; they form in combination a Complex Sentence. In the second sentence, the floods came is the independent clause, modified by the clause when the rain descended, i.e. by a clause telling when the floods came; and as this clause performs the office of a single word, an adverb, the two clauses in combination form a Complex Sentence.

. 223. A Compound Sentence is composed of two or more independent clauses.

EXAMPLE.

The rain descended, and the floods came.

Obs. This sentence consists of two parts, the rain descended and the floods came, each of which is independent, and makes complete sense by itself. The sentence is COMPOUND, because it consists of two independent clauses.

SIMPLE SENTENCES CLASSIFIED.

224. Simple sentences may be Declarative, Interrogative, Imperative, or Exclamatory.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Cæsar was stabbed.
- 3. Love justice, and hate evil.
- 2. Was Casar stabled by Brutus? 4. What a cruel deed he has done!

Modifiers.

225. The Subject or the Predicate may be modified by (1) a word, (2) a phrase, (3) a clause.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mīlitēs fortēs, brave soldiers.
- 2. oppida sine praesidio, towns without garrisons.
- 3. rex Albanorum, the king of the Albans.
- 4. puer, quī lĕgit, the boy, who reads.

226. A Phrase is a group of words, without a subject or predicate, used in the sense of an adjective or an adverb.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. A large army came there.
- 2. An army of sixty thousand men came to Rome.

OBS. In the first sentence, the adjective large modifies army, and the adverb there modifies came. If we wish to express the thought with greater distinctness, we should use the second sentence, in which the groups of words, of sixty thousand men and to Rome, have been substituted, the one for the adjective large, and the other for the adverb there. These groups of words we call Phrabes.

227. Directions for Analyzing Sentences: —

Tell (1) whether the sentence is simple, complex, or compound. If the sentence is Simple, tell (2) whether it is declarative, interrogative, imperative, or exclamatory; (3) mention the subject and its modifiers, (4) the predicate and its modifiers. If the sentence is Complex, analyze each clause like a simple sentence; name the connective, and tell whether the subordinate or dependent clause stands for an adjective, an adverb, or a noun, i.e., whether it is an Adjective, Adverbial, or Noun Clause. If the sentence is Compound, analyze each clause as a simple sentence, name the connective, and the class of conjunctions to which it belongs.

EXERCISES.

Classify the following sentences; name the clauses; analyze each, and mention the modifiers:—

1. The bridge spans the river. 2. The great iron bridge spans the broad river. 3. The great iron bridge, built by a skilful engineer, spans the broad river. 4. Great men are rare. 5. The man dies, but his memory lives. 6. How wonderful is the advent of spring! 7. Are there any accidents in the providence of God? 8. Thank you, sir. 9. Has the gentleman finished? 10. While Louis XIV. reigned, Europe was at war. 11. Great men lived during the Revolution. 12. Franklin, who was a great philosopher, was born in Boston. 13. Hamilton smote the rock of the national resources, and abundant streams of revenue gushed forth.

14. There<sup>2</sup> is a pleasure in the pathless woods. 15. The soldiers were brave.<sup>3</sup>

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Expand this sentence into a compound sentence.
- 2. There is used as an introductory word, to fill out the sentence, and is, therefore, called an expletive (Lat. explere, to fill out).
  - 3. Is this adjective attributive or predicate?

What is a sentence? Classify sentences. Write a simple sentence. Expand it to a complex, then to a compound sentence. Of what is a complex sentence composed? What is a clause? What is a dependent clause? (Ans. A dependent clause is one used as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb.) Mention the modifiers of the subject; of the predicate.

LESSON LXIV.

PRONOUNS.

Obs. Charles went to Rome with his mother, and he came back without her. In this sentence we use three little words called Pronouns; they are his, he, and her. If we had not these words, we would be compelled to say: "Charles went to Rome with Charles's mother, and Charles came back without Charles's mother." The pronouns take the place of the nouns, and hence the definition:—

- 228. A Pronoun is a word used for a noun. Pronouns are divided into eight classes:—
  - 1. Personal Pronouns: ego, I; nos, we, etc.
  - 2. Reflexive Pronouns: suf, of himself.
  - 3. Possessive Pronouns: meus, my, etc.
  - 4. Demonstrative Pronouns: hio, this, etc.
  - 5. Determinative Pronouns: is, he, that; ipse, self, etc.
  - 6. Relative Pronouns: qui, who, and its compounds.
  - 7. Interrogative Pronouns: quis, who? and its compounds.
  - 8. Indefinite Pronouns: allquis, some one, etc.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

- 229. The Personal Pronouns are so called because they designate the person of the noun for which they stand. They are ego, I, tt, thou, and are declined as follows:—
  - I. Personal Pronouns of the First Person.

Cases.	Singular.	Plural.
Nom.	ěgo, I.	nōs, we.
GEN.	mei, of me.	nostrum and nostri, of us.
DAT.	mihi, to or for me.	nobis, to or for us.
Acc.	mē, me.	nōs, us.
Voc.
ABL.	mē, with, from, or by me.	nobis, with, from, or by us.

II. Personal Pronouns of the Second Person.

Singular.	Plural.
tū, thou.	vos, ye or you.
tuī, of thee.	vestrum and vestri, of you.
tibi, to or for thee.	vobis, to or for you.
tē, thee.	vōs, you.
tū, O thou.	vos, O ye or you.
te, with, from, or by thee.	vobis, with, from, or by you.
	tū, thou. tuī, of thee. tibī, to or for thee. tē, thee. tū, O thou.

Obs. The genitives nostrum, vestrum, are used partitively (see 236); as, unus nostrum, one of us. Nostri and vestri are used as objective genitives; as, memor es nostri, be mindful of us.

- Ego and nos are Personal Pronouns of the first person, and vos, of the second. The personal pronouns of the third person, he, she, it, they,
   are wanting in Latin.
- 2. The pronouns of the first person may be strengthened by the addition of the syllables met or te, or both: as, egomet, I myself; tüte, tütemet, thou thyself; nosmet, vosmet, we ourselves, you yourselves.

REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS.

230. The Reflexive Pronouns refer to the subject of the sentence, and do not, therefore, require a nominative case. The reflexive pronouns of the first and second persons are the same as the first and second personal pronouns; the reflexive of the third person is thus declined:—

Singular and Plural.

Nom. (Wanting.)

GEN. sui, of himself, herself, itself, or themselves.

DAT. sibi, for himself, herself, itself, or themselves.

Acc. sē, himself, herself, itself, or themselves.

Voc. ----

ABL. sē, by himself, herself, itself, or themselves.

1. The use of the Personal and Reflexive Pronouns can be understood from the following conjugation of laudo, with subject and object expressed:—

ĕgo mē laudo, I praise myself; nōs nōs laudāmus, we praise ourselves; tū tē laudās, you praise yourself; vōs vōs laudātis, you praise yourselves; is (ea) sē laudat, he (she) praises himself (herself); iī (eae) sē laudant, they praise themselves; also, Cicĕro sē (i.e. Cicĕronem) laudat, Cicero praises himself; Cicĕro eum (i.e. Caesărem) laudat, Cicero praises him.

- 2. The reduplicated forms, sēsē, tētē, mēmē, for sē, tē, mē, often occur.
- 3. Cum, when used with the ablative of the personal pronoun, is appended to it: as, mēcum, with me; vöbīscum, with you.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS.

231. The Possessive Pronouns are formed from the personal pronouns, and denote possession. They are:—

meus, mea, meum, my or mine. tuus, tua, tuum, thy or thine. suus, sua, suum, his, hers, its, or their. nõster, nõstra, nõstrum, our. vester, vestra, vestrum, your.

- OBS. 1. The vocative singular masculine of meus is mi.
- Obs. 2. Note that sul and suus refer to the leading subject of the sentence; but when no ambiguity can arise, sul sometimes refers to some other word than the leading subject.

232. Decline together:—

- 1. meus fräter, my brother.
- 2. tuum căput, thy head.
- 3. spēs omnis nostra, our only hope.
- 4. sua mănus dextra, his right hand.

233. Examples Illustrating the Uses of the Personal and Reflexive Pronouns:—

- inter sē diffěrunt, they differ (among themselves) from one another.
- tū laudās mē, sed ĕgo tē culpo, you praise me, but I blame you.
- Ariovistus tantõs sībi spīrītūs sumpsĕrat, Ariovistus had taken such airs upon himself.
- 4. sī tū et Tullia vălētis, ĕgo et Cicero vălēmus, if you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well.
- 5. inter nos ămāmus, we love each other.
- 6. inter se amant, they love each other.
- 7. obsides inter sese dant, they give hostages to each other.
- puella ĕpistŭlam mănū suā scrībit, the girl writes the letter with her own hand.
- nös ĕquĭtāmus, ambŭlātis vös, or ĕquĭtāmus nös, vös ambŭlātis.

OBS. The personal pronouns are implied in the endings of the Latin verb, and are not expressed in Latin unless they are emphatic (see 57. N. 1). Note that if there are two subjects connected by and, the verb is plural; if the subjects are of different persons, as in Ex. 4, the verb takes the first person rather than the second, the second rather than the third. Note, also, that the first person is the first in order, not the last, as by courtesy in English. His, her, its, referring to the subject of the sentence, must be expressed by suus, sua, suum; when not referring to the subject, the genitive (ejus) of is, ea, id, is used.

Rule for Position: -

- 1. The Personal Pronouns, when connected by conjunctions to other words, stand first. Ego always precedes (see Ex. 4).
- 2. Contrasted words are put as near together, or as far apart, as possible (see Ex. 9).

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

Ego vŏco, tū vŏcās, ămīcus vŏcat.
 Tū es tristis.
 Nōs sūmus pŏtentēs, sĕd vōs pŏtentiōrēs estis.
 In mē et in tē et in nōbis omnĭbus est ănĭmus immortālis.
 Ego at tē laudābor, sed tū a mē pūniēris.
 Mī frāter, audī.
 Ego sum mălus, sed tū es bŏnus.
 Caesar suōs mīlitēs in Galliam mittet, sed in prōvinciam nostrōs.
 Caesar Dĭvĭtiăcum ad sē vŏcat.

Translate into Latin: -

1. I call, thou callest, the friend calls. 2. I praise you, you praise me, we praise you. 3. He comes in company with you. 4. I give (to) you the book. 5. I am sad, but you are joyful. 6. I am a Roman, but you are a Gaul. 7. I am praised by you. 8. My brother and I are praising you. 9. You are reading, but I am writing. 10. They differ from one another.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

Why are reflexive pronouns so called? Name the personal pronouns. How is the lack of a third personal pronoun supplied? Give the rule for the use of possessive pronouns. (Ans. Same as for adjectives: Adjectives, adjective pronouns, etc., agree. See Rule VIII.) How can you tell after a transitive verb whether suos milites means his, her, its, or their soldiers? The reflexive so is often written sos; as, puer sos laudat, the boy praises himself.

LESSON LXV.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS. -- PARTITIVE GENITIVE.

- 234. Demonstrative Pronouns are so called because they point out what object is meant. They are:—
  - 1. Hic, this, this near me.

Cases.	Singular.				Plural.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter.
Nom.	hīc	haec	hōc	hĩ	hae	haec
GEN.		hūjus		hörum	hārum	hōrum
Dat.		huīc 1			hīs
Acc.	hunc	hanc	hõc <sup>2</sup>	hōs	hãs	haec
ABL.	hōc	hãc	hõc	}	hīs

2. Iste, that, that near you.

Nom.	iste	ista	istud	istī	istae	ista
GEN.		istīus		istõrum	istārum	istõrum
DAT.		istī			istīs
Acc.	istum	istam	istud	istōs	istās	ista
ABL.	istō	istā	istō		istīs

3. Ille, that, that near him.

Nom. Gen.	ille	illa illīus	illud	illī illōrum	illae illārum	illa ill örum
DAT.		illī			illīs
Acc.	illum	illam	illud	illös	illās	illa
ABL.	illō	illā	illō		illīs

235. Decline together: -

- 1. haec² dies, this day.
- 2. ista tua sŏror, that sister of thine.
- 3. haec lěgiō, this legion.
- 4. illud ŏnus, that burden.
- 5. istud tempus, that time.
- 6. homo iste, that (worthless) man.

Obs. 1. Hic, used for what is near the speaker, is called the demonstrative of the first person; iste, used of what is near the person addressed, is called the demonstrative of the second person; ille, used of what is remote from both, is called the demonstrative of the third person.

Obs. 2. The demonstratives are often used in the oblique cases as personal pronouns (him, her, it, them) of the third person.

EXAMPLE.

eum et frätrem ejus video, I see him and his brother.

236. Partitive Genitive.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. pars militum, part of the soldiers.
- 2: alter consulum, one of the (two) consuls.
- 3. unus militum, one of the soldiers.
- 4. nihil vini, (nothing of wine) no wine.
- 5. multum aestātis, a large part of the summer.
- māgna est corpŏris pars ăperta, a great part of the body is exposed.

Obs. In each of the foregoing examples, note that the genitive expresses the whole, and that the word which the genitive limits designates a part. This use of the genitive is called the partitive genitive. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

PARTITIVE GENITIVE.

237. Rule XXVIII.—Words denoting a part are followed by the genitive denoting the whole.

Note. Instead of the partitive genitive with numerals, the ablative with ex, out of, de, from, is regularly used with cardinals.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. unus ex militibus, one of the soldiers.
- 2. quinque ex militibus, five (of) soldiers.
- 3. unus de multis, one of the many.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: —

- 1. Illī 3 vīrum laudant. 2. Hōc4 bellum est saevissīmum.
- 3. Hūjus discipulī dīligentiam laudo. 4. Hīc puer dīligens est, ille iners. 5. Hōrum omnium fortissimī sunt Belgae.
- 6. Laudābo illīus<sup>5</sup> fīlium. 7. Păter fīliam suam et fīliam Tulliae ad sē vŏcābat. 8. Haec sententia mĭhī plăcet, illa displĭcet. 9. Hī omnēs inter sē diffĕrunt. 10. Oppĭdum ăberat mīlia passuum octo. 11. Māgna est corpŏris pars ăperta.

Translate into Latin: -

1. I will give you this book, and you give me that.
2. These men, those men. 3. These places, those places.
4. This mountain, that mountain. 5. This opinion, that opinion. 6. This soldier is brave, that one is cowardly.
7. These things were announced to Cæsar. 8. A part of the army came. 9. The army marched six miles. 10. The wall is ten feet high. 11. Cicero was a very distinguished orator; we shall hear him with pleasure. 12. The man calls his own son to him.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Huic is to be pronounced as a monosyllable.
- 2. The vocative of demonstrative, relative, interrogative, and indefinite pronouns is wanting.
- 3. Demonstrative pronouns may be used as personal or as adjective pronouns: as, hī omnēs diffěrunt, all these differ; ad eōs mercātōrēs saepe commeant, traders often resort to them; ad hās suspīciōnēs, to these suspicions. In the former case parse them as nouns; in the latter, as adjectives.
  - 4. Demonstrative pronouns usually precede their nouns.
- 5. For his or her not referring to the subject, 5jus (see 231. obs. 2) should be used when not emphatic; illīus, or hūjus, if the word is emphatic; istīus, if very emphatic, or at all sarcastic, or referring to the second person.
- 6. The neuter plural of pronouns, as well as of adjectives, is often used as nouns, where we use in English the word thing or things; as, haec, these things, this.

Is the nominative of the pronouns he, she, it, often expressed? When they must be expressed, what is used? Ans. Generally hīc, is, or ille; as, hīc dixit, he (this man) speaks. What is a pronoun? Mention the different classes. Define personal pronoun. What is meant by partitive genitive? Give the Latin for a part of the soldiers. Which is the partitive genitive? How is all of the soldiers expressed in Latin? Ans. mīlītēs omnēs; all does not denote a part, but the whole.

LESSON LXVI.

DETERMINATIVE (DEMONSTRATIVE) PRONOUNS.

238. The Determinative Pronouns are is, ea, id, this (and he, she), that; its compound idem, eadem, idem, the same; and ipse, ipsa, ipsum, he, self, very same. They refer to some person or thing determined by the context:—

1. Is, this, and he, she, it.

Cases.		Singula	r.		Plural.
Nom. Gen. Dat.	Masc. is	Fem. ea ējus eī	Neuter. id	Masc. eī or iī eōrum	Fem. eae eārum eīs or iīs	Neuter. ea eōrum
Acc. Abl.	eum eõ	eam eā	id eõ	eõs	eās eīs or iīs	ea

2. Idem,2 the same.

īdem	eădem	ĭdem	{eīdem } {or iīdem }	eaedem	eădem
	ējusdem		eörundem	eārundem	eõrundem
	eīdem			eïsdem or ii	isdem
eundem	eandem	ĭdem	eösdem	eāsdem	eădem.
eōdem	eādem	eōdem		eīsdem or ii	isdem
	eundem	ējusdem eīdem eundem eandem	ējusdem eīdem eundem eandem idem	ējusdem eorundem erdem eundem eandem idem eosdem	eidem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem eisdem

3. Ipse, self, he.

Nom. Gen.	ipse	ipsa ipsīus	ipsum	ipsī ipsōrum	ipsae ipsārum	ipsă ipsõrum
DAT.		ipsīus ipsī		ipsorum	ipsīs	rpsor um
Acc. Abl.	ipsum ipsõ	ipsam ipsā	ipsum ipsō	ipsõs	ipsās ipsīs	ipsă

Obs. 1. Ipse is often called an intensive pronoun; it should not be confounded with sē; as, vir ipse sē laudat, the man himself praises himself.

- OBS. 2. Idem often means also; as, Cicero erat orator idemque philosophus, Cicero was an orator, and also a philosopher (lit., the same was a philosopher).
- Obs. 3. Is, that, is often used as a personal pronoun (he, she, it, they, them, etc.) of the same gender with the noun for which it stands: as, Cicero multos libros scripsit; eos (i.e. libros) libenter lego, Cicero has written many books; I read them (i.e. the books) with pleasure.

239. Decline together: -

- 1. ipse homo, the man himself.
- 2. id oppidum, that town.
- 3. ipsa causa, { the cause itself. the very same cause.
- 4. hoc ipsum tempus, this very time.

 Caesar Dĭvĭtiācum ad sē vŏcāvit.
 Păter fīliam suam et fīlium ējus ad sē vŏcat.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Idem, compounded of is and -dem, is declined like is, but it shortens is dem to Idem, and iddem to Idem, and changes m to n before the ending -dem.

Why are demonstrative pronouns so called? (Ans. Because they point out the noun.) Mention the demonstrative of the first person. When must his or her be expressed by §jus? When by suus? What are determinative pronouns? Why so called? Mention them. Ipse is often called an intensive pronoun, because it makes the word to which it is added more emphatic.

LESSON LXVII.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

240. Relative Pronouns are so called because they relate to some preceding noun or pronoun, called the antecedent; they are quī and its compounds. Quī is declined as follows:—

Cases.	Singular.		Plural.
Nom. Gen. Dat.	Masc. quī	Fem. quae cūjus cuī	Neuter. quod	Masc. quī quōrum	Fem. quae quārum quibus	Neuter. q uae qu ōrum
Acc. Abl.	quem quō	quam quā	quod quõ	quõs	quās quibus	quae

1. Quīcumque (quīcunque) and quisquis, whoever, are called, from their signification, general relatives. Quīcumque is declined like quī. The only forms of quisquis in use are quisquis, the neuter quidquid, and the ablative quōquō.

241. Agreement of Relative Pronouns:—

EXAMPLES.

- puer qui măgistrum ămat bonus est, the boy who loves the master is good.
- puer quem măgister ămat bonus est, the boy whom the master loves is good.
- 3. ĕgo, quī tē laudāvī, rēx sum, I, who have praised you, am king.

OBS. In Ex. 1, qui stands for puer, and connects the second statement or clause, loves the master, with the boy is good. The word qui is said to relate to puer; it is, therefore, called a Relative Pronoun; it also binds the two clauses together like a conjunction, and this is the real peculiarity of relatives, as all pronouns have antecedents. The word puer, which the clause qui magistrum amat modifies, is called the Antecedent. The sentence in which the relative stands is called the relative clause; the other, the principal clause.

Note (1) that qui is masculine gender, to agree with its antecedent, puer; (2) that it is singular number and third person, to agree with puer, while qui, in Ex. 3, is first person, to agree with ego; note (3) also that the relatives, in Exs. 1 and 3, are in the nominative case; but in Ex. 2 the relative is in the accusative case, because it is the object of amat. Hence the following rule:—

AGREEMENT OF RELATIVES.

- 242. Rule XXIX.—The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person, but its case depends on the construction of the clause in which it stands.
- 1. The relative at the beginning of a sentence is translated like a personal or demonstrative pronoun with a conjunction, determined by the construction.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. qui proelium committunt, they engage in battle.
- 2. quae cum Ita sint, since these (things) are so.
- 2. The relative is often omitted in English; it is never omitted in Latin.

EXAMPLE.

liber quem mihi dedisti, the book (which) you gave me.

3. In English, as is often a relative pronoun, especially after such and same. It must then be rendered by quī after īdem, and by quālis or quantus after tālis, such, tantus, so great.

243. Position of the Relative: -

The relative generally stands at the beginning of the relative sentence, after the antecedent, and as near to it as possible; but for the sake of emphasis the relative sentence is often placed first.

1. When the antecedent is indefinite, it is often omitted altogether; as, quI tertiam partem incolunt Galli appellantur, (those) who inhabit the third part are called Gauls. (Cf. the English, "who steals my purse steals trash," i.e., any one who, etc.)

244. Model for Parsing a Relative: -

puer, quī măgistrum ămat, bŏnus est: quī is a relative pronoun; decline quī, quae, quod, etc.; masculine gender, singular, to agree with its antecedent puer, and is in the nominative case, the subject of ămat; Rule XXIX. The three words, quī măgistrum ămat, are called a clause; it is a relative clause, because introduced by a relative pronoun; it performs the office of an adjective, i.e., it describes puer, and is therefore called an adjective clause. Since it is subjoined to the leading clause (puer bŏnus est), as modifying it, it is called a subordinate clause. A sentence consisting of two clauses, one of which is subordinate, is called a complex sentence. (See 221.)

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Cūjus, whose.
- 2. Why accusative?

Give the rule for the use of relative pronouns. What is a pronoun? How many classes? What is a clause? A relative clause? What is the antecedent? Define sentence. To what is a relative equivalent? (Ans. A personal pronoun + a connective; as, the boy who studies, etc., = the boy and he studies.)

LESSON LXVIII.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

- 245. The Interrogative Pronouns, quis and qui, with their compounds, are used in asking questions. They are declined as follows:—
  - 1. Quis, who, which, what?

Cases.	Singular.		Plural.
Nom. Gen. Dat.	Masc. quis	Fem. quae cūjus cuī	Neuter. quid	Masc. quī	Fem. quae quōrum quĭbus	Neuter. quae
Acc. Abl.	quem quō	quam quā	quid quō	quōs	quās quĭbus	quae

- 2. Qui, who, which, what? is declined like the relative qui.
- 3. Quis is used both as a noun and as an adjective; quid is always used as a noun; qui and quod are used as adjectives.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. quid commisit, what has he done? (Noun.)
- 2. quod făcinus commisit, what deed has he done? (Adj.)
- 3. quis vocat, who calls? (Noun.)
- 4. qui (or quis) homo vocat, what man calls? (Adj.)
- 4. Quis and qui are often strengthened by the addition of nam in emphatic interrogation; as, quisnam, or quidnam, who then?
- 5. When the question refers to one of two, uter, utrum, which of two, is used.
- 6. Recollect that the interrogative particles are -ne, used when asking for information simply; nonne, when the answer yes is expected; and num, when the answer no is expected. If an interrogative pronoun or adverb is used, then -ne, nonne, or num is not required. There is no single word in Latin equivalent to our yes and no, in answer to questions. The answer may be expressed by repeating the verb with a negative adverb, if no is the answer; and with or without an adverb, if yes is the answer.

EXAMPLES.

- vēnitne, has he come? vēnit, or vēnit vēro, yes (he has come).
- mātronane puellam vocat, does the mother call the girl? vocat, yes (she calls).
- 3. nonne bonus puer est, is not the boy good?
- 7. Ne is annexed to the word to which it especially refers.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. tune puerum doces, do you teach the boy?
- 2. docesne puerum, do you teach the boy?
- 3. puĕrumne dŏcēs, do you teach the BOY?
- 8. Questions in Latin, as in English, may be single or double. Is the soldier brave? is a single question. Is the soldier brave or cowardly? is a double question. In asking a double question in Latin, the first clause usually has utrum or -ne, and the second an.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. utrum vir legit an scrībit, does the man read or write?
- 2. utrum patriam ămat, annon, does he love his country or not?

EXERCISES.

LESSON LXIX.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

- 246. Indefinite Pronouns are such as designate an object in an indefinite or a general manner. They are:—
  - ăliquis, subst., ăliqui, adj., some one (I do not know who), some, any.
  - 2. siquis, if any one.
  - 3. nēquis, lest any.
  - 4. quisque, each or each one.
  - 5. quisquam, any one (where all are excluded).
  - 6. quispiam, some one.
  - 7. unusquisque, each (stronger than quisque).
  - 8. quidam, subst., a, a certain (I know who, though I may not wish to say); adj., a certain, some; plural, some (unemphatic); neuter, something.
  - 9. quilibet, any one you please (where all are included).
  - 10. quivis, \( \)
    11. quis,\( \)
    12. quis,\( \)
    13. quis,\( \)

ABL.	ălĭquō	ălĭquā	ălĭquō		ăliquibus

- 3. Aliquis, aliqua, aliquid, are used as nouns; and aliquis, aliqua, aliquod, as adjectives.
- 4. The following are declined like the Relative or Interrogative; the neuters in quid are used as nouns, and those in quod as adjectives; the masculines and feminines are used either as nouns or adjectives :-- quidam, quaedam, quoddam or quiddam, a certain one. quispiam, quaepiam, quodpiam or quidpiam, some one. quivis, quaevis, quodvis or quidvis, any one quilibet, quaelibet, quodlibet or quidlibet, (you please). quisque, quaeque, quodque or quidque, every one. ünusquisque, ünăquaeque, ünumquodque, each.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. quīvīs hŏmo, any man.
- 2. aliquis homo, a man, any man (it matters not who).
- 3. quidam homo, a certain man (whose name I could mention, or whom I could identify, if I chose).
- 4. aliquem ad me mittent, they will send somebody to me.
- 5. aliquod bonum, some good thing.
- 6. aliquid boni (part. gen.), something good.

247. Decline together: -

- 1. păter meus, my father.
- 2. is consul. that consul.
- 3. Idem vir. the same man. 4. eădem nāvis, the same ship.
- 7. vir guīdam Romānus, a
- 6. tötus ille dies, that whole day. certain Roman.
- 5. quīvīs hŏmo, any man.

LESSON LXX.

USES OF THE ABLATIVE.

SEPARATION, SOURCE, CAUSE, MATERIAL, AGENT.

Obs. We have learned that the ablative is used to denote the relations expressed in English by the prepositions from; with or by; at or in. In expressing all these relations, the ablative performs the offices of three cases that in some languages were kept distinct. These uses of the ablative may be classified as follows:—

1. THE ABLATIVE PROPER, expressing the relation from, or WHENCE.

EXAMPLE.

virum culpā lībērat, he frees the man from blame.

2. THE INSTRUMENTAL, expressing the relation with, by, or WHEREWITH.

EXAMPLE.

hostium fines ferro et igni vastant, they lay waste the enemy's territory with sword and fire.

3. THE LOCATIVE, expressing the relation in, at, or WHERE.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Romae vivit, he lives at Rome.
- 2. castrīs sē těnuit, he kept himself in camp.

The general rule for the Ablative Proper may be stated as follows:—

ABLATIVE PROPER.

248. Rule XXX. — Separation, cause, source, and origin are denoted by the ablative with or without a preposition.

EXAMPLE.

më timore liberas, you free me from fear (separation).

Obs. The prepositions are omitted chiefly with verbs signifying to abstain, relieve, remove, exclude, deprive, cease, and want, and with adjectives of kindred meanings; but, if a person is specified, the preposition must be used; as, to ab illo improbo liberavi, I have rid you of that scoundrel.

1. Compounds with ā, ab, dē, ē, ex, denoting separation from a person or place, take the ablative when used figuratively; but, in a local and literal sense, they usually require a preposition with the ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Iter ab Arare Helvetil averterant, the Helvetians had turned their march from the Arar.
- Helvētiī hōc cōnātū dēsistunt, the Helvetians desist from this attempt.
- 2. The Ablative of Cause is used without a preposition with intransitive and passive verbs of emotion, and with adjectives that are passive in meaning.

EXAMPLE.Helvētiī suā victōriā insŏlenter glōriābantur, the Helvetians boasted insolently because of their victory (cause).

Obs. 1. When the moving cause is a person, the preposition a or ab is used with the ablative; or ob, per, or propter, with the accusative.

Obs. 2. The ablatives causa and gratia, for the sake of, are used with a genitive preceding, or with a possessive pronoun in agreement.

Obs. 3. Expressions of trust and distrust (fido, confido, diffido), and many adjectives and participles expressing emotion, and fretus and contentus, are used with the ablative.

3. Perfect Participles denoting parentage or birth,—gĕnĭtus, nātus, ortus, etc.,—generally take the ablative without a preposition.

EXAMPLE.

Pīsō amplissīmō gĕnĕre nātus, Piso, born of a very illustrious family.

ABLATIVE OF AGENT.

4. The voluntary agent after a passive verb is put in the ablative with a or ab.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. mägister discipülös laudat, the teacher praises the pupils.
- disoïpulï ā măgistrō laudantur, the pupils are praised by the teacher.

LESSON LXXI.

READING LATIN AT SIGHT.

- 249. It may now be taken for granted that the pupil has become familiar with the inflectional endings, the general order of words in a Latin sentence (111), and the principal rules of syntax. He has, also, learned many words, mostly selected from the First Book of Cæsar, and it is now time for him to try to unravel the difficulties of an ordinary Latin sentence.
- 1. In the first place, the pupil should pronounce the Latin carefully and slowly, noticing the endings of each word, in order to determine which words are nouns and which verbs, etc.
- 2. Then, if the first sentence is simple, find the SUBJECT, and determine its number and meaning. Sometimes the subject is not expressed, but is contained in the ending of the verb. It can be found by noticing the person and number of the verb, as it must be a pronoun of the person indicated by the verb.
- 3. Next find the PREDICATE, and translate it, noticing carefully its voice, mode, and tense.
- 4. Find and translate the modifiers of the subject; and, lastly, the modifiers of the predicate.

- 5. If the sentence is complex, translate, first, the principal clause, and then the subordinate clauses in the order of their importance. It is always easier for the pupil to translate the principal clause first than it is to pick out words here and there with the hope of being able finally of putting them together into a sentence. When the meaning of the principal clause has been obtained, then take the subordinate clauses.
- 6. Consult the dictionary or vocabularies only as a last resort. The pupil must, however, remember that only the nominative singular of nouns, adjectives, and pronouns, and the first person singular present indicative active of verbs, are given there; i.e., the dictionary gives the meaning of words without reference to their grammatical relations. The case, person, number, mode, tense, or voice, must be determined by the grammar. It is, therefore, essential that the declension of nouns and the inflection of the regular verbs be thoroughly memorized, so that the pupil can distinguish by the endings the different parts of speech, and determine at once the force and relation of the words.

In prātō ĕrant trēs bŏvēs in māximā concordiā. Sed meadow oxen greatest harmony dissidiō inter eōs ortō, singŭlī ā fĕrīs pĕtītī et lǎniātī sunt.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

The pupil can discover by the forms of the words that boves is in the nominative plural, and is the subject of the verb erant; prato, after the preposition, is in the ablative singular, and its nominative is pratum, for which form the pupil must look in the dictionary. Concordia is also in the ablative, and is modified by the adjective maxima.

Note the mode, tense, and voice of pětītī and lăniātī sunt, and translate them.

What is the subject of the first sentence? The predicate? Has the subject any modifiers? Has the predicate? In what case is tres? In what case is singuil?

LESSON LXXII.

INFINITIVE MODE, ACTIVE AND PASSIVE.

EXERCISE FOR SIGHT-READING.

OBS. In the sentence I wish to see you, the verb, to see, names the action in an indefinite way, without limiting it to any particular subject; and hence, a verb that expresses an action in this unlimited manner is said to be in the Infinitive Mode (Lat. infinitus, without limit). The infinitive expresses simply the action or state implied in the verb in an abstract manner, without specifying either person, number, or time, and thus merely indicates whether an action is in progress or completed. The infinitive may be used. like a noun, as the subject or object of a verb, but it differs from a noun in several important particulars: (1) It may be modified by adverbs, but not by adjectives, as I wish to see you IMMEDIATELY; (2) it governs a noun or pronoun in the objective like a verb. In Latin, the infinitive has voice and tense like a verb, but, like a noun, admits of two cases: the nominative when it is the subject of a verb, and the accusative when it is the object of a verb. The infinitive is also used in Latin to represent the tenses of the indicative mode in Indirect Discourse. (For this use, see 347.) Hence the uses of the infinitive may be stated as follows: -

250. Uses of the Infinitive.

- 1. The infinitive is used as an indeclinable abstract noun in the nominative and accusative.
- 2. The infinitive is used in Indirect Discourse to represent the tenses of the indicative. (See 347.)
- Obs. The infinitive has voice and tense, and takes adverbial modifiers like any verb; it governs the case of its verb.
- 251. In Latin there are Four Infinitives in each voice,—the Present, Perfect, Future, and Future Perfect. They are formed from the stems as follows:—

ACTIVE VOICE.

Present infinitive = present stem + re.

Perfect infinitive = perfect stem + sse.

Future infinitive = future participle and esse.

Fut. perf. infin. = future participle and fuisse.

PASSIVE VOICE.

Present infinitive = present stem + rI for 1st, 2d, 4th conjugations.

" = verb-stem + I for 3d conjugation.

Perfect infinitive = perfect passive participle and esse.

Future infinitive = supine and IrI (the word IrI is the present infinitive passive of eo, I go, and amatum IrI has the idea of going to be loved).

Fut. perf. infin. = Perfect passive participle and fore.

Sub. Pred. Object.

2. He says that Cosar conquered Gaul.

In the first sentence, that Casar conquered Gaul is the subject of the verb, and is called a subject-clause; in the second sentence, the same words become the object of the verb say, and are called an object-clause. Such clauses are expressed in Latin by the accusative with the infinitive.

EXAMPLES.

- Subject. Object. 1. Caesărem (acc.) vīcisse (infin.) Gallos  $\begin{cases} \text{certum est.} \\ \text{or dīcit.} \end{cases}$
- 2. pătat mē scrīběre, he thinks I am writing.
- Divico respondit ita Helvetios institutos esse, Divico replied that the Helvetians had been so educated.

- 4. Caesar Dumnörigem designari sentiebat, Cæsar perceived that Dumnorix was meant.
- dicit montem ab hostibus teneri, he says that the hill is held by the enemy.
- 6. rūmor ĕrat Cătilīnam servōs armāsse, there was a report that Catiline had armed the slaves.
- Obs. 2. Note the translation of the foregoing sentences. The subject-accusative is translated as if it were a nominative preceded by the word that. The infinitive is translated like any finite verb. Note, further, that dicit is a verb of saying; putat, a verb of thinking; respondit, a verb of telling; and sentiabat, a verb of perceiving. Hence the following rules:

SUBJECT OF THE INFINITIVE.

253. Rule XXXI.—The subject of the infinitive is put in the accusative.

SUBJECT-ACCUSATIVE.

- 254. Rule XXXII.—Verbs of saying, thinking, knowing, perceiving, hearing, and the like, are followed by the accusative with the infinitive.
- 1. Various Impersonal Phrases, such as certum est, it is certain, něcesse est, it is necessary, justum est, it is just, etc., are followed by the accusative with the infinitive.

INFINITIVE AS SUBJECT.

255. The Infinitive, with or without a subject-accusative, may be used as the Subject of a Verb.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. dulce pro patria morī est, to die for one's country is sweet.
- Caesărī nuntiātum est ĕquitēs accēdĕre, it was announced to Cœsar that the cavalry was approaching.

Obs. The predicate adjective, agreeing with the infinitive, is neuter.

COMPLEMENTARY INFINITIVE.

256. RULE XXXIII. — The infinitive without a subject-accusative is used with many verbs to complete their meaning.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Caesar proficisci măturat, Cæsar hastens to set out.
- 2. părat bellum gĕrĕre, he prepares to wage war.
- 3. milites pugnare possunt, the soldiers are able to fight.

Obs. The Complementary Infinitive is used with certain verbs to complete their meaning; it is generally either the direct object of a transitive verb, or an accusative of limitation, as in Ex. 3, the soldiers are able as to fighting. The verbs that the complementary infinitive is used after usually denote ability, obligation, intention, or endeavor; after verbs signifying to abstain, to begin, to cease, to continue, to dare, to fear, to hesitate, to be wont, and after the passive voice of verbs of saying, believing, reckoning.

Note the translation of the following sentences; parse each infinitive, and give the rule:—

- 1. grātum est tēcum ambŭlāre, it is pleasant to walk with you.
- 2. părat bellum gĕrĕre, he prepares to wage war.
- 3. ăqua frigida est, water is cold.
- 4. sentio ăquam frigidam esse, I perceive that water is cold.
- 5. audiō ămīcum aegrōtum esse, I hear that (my) friend is sick.
- Caesar in Galliā hiĕmāre constituit, Cœsar determined to winter in Gaul.
- milites urbem custodire debent, the soldiers ought to guard the city.
- Ilberi eorum in servitütem abdüci non debent, their children ought not to be led into servitude.
- constituerunt jumentorum quam maximum numerum coemere, they determined to buy up as great a number of beasts of burden as possible.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

Define infinitive. How many infinitives in the active voice? How many in the passive voice? Give the stem of the present infinitive; of the perfect; give the endings of each. Do infinitives have personal endings? Of what forms is the future infinitive composed? Mention the uses of the infinitive. What is the complementary infinitive? Give the rule for the complementary infinitive. What case is the subject of the infinitive? After what verbs may the accusative and infinitive be used?

LESSON LXXIV.

PARTICIPLES, ACTIVE AND PASSIVE. — ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

EXERCISE FOR SIGHT-READING.

EXAMPLE.

The river, flowing from the mountain, waters the plain.

Obs. In the foregoing sentence, note that the word flowing is a form of the verb, but that it does not make a statement like a verb. It is used (1) as an adjective, describing river by assuming or implying an action; (2) it is used as a verb, by expressing the act of flowing as going on at the time the river waters the plain. Flowing from the mountain is a participial phrase, modifying river. This form of the verb is called a participle (Lat. pars, part, and capere, to take), because it partakes of or shares the nature of an adjective and of a verb. The principal word of the phrase is flowing; its meaning is completed and made more distinct by the prepositional phrase from the mountain. Hence the following definition:—

- 257. Participles in Latin, as in English, give the meaning of the verb in the form of an adjective.
- 1. Participles are sometimes translated by the English participle or infinitive, and sometimes by a clause. (See 259.)

- 2. Like a verb, the Participle has different voices and tenses; like an adjective, it has declension and gender; and like both, it has two numbers.
- 3. Transitive verbs have usually Four Participles: two in the active voice (present and future), as ămans, ămātūrus; and two in the passive voice (perfect and the gerundive, or future), as ămātus, ămandus.
- 4. Intransitive verbs have usually only the participles of the active voice.
  - 5. Participles govern the same cases as their verbs.
  - 6. Participles agree with nouns like adjectives.

FORMATION OF PARTICIPLES.

[The present participle is formed by adding -nt, nom.-ns, to the present stem; the future, by adding -tūro, nom.-tūrus, to the modified present stem, or verb-stem; the perfect, by adding -to, nom.-tus (-so, nom.-sus), to the verb-stem; the gerundive, by adding -ndo, nom.-ndus, to the present stem.]

	Participles. — Active Voice.
Tense.	Formation.	Example.	English.
Present.	Pres. stem + ns	āmāns mŏnēns rĕgēns audiēns	loving. advising. ruling. hearing.
Future.	$egin{align*} \mathbf{Verb\text{-}st.} + \mathbf{turus} \ \mathbf{esse} \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ $	ămātūrus esse mŏnĭtūrus esse rectūrus esse audītūrus esse	about to love. about to advise. about to rule. about to hear.
	Participles. — Passive Voice.
Perfect.	$egin{align*} \mathbf{Verb\text{-stem}} + \mathbf{tus} & egin{cases} \end{array}$	ămātus mŏnĭtus¹ rectus audītus	having been loved. having been advised. having been ruled. having been heard.
Gerundive, or Future.	Pres. stem + ndus	ămandus { mŏnendus rĕgendus audiendus	to be loved. deserving to be loved. to be advised. to be ruled. to be heard.

- 7. The present stem of verbs of the fourth conjugation ends in -ie (as audie-) in the present participle and gerundive.
- 8. The Present Participle is declined like ămāns or prūdens; note that the vowel is long before -ns, but short before -nt. The Perfect and Future Participles are declined like bŏnus.

Form and translate the Present and Future Active Participles, the Perfect Passive, and the Gerundive of the following verbs:—

vŏco, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, call. pūgno, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, fight. hābeo, -ōre, -uī, -Itum, have. dūco, -ŏre, dūxī, ductum, lead. rĕgo, -ŏre, rēxī, rectum, rule. mūnio, -īre, -īvī, -ītum, fortify. děleo, -ēre, -ēvī, -ētum, destroy. fleo, -ēre, -ēvī, -ētum, weep. tăceo, -ēre, -uī, -ītum, silent. vīvo, -ĕre, vīxī, victum, live. dīco, -ĕre, dīxī, dictum, say. fīnio, -īre, -īvī, -ītum, finish.

Distinctions of Time.

EXAMPLES.

- sēsē omnes fientēs Caesārī ad pēdēs projēcērunt, they all, weeping, threw themselves at Cœsar's feet.
- 2. Gallia in tres partes est divisa, Gaul is divided into three parts.
- Dīvitiācus fiēns, ā Caesăre haec pētēbat, Divitiacus, weeping, begged these things from Cœsar.
- Läbiēnus, monte occupātō, nostrōs expectābat, Labienus, having taken possession of the mountain, was waiting for our men.
- 5. mīles pūgnāns cădit, the soldier falls fighting.
- hostībus fūgātīs Caesar suōs rĕvŏcāvit, when the enemy were put to flight, Cœsar recalled his men.

Obs. The Present Participle has usually the same meaning and use in Latin as in English. It denotes the action as going on at the time denoted by the principal verb. The Perfect Participle is used, in Ex. 2, like a predicate adjective, but the idea is conveyed of the action being completed before the time denoted by the principal verb. Note the translation of Exs. 3, 4, 5, and 6.

TIME OF THE PARTICIPLE.

258. Rule XXXIV.—The participle represents the time as present, past, or future, relatively to that of the principal verb.

ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

259. In Latin there is no Perfect Participle in the active voice. Its place is often supplied (1) by the Ablative Absolute (i.e., the noun and the participle are both in the ablative, a construction similar to our independent case), or (2) by a Clause with a Conjunction.

EXAMPLES.

- urbe captă (abl. abs.) cīvēs fūgērunt, the city having been taken, or being taken, or after the city had been taken, the citizens fled.
- urbe ă Caesăre captă, civês fügërunt, when the city had been taken by Cœsar, the citizens fled.

Obs. Note that when the noun and participle are both in the ablative, and used independently of the rest of the sentence, the construction is called ablative absolute, i.e. absolute meaning, freed from dependence. (A word is said to depend on another when its case, gender, number, mode, tense, or person is determined by that word.) In English, the Independent Case is used in the same way with Participles; as,

EXAMPLES.

- Noun + participle; as, the city having been taken, the citizens fled.
- Noun + being + adjective; as, the soldiers being brave, the enemy was conquered.
- 3. Noun + being + noun; as, he came to Rome, Casar being consul.

Note (1) that the noun in the Ablative Absolute denotes a different person or thing from that denoted by any other word in the sentence; note (2) that the words in the Ablative Absolute express the time or circumstance of the action in the leading clause; note (3) that words like a Caesare, modifying the Ablative Absolute, stand between the noun and the participle. Hence the following rule:—

ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

260. Rule XXXV.—A noun or pronoun, with a participle or an adjective, or two nouns, may be put in the ablative, to express the Time or Circumstance of an action.

Translation of the Participles.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. audivistine më id dicentem, did you hear me (lit. saying that) when I said that.
- Caesar eōrum prĕcibus adductus bellum suscēpit, Cæsar (lit. having been influenced), because he had been influenced by their entreaties, undertook the war.
- 3. milites in oppidum accepti cives interfecerunt, the soldiers (lit. having been received), when they had been received into the town, killed the citizens.
- 4. ager colendus est, the field must be cultivated.

Obs. Note the translation of each participle; that the time represented by the participle is present, past, or future, relatively to that of the principal verb. Note, finally, that the gerundive, used as an adjective, has the meaning of must or ought, as in Ex. 4.

261. Directions for Parsing a Participle.

Give the principal parts of the verb; the stems from which each participle is formed; name the participles; mention the time denoted by the participle; decline; rule.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. When the sun rises, temporal clause.
- 2. Remember that there is no perfect active participle; its place is supplied by the ablative absolute, or by a clause with cum; as, urbe captā = cum urbem cēpisset.

- 3. The present indicative follows the third conjugation. See 176.
- 4. Observe that the ablative absolute can be used only when the subject of the subordinate clause is different from that of the principal clause (except in such phrases as sē invītō, against his will, used in indirect discourse, and a few others not to be imitated.
  - 5. Lit. not robbing himself, sē non spolians.
  - 6. Lit. you not perceiving it, to non sentiente.
  - 7. Use agens, present participle.

Note that verbs of the second conjugation often weaken the characteristic vowel of the stem to I; as, monI-tus. Sometimes this vowel disappears; as, doceo, doc-tus.

How many participles may a transitive verb have? What is a participle? Give the meaning of the word. Show how the participle is used as a verb, and as an adjective. What time do participles denote? How are they generally best translated? What is the meaning of absolute? Of ablative absolute? Have we a similar construction in English? Explain the English construction. Give the rule for the ablative absolute in Latin. When is one word said to depend on another? What active participle is found in English, but not in Latin? (Ans. The perfect; as, having loved.) Give the stem and ending of the present participle of amo.

LESSON LXXV.

GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

EXERCISE FOR SIGHT-READING.

262. The Gerund is a verbal noun of the Second Declension, used only in the Genitive, Dative, Accusative, and Ablative singular. It corresponds to the English verbal noun in -ing.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. ămandī causā, for the sake of loving.
- 2. ūtilis bibendō, useful for drinking.
- 3. ad agrum arandum, for ploughing the field.
- 4. docendo discimus, we learn by teaching.
- 1. The Nominative of the Gerund is supplied by the Present Infinitive.

EXAMPLE.

scrīběre est ütile, writing (to write) is useful.

2. The Gerund and Gerundive are formed by adding -ndī and -ndus, respectively, to the present stem.

PARADIGM.

Gerund.
Formation.	Example.	English.
Pres. stem + ndī	ămandī mŏnendī rĕgendī audiendī <sup>1</sup>	of loving. of advising. of ruling. of hearing.
	GERUNDIVE.
Pres. stem + ndus	ăma ndus mõnendus rěgendus audiendus	{ to be loved, deserving to be lored. to be advised. to be ruled. to be heard.

3. Declension of the Gerund.

Cases.	Example.	English.
Nom.	ămāre	to love.
GEN.	ămandī	of loving.
Dat.	ămandō	to or for loving.
Acc.	{ ămāre, or with a pre- } } position ămandum }	loving.
ABL.	ămandō	with, from, or by loving.

EXAMPLES.

Nom. scrīběre est ütile, (to write) writing is useful.

GEN. ars scribendi est ütilis, the art of writing is useful.

DAT. charta scribendo est ūtilis, paper is useful for writing.

Acc. {scribere disco, I learn to write; or, inter scribendum disco, I learn during writing.

ABL. scrībendō discimus, we learn by writing.

OBS. Note that the accusative case of the gerund is found only after prepositions, and cannot be used as the direct object of a transitive verb.

4. The Gerund governs the same case as its verb.

EXAMPLES.

- jūs vocandī senātum, the authority (of convening) to convene the senate.
- 2. consilium urbem căpiendi, the design of taking the city.

Obs. In the foregoing sentences the gerund is used in each, with its object in the accusative; but instead of using the gerund with its object in the accusative, we generally use the gerundive in agreement with the noun, which then takes the case of the gerund; as,

EXAMPLES.

- 1. jūs senātūs vocandī, the authority of convening the senate.
- 2. consilium urbis căpiendae, the design of taking the city.
- 5. Equivalent Gerundive Forms: —
- Nom. urbem căpěre (infin.), to take a city.
- GEN. urbem căpiendi, or using the Gerundive = urbis căpiendae, of taking a city.
- DAT. urbem căpiendo, or using the Gerundive = urbī căpiendae, to or for taking a city.
- Acc. urbem căpěre (infin.); Acc. after a preposition = (ad) urbem căpiendum, or using the Gerundive = ad urbem căpiendam, taking a city.
- Abl. urbem căpiendo, or using the Gerundive = urbe căpienda, with, from, by taking a city.

The idiom is expressed in the following rule:-

GERUNDIVE CONSTRUCTION.

- 263. Rule XXXVI. Instead of the gerund with its object in the accusative, the gerundive is generally used, the noun taking the case of the gerund, and the gerundive agreeing with the noun in gender, number, and case.
  - Obs. 1. The rule requires the following changes: —
  - 1. The Accusative is put in the same case as the Gerund.
  - 2. The Gerund is changed to the Gerundive.
  - 3. The Gerundive agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case. This construction is called the gerundive construction.

EXAMPLES.

- ăgricola homines misit ad agrum ărandum (gerundive), the farmer sent men (for plowing) to plow the field.
- ad eās rēs conficiendās (gerundive) Orgētorix dēlīgītur, Orgetorix is chosen (for executing) to execute these plans = ad eās rēs conficiendum (gerund), etc.
- ars puĕrōs ēdŭcandī difficilis est, the art of training boys is difficult.
- Obs. 2. In the dative, and in the ablative with a preposition, the gerund with a direct object is rarely used. Generally after prepositions the gerundive construction should be used; as, ad căpiendam urbem, not ad căpiendum urbem, for taking the city.
- Obs. 3. The gerundive construction can be used only after verbs that take the accusative, so also after utor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vescor, which in early Latin were followed by the accusative. If the verb is intransitive, or governs any other case than the accusative, the gerundive is used impersonally with est in the nominative singular neuter.

EXAMPLE.

- vălătūdini parcendum est, the health must be spared (lit., there must be sparing of the health).
- Obs. 4. The gerundive construction cannot be used when the object is a neuter pronoun or an adjective, as it would be impossible to distinguish the gender.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. studium agendī aliquid, desire of doing something.
- 2. căpidităs plūra hăbendī, greed for having more.

264. Gerund and Gerundive Constructions.

- 1. The genitive of the gerund and gerundive is used after nouns and adjectives as an objective genitive.
- a. The genitive of the gerund and gerundive is common with causa, for the sake of, to express purpose.
- 2. The dative of the gerund and gerundive is used after adjectives (rarely after nouns) that are followed by the dative of nouns.
- 3. The accusative of the gerund and gerundive is used after the preposition ad, to denote purpose, and sometimes after inter, circa, ob; also after verbs signifying to give, to deliver, to agree for, to have, to receive, to undertake, to demand.

4. The ablative of the gerund and gerundive is used to express means, or cause (rarely of manner), and after the prepositions 3, ab, 45, 5, ex, in (rarely after cum and pro).

EXAMPLES.

- spēs urbis dēlendae, the hope of destroying the city; or, audiendī cupidus, desirous of hearing.
- 2. ăqua ūtilis est bibendo, water is useful for drinking. (See 263. Obs. 2.)
- 3. ad discendum propensi sumus, we are inclined to learn; or, Caesar pontem in Arari făciendum curat, Caesar (takes care to have) has a bridge built over the Arar.
- mens discendo alltur, the mind is nourished by learning. (See 263. Obs. 2.)

VOCABULARY.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The stem of audio is here audie-.
- 2. The gerundive used impersonally.

What is a gerund? How is the gerund declined? What is used as the nominative of the gerund? How is the gerund formed? Is the gerund ever used in the plural? What is generally used instead of the gerund with its object?

Note that the gerundive has three uses: (1) The predicate use with the verb sum, to form the passive periphrastic conjugation (286); as, urbs delenda est, the city must be destroyed, see 288. (2) The impersonal use (263. Obs. 3) in the neuter gender, with the verb est, with the same force as above; as, pugnātum est mihi, I must fight (lit., fighting must be done by me). (3) The gerundive use, which is always active in meaning, being equivalent to the gerund (see 263). With transitive verbs the personal construction is regularly used; as, epistula mihi est scribenda, I must write a letter (lit., a letter must be written by me).

LESSON LXXVI.

INFLECTION AND SYNTAX OF SUPINES.

EXERCISE FOR SIGHT-READING.

- 265. The Supine is a Verbal Noun of the Fourth Declension, used only in the accusative and ablative. The supine in -um, sometimes called the Former Supine, is used only after verbs of motion to express purpose, like the English infinitive; the supine in  $-\bar{u}$ , sometimes called the Latter Supine, is used after adjectives, and rarely after verbs, as the ablative of specification.
- 1. The Supine has the same form as the neuter of the perfect participle; the Former Supine is formed by adding -tum (or -sum) to the present stem of the 1st, 2d, and 4th, and to the verb-stem of the 3d conjugations (the final letter of which is generally modified before t, and in the second conjugation i is inserted before t); the Latter Supine is formed by adding  $-t\bar{u}$  (or  $-s\bar{u}$ ).

PARADIGM.

Verb-stem + tum	ămātum mŏnĭtum rectum audītum	to love. to advise. to rule. to hear.
	LATTER SUPI	NE.
Verb-stem + tu	ămātū mŏnĭtū rectū audītū	to love, or to be loved. to advise, or to be advised. to rule, or to be ruled. to hear, or to be heard.

2. Uses of the Supine.

EXAMPLES.

- legatos mittunt rogatum auxilium, they send ambassadors to ask for aid.
- 2. vēnērunt pācem pětītum, they came to ask for peace.
- 3. id facile factu est, this is easy to do, or to be done.

Obs. Note, in the first two of the foregoing examples, that the supines rogatum and petitum are construed with mittunt and vēnērunt, both verbs of motion; these supines express the purpose of the motion. In Ex. 3 the supine is used with the adjective facile, and answers the question in what respect? (298.) Note, further, that rogatum and petitum are each followed by the accusative, the same case that the verbs rogo and peto require. The idioms are expressed in the following rules:—

FORMER SUPINE.

- 266. Rule XXXVII.—The supine in -um is used after verbs of motion, to express the purpose of the motion.
  - 1. The supine in -um governs the same case as its verb.

LATTER SUPINE.

- 267. Rule XXXVIII. The supine in  $-\bar{u}$  is used to limit the meaning of adjectives signifying wonderful, agreeable, easy or difficult, worthy or unworthy, honorable or base, and the nouns  $f\bar{a}s$ ,  $n\check{e}f\bar{a}s$ , and  $\check{o}pus$ .
  - 1. The supine in  $-\bar{u}$  takes no object.
- Obs. 1. The future infinitive passive ămātum Īrī is made up of the present infinitive passive of eo, I go, and the supine in -um of ămo, and is, literally translated, it is being gone (by somebody) to love; so that the apparent (or logical) subject is really the grammatical object.
- Obs. 2. The supine in -um is not very common; only about two hundred and fifty verbs, chiefly of the first and third conjugations, have a supine; the supine in  $-\bar{u}$  is still less common. Hence the propriety of calling the third stem the particivial stem, as Vaniçek and other noted grammarians have done.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. Accusative after rogatum.

What is a gerund? What is the gerundive? How many cases has the gerund? What is used as the nominative of the gerund? Is the gerund used in the plural? When is the gerundive used instead of the gerund? Remember that the gerundive construction is preferred to the gerund construction, unless the use of the former would cause ambiguity. In connection with the prepositions, the gerundive construction is always used. What is a supine? How many supines has a Latin verb? From what stem are they formed? After what verbs may supines be used? After what other words may the supine be used? Give the rules for the use of the supine.

LESSON LXXVII.

LOCATIVE.

PLACE WHITHER? WHENCE? WHERE?

- 268. The name of the place whither, whence, and where, regularly requires a preposition.
- 1. The name of the place whither, or to which, regularly requires ad or in with the accusative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. in Galliam, into Gaul.
- 2. in urbem, into the city.
- 3. ad urbem, towards (the vicinity of) the city.
- 4. ad Romam, towards (the vicinity of) Rome.

OBS. Note that AT, meaning near, not in, is, with all names of places, to be translated by ad or apud, with the accusative.

2. The name of the place whence, or from which, regularly requires ā, ab, dē, ē, or ex, with the ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. ab urbe, away from the city.
- 2. ex Africa, from (out of) Africa.
- 3. ex oppido, from the town.
- 4. a Roma, from about (the vicinity of) Rome.
- 3. The name of the place where, or in which, regularly requires in with the ablative.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. in Galliä, in Gaul.
- 3. in Africa, in Africa.
- 2. in portu, in the harbor.
- 4. in castris, in the camp.

Names of Places.

269. Rule XXXIX.—Relations of place are expressed by a noun with a preposition; but with names of towns and small islands, and also with domus, rūs, and a few other words, the preposition is omitted, and

PLACE TO WHICH.

1. The name of the place whither, or to which, is put in the Accusative.

PLACE FROM WHICH.

2. The name of the place whence, or from which, is put in the Ablative.

PLACE IN WHICH.

- 3. The name of the place where, or in which, takes the Locative.
- 270. The Locative has the same form as the Dative in the first and third declensions; in the second declension it has the same form as the Genitive. In the plural of all three declensions, Dative, Locative, and Ablative are alike.

EXAMPLES.

LOCATIVE. Romae, at Rome. Sing. 1st Decl. Roma, Rome; " Brundisium, Brundisium; Brundisii, at Brundisium. 2d34 Karthago, Carthage; Karthagini, at Carthage. Plur. 1st " Athenae, Athens; Athenis, at Athens. 2dDelphi, Delphi; Delphis, at Delphi. Cūrēs, Cures; 3dCūrībus, at Cures.

1. A similar construction is used with the words: domum, home : domo, from home; domī, at home.

rus, into the country; rure(-1), from the domos. home. country; terra, by land. rūrī (e), in the country. militiae, in military service.

mărī, by sea.

belli, abroad. humi, on the ground.

2. That is —

- a. Domus in both numbers, and rus in the singular, are put after verbs of motion in the accusative, like names of towns, without a preposition; but if a genitive or possessive pronoun limits domum, the preposition in or ad may be used, as in domum meam, to my house.
- b. The ablatives domo, humo, rure, are used like the names of towns, to denote the place from which.
- c. The ablatives loco, locis, parte, partibus, dextra, on the right, laevā, sĭnistrā, on the left hand, terrā, on land, and mărī, on sea, especially when they are modified by adjectives, are often used like names of towns, without a preposition.
- d. The forms domi (gen. domis), at home, belli (used with domi), abroad, militiae, in military service, humi, on the ground, being locatives, take no preposition.

Examples Illustrating the Uses of the Locative: -

- 1. in Galliam contendit, he hastens into Gaul.
- 2. ab urbe vēnit, he came from the city.
- 3. ĕrat in Galliā lĕgio ūna, one legion was in Gaul.
- 4. Romam venit, he came to Rome.
- 5. domum vēnit, he came home.
- 6. Romā vēnit, he came from Rome.
- 7. domo duxerat, he had brought from home.
- 8. Romae vixit, he lived at Rome.
- 9. Cŏrinthī puĕrōs dŏcēbat, he taught boys at Corinth.
- 10. nihil domi gestum est, nothing has been done at home.
- dŏmī mīlitiaeque, mărī atque terrā, at home and abroad, on land and on sea.

Obs. 1. In the foregoing examples note that 1, 2, and 3 illustrate the general rule; in Exs. 4, 6, and 8, the words denoting the place to which, the place from which, and the place at which, are names of towns, and the preposition is therefore omitted. In Exs. 5 and 7 domum and domo are in the accusative and ablative without a preposition. In Ex. 11 the locative forms domi and multitae are used without a preposition, and also mari and terra. Note that in the first and third declensions the locative is the same as the dative; in the second declension it takes the form of the genitive. In the plural of all three declensions, dative locative, and ablative are alike.

Supplementary Examples: —

- 1. in Gallorum finibus, in the territory of the Gauls.
- 2. ā Galliā contendit, he hastens away from Gaul.
- 3. Romam profectus est, he set out for Rome.
- 4. Romā profectus est, he set out from Rome.
- 5. Romae vixit, he lived at Rome.
- 6. Athēnīs vīxit, he lived at Athens.
- 7. domī vīxit, he lived at home.
- 8. Karthägini(e) vixit, he lived at Carthage.
- 9. Athenis fugiunt, they flee from Athens.
- 10. Brundisii vixit, he lived at Brundisium.
- 11. domum vēnit, he came home.
- 12. domo profectus, having set out from home.
- 13. mīles humī jācēbat, the soldier was lying on the ground.
- 14. bellī domīque, in war and in peace.
- 15. domi militiaeque, at home and abroad.
- 16. terrā mărīque (seldom mărī et terrā), by land and sea.

Obs. 2. Note that when we wish to express simply motion towards a place, or that one is near, or in the vicinity of a place, prepositions must be used, even with names of towns and small islands, because it would be impossible to tell whether Roman Ivit meant he went to Rome, or towards Rome; or Roma venit, he came from Rome, or from the vicinity of Rome.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Romam profectus est, he went to Rome; ad Romam profectus est, he set out towards Rome.
- 2. Gěnāvam pervēnit, he came to Geneva; ad Genāvam pervēnit, he arrived in the neighborhood of Geneva.
- 3. Căpuā vēnit, he came from Capua: ā Căpuā vēnit, he came from about Capua.

271. The way or road by which is put in the ablative without a preposition.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Aurēliā viā profectus est, he set out by the Aurelian way.
- 2. exercitum vădō transdücit, he leads his army across by a ford.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. If urbs or oppidum is added in apposition, the preposition in must be used.

How is the place to which expressed? The place from which? The place at which, or where? With names of towns, how is the place to which, the place from which, and the place at which expressed? With nouns of the first declension, what form does the locative take? Write the locative of Rōma, Athēnae, Thēbae. With nouns of the third declension, what form does the locative take? Write the locative of Cūrēs, Gādēs, Karthāgo. With nouns of the second declension, what form does the locative take? Write the locative of Argī (pl.), Delphī (pl.), Cŏrinthus. With all plural nouns, what form does the locative take? Write the locative of Athenae, Argī, Thebae, Cūrēs, Delphī. Write the Latin for at home, on the ground, at Athens, at Rome, at Cures, at Corinth, at Carthage. Is the preposition ever expressed with names of towns? When, and for what purpose? Write in Latin: he went to Rome; he went towards, or near, Rome; he came from Rome; he came from (the neighborhood of) Rome.

LESSON LXXVIII.

SUBJUNCTIVE MODE.

SUBJUNCTIVE OF SUM. - DATIVE OF POSSESSOR.

Obs. 1. The verb asserts action or being. The Modes of the verb are used to denote the manner in which the action or being is asserted. The Indicative Mode asserts the action or being as a fact; as, I write. Here writing is asserted as an actual fact. The Imperative Mode asserts the action not as an actual or possible fact, but as a command; as, James, write the letter. Writing is not asserted as a fact, but James is ordered to make it a fact. The Subjunctive Mode is used to express the action or being not as a fact, but as merely conceived, or thought of; as, if I should write. Here writing is asserted not as an actual fact, but only as thought of, or conceived in the mind, without regard to its becoming an actual fact. So with I may write; writing is not asserted as an actual fact, but only as a possible or doubtful fact. As the assertions of fact are made more often in principal sentences, it is obvious that the indicative chiefly is used in such clauses; but the subjunctive is used, even in independent clauses, to express an action doubtfully or indirectly, or to represent it as possible, not as real.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. sint beātī, may they be happy.
- 2. ămēmus patriam, let us love our country.
- 3. quid făciam, what am I to do?
- Obs. 2. The subjunctive in Ex. 1 expresses a wish, representing the action as desired; the indicative would assert as a fact that they are happy. Ex. 2 expresses a command indirectly, i.e. commanding an act in which the first or third person is to be the actor; the imperative is used to express a direct command. The question in Ex. 3 implies doubt, or uncertainty, and hence the subjunctive is used. The indicative is used in asking questions that do not imply doubt.

Obs. 3. The pupil should note that may, can, must, might, could, would, should, when denoting emphasis or contrast, or meaning permission or duty, are not the signs of the subjunctive, but require separate verbs; as, the soldiers can fight, meaning the soldiers are able to fight = milites pügnäre possunt. May and might are usually rendered by the proper tenses of licet; can and could, by possum; must and should, by portet, necesse est, or the gerundive.

Obs. 4. The translations of the subjunctive mode given below in connection with the conjugation of the verb are the most common meanings when used in independent sentences. The meanings in dependent sentences will be illustrated in the exercises further on.

SUBJUNCTIVE MODE.

Present.
Singular.	Plural.
1. sim, I may be.	sīmus, we may be.
2. sīs, thou mayst be.	sītis, you may be.

1. fuissem, I should have been.	fuissēmus, we should have been.
2. fuisses, thou wouldst have been.	fuissētis, you would have been.
3. fuisset, he would have been.	fuissent, they would have been.

Imperative.
Pres. 2. es, be thou.  Fut. 2. esto, thou shalt be.  3. esto, he shall be.  sunto, they shall be.
Infinitive.	Participles.
PRES. esse, to be. PERF. fuisse, to have been.
Fur. futurus esse, or fore, to be about to be.	fŭtūrus, -a, -um, about to be.

Obs. 5. The subjunctive is sometimes translated by the English Indicative; sometimes by the Potential, with the auxiliaries may, might, would, should; sometimes by the Subjunctive; sometimes by the Infinitive; and it is often used for the Imperative, especially in prohibitions.

- 1. cum sim, since I am.
- 5. adsum ut videam, I am here to see (that I may see).
- 2. sim, may I be.
- 6. sīmus, let us be, may we be.
- 3. sī essem, if I were.
  4. nē fuĕris, be thou not.
- 7. sI fuerit, if he should have been.

Obs. 6. The Present Imperative has no first or third person. If it is required, in an imperative sentence, to use the first or third person, the subjunctive is to be used; as,

Singular.	Plural.
1. sim, let me be.	sīmus, let us be.
2. es, be thou.	este, be ye.
3. sit, let him (her, it) be.	sint, let them be.

272. Instead of the regular forms of the Imperfect Subjunctive, and the Future Infinitive of sum, the following are frequently used:—

Imperfect Subjunctive.
Singular.	Plural.
forem = essem
fŏrēs = essēs
foret = esset	fŏrent == essent
Future In	FUTURE INFINITIVE.
fŏre = fŭtūrus esse

273. Dative of Possessor.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. est mihi liber, I have a book (among other things); or,
- 2. liber est meus, the book is mine (and no one else's); or,
- 3. hăbeo librum, I have, I hold, I keep, a book.

Obs. From the foregoing examples the pupil will notice that possession may be expressed in three different ways; the dative emphasizes the possessor, and is the usual way of expressing simple possession. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

DATIVE OF POSSESSOR.

274. Rule XL.—The dative of the possessor is used with the verb sum.

VOCABULARY.

LESSON LXXXII.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDEPENDENT SENTENCES.

IMPERATIVE.

278. The Latin Subjunctive has two principal uses:—

- I. It is used in Independent Sentences to express
  - 1. A Wish (Optative Subjunctive); negative is ne.
  - An Exhortation or a Mild Command, chiefly in Prohibitions (Hortatory Subjunctive), negative is nē.
  - 3. A Question of Doubt or of Deliberation (Dubitative or Deliberative Subjunctive); negative is no.
  - An Action as Possible, not as Real (Potential Subjunctive); negative is non.
  - 5. A Concession (Concessive Subjunctive), negative is ne.

II. It is used in Dependent Clauses to express —

- 1. Condition (Conditional Clause, see 325).
- 2. Comparison (Comparative Clause, see 327).
- 3. Concession (Concessive Clause, see 328).
- 4. Purpose (Final Clause, see 321).
- 5. Result (Consecutive Clause, see 322).
- 6. Characteristic (Relative Clause, see 323).
- 7. Cause (Causal Clause, see 330).
- 8. Time (Temporal Clause, see 331).
- 9. Indirect Question (Interrogative Clause, see 342).
- a. The Subjunctive is also used in relative clauses (see 355), in intermediate clauses (see 359), and in subordinate clauses in Indirect Discourse (see 346).

EXAMPLES.

- (ătinam) milites fortiores fuissent, would that the soldiers had been brave.
- 2. pūgnēmus, let us fight.
- 3. pagnet, let him fight.
- 4. në pügnëmus, let us not fight.
- 5. quid făcĕrem, what was I to do?
- 6. ĕgo censeam, I am inclined to think, or I should think.
- 7. sit clārus Scīpiō, granted that Scipio be renowned.

Obs. Ex. 1 expresses a wish, and the verb is therefore in the Optative Subjunctive; titinam, would that, O that, frequently precedes the optative subjunctive; the negative particle is not. Note, further, that the present and perfect imply that the wish may be fulfilled; the imperfect and pluperfect, that the wish is not fulfilled,—the imperfect representing an unfulfilled wish in present time, the pluperfect in past time. Exs. 2 and 3 express a mild command, commanding an act in which the first or third person is the actor; the verbs are in the Hortatory Subjunctive; the negative particle is no, not non. Ex. 4 expresses a Prohibition. Ex. 5 asks a deliberative or doubtful question; the verb is in the Dubitative or Deliberative Subjunctive. Ex. 6 makes a cautious, polite, or modest statement, and the verb is in the Potential Subjunctive. Ex. 7 expresses a concession, and the Concessive Subjunctive is used.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. See 83. 4.

2. Note that (1) when the wish is for something future, the present subjunctive is used, but the perfect may be used; (2) when it is for something present, the imperfect subjunctive is used; (3) when it is for something past, the pluperfect subjunctive is used. As the present and past cannot be changed, the wish expressed by these tenses is unfulfilled.

Mention the chief uses of the subjunctive. Give the uses of the subjunctive in independent clauses. What negative is used with the subjunctive? What with the imperative? How many persons has the imperative? How is a future, a present, and a past wish expressed?

LESSON LXXXIII.

DEPONENT VERBS OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION. — ABLATIVE WITH DEPONENTS.

- 279. Many verbs are used only in the Passive Voice, but with an Active meaning. These are called Deponent (laying aside), because they lay aside the active form and the passive meaning.
- 1. They occur in all four conjugations, and the conjugation to which they belong is determined by the characteristic vowel of the present infinitive. They are inflected like the passive of other verbs, and have also the gerund, participles, and supines of the active voice.
  - 2. Deponents of the First Conjugation are inflected as follows:

PRINCIPAL PARTS.

Present.	Pres. Inf.	Perf. Ind.
1. mīror	mīrārī	mīrātus sum, admire.
2. hortor	hortārī	hortātus sum, exhort.
3. glörior	glōriārī	glõriātus sum, boast.

Infinitive.

PRES. mīrārī, to admire.

PERF mīrātus esse, to have admired.

Fur miraturus esse, to be about to admire.

F. P. mīrātus fore, to have been about to admire.

Participles.

PRES. mīrāns, admiring.

Fut. mīrātūrus, about to admire.

GER. mirandus, to be admired.

Gerund.

Gen. mīrandī, of admiring.

Perf mīrātus, having admired

Acc. mirandum, admiring.

DAT. mīrandō, to, for admiring. ABL. mīrandō, with, from, by admiring.

Supine.

FORMER. mīrātum, to admire.

LATTER. mīrātū, { to admire, to be admired.

- a. Note that Deponent Verbs have four participles, the two active and the two passive. They are the only Latin verbs that have a perf. partic. with an active meaning; as, hortatus, having exhorted.
- b. The Gerundive, being passive in meaning, is found only in transitive verbs (263. Obs. 1), or in intransitive verbs used impersonally; hence only the gerundives of transitive deponent verbs, or the impersonal forms of intransitive deponent verbs, can be used; as,

EXAMPLES.

- 1. hortandus, fit to be, or must be exhorted.
- pügnandum est mihi, I must fight (lit., fighting must be done by me).
- 3. möriendum est nöbīs, we must die.

c. The Perfect Participle of a few deponent verbs may have a passive meaning; as,

EXAMPLE.

- 1. adeptus, having obtained, or having been obtained.
- 280. Ablative with utor, fruor, etc.

EXAMPLES.

- plūrimis măritimis rēbus fruimur et ūtimur, we enjoy and use very many maritime productions.
- 2. Caesar oppido potitur, Cæsar obtains possession of the town.
- 3. lacte vescuntur, they live on milk.
- 4. fungitur officio, he performs his duty.

Obs. Note the translation of the deponent verbs in each of the foregoing sentences; note that each is construed with the ablative, as if it were an accusative. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ABLATIVE WITH DEPONENTS.

281. Rule XLI. — Utor, fruor, fungor, pŏtior, vescor, and their compounds, are followed by the ablative.

- Obs. 2. The gerund and gerundive of the 3d and 4th conjugations, instead of -endī, -endus, may, especially after i, end in -undī and -undus; as, pŏtiundus, făcundī.

SEMI-DEPONENT VERBS.

283. Four verbs, having no perfect stems, take the form of the passive in the perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect tenses only. They form the tenses derived from the present stem regularly. Such verbs, being half active and half passive in form, are called semi-deponents, or neuter passives. They are:—

Present.	Pres. Inf.	Perf. Passive.
audeo	audēre	ausus sum, dare.
gaudeo	gaudēre	gāvīsus sum, rejoice.
sŏleo	sŏlēre	sŏlītus sum, am accustomed.

LESSON LXXXV.

PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATIONS. - DATIVE OF AGENT.

284. The Periphrastic 1 Conjugations are formed by combining the tenses of esse with the future active participle and with the gerundive.

I. Active Periphrastic Conjugation.

285. The Active Periphrastic Conjugation, formed by combining the tenses of esse with the future active participle, denotes an intended or future action.

Obs. The subjunctive has no future tense; its place may be supplied, whenever it is necessary to distinguish accurately future from present time in subordinate clauses, by the periphrastic subjunctive, which may be called the future subjunctive.

287. Dative of the Agent.

EXAMPLES.

- diligentia colenda est nobis, we must cultivate a habit of carefulness (lit., (a habit of) carefulness is to us to be cultivated).
- 2. Caesărī omnia uno tempore erat agenda, Cæsar had to do everything at one time (lit., everything was to Cæsar to be done at one time).
- 3. omnībus moriendum est, all must die (lit., (the necessity of) dying is to all).
- Caesări in Galliam măturandum, Cœsar had to hasten into Gaul (lit., (the necessity of) hastening into Gaul was to Cœsar).

Obs. In Exs. 1 and 2 note that with the gerundive the person upon whom the obligation rests of doing the action is expressed by the dative; this dative expresses not merely the doer of the action, but the person interested in doing it, and is, therefore, to be classified under the Dative of Interest (see 193.3). Note that the verbs in Exs. 1 and 2 are transitive, 5 and the periphrastic forms have a subject with which they agree in gender, number, and case; in Exs. 3 and 4 the verbs are intransitive, the periphrastic forms have no subject, but are of the third person singular, neuter gender. The verb is here used impersonally, but the agent is in the dative. The idiom may be stated as follows:—

DATIVE OF AGENT.

288. Rule XLII.—The dative of the agent is used with the gerundive to denote the person interested in doing the action.

- 1. The dative of agent is often used after perfect participles.
- 2. The agent with passive verbs is usually denoted by the ablative with ā or ab.

Translate into Latin: --

1. The town must be stormed by the soldiers. 2. Cæsar must hasten into Gaul. 3. They must write the letter. 4. You will have to fortify the town.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The word periphrastic is derived from two Greek words, and means round-about speaking = the English word circumlocution (circum, around, and loquor, I speak).
  - 2. The periphrastic forms are inflected regularly.
  - 3. The subjunctive has no future tense. (See 285. Obs.)
- 4. The passive periphrastic conjugation occurs only in transitive verbs. With intransitive verbs used in the passive, the impersonal (263. Obs. 1) form is used, and the agent is in the dative; as, cīvībus subvěniendum est, we must help the citizens.
- 5. Whenever the verb itself takes the dative, the agent is usually expressed by the ablative with ā or ab; as, cīvībus ā võbīs consülendum, the interest of the citizens must be consulted by all.
  - 6. In what two ways may this dative be translated?

LESSON LXXXVI.

TABLE OF THE FOUR CONJUGATIONS.

- 289. We have learned that there are three stems on which all the tenses of the verb are formed:—
- 1. The PRESENT STEM, found by dropping -re of the Present Infinitive Active, on which are formed the tenses expressing incomplete action; viz.,
  - The Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative, active and passive.
  - The Present and Imperfect Subjunctive, active and passive.
  - c. The IMPERATIVE, active and passive.
  - d. The Present Infinitive, active and passive.
  - e. The Present Active Participle.
  - f. The GERUND and the GERUNDIVE.

1. The master praises the boys. 2. The general punishes the soldiers. 3. The father is calling the boy. 4. The arrow wounds the soldier. 5. The teacher praises the boys and the girls. 6. The man writes the letter. 7. The soldiers storm the town.

Supplementary Exercises: -

1. The soldiers are praised by their commander. 2. The war has been finished. 3. The soldier was killed by a javelin. 4. Let those boys be praised. 5. Let the letter be written. 6. I think these soldiers will finish the war. 7. They desire to depart. 8. The men are commanded to fight.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. The translation is —

PRES. I am being loved, or I am loved, etc.

PERF. I have been loved, etc.

AOR. I was loved, etc.

IMP. I was being loved, etc. PLUP. I had been loved, etc.

Fur. I shall or will be loved, etc. F. P. I shall or will have been loved, etc.

2. The form is inflected as follows: —

Masc. Fem. Neuter.

Sing. ămātus amāta amātum sum, es, etc.

Plur. āmātī amātae amāta sumus, estis, etc.

- 3. See above, note 4.
- 4. Notice that reg + tus = rec-tus.
- 5. Verb-stem =  $\mathbf{d\bar{u}c}$  +  $\mathbf{tum}$  =  $\mathbf{ductum}$ .

How do you distinguish the conjugations? Give the present stem of the first conjugation. What is meant by the principal parts of a verb? What are the principal parts in the passive voice? How is the perfect of each conjugation formed? What verbs take two accusatives of the same person or thing? Give the tense-sign of the imperfect indicative active. How is the participial stem of each conjugation formed? What is the tense-sign of the present? (Ans. It has none.) What is the tense-sign of the future perfect? (Ans. amāvě-ri-mus.) Has the indicative any special sign to mark the mode? (Ans. No.) What are the personal endings of the present? These endings were originally personal pronouns, and have, accordingly, the force of pronouns in English. Remember that the verbal endings contain —

- 1. The tense-sign; as -ba- in ămā-ba-m.
- 2. The mode-vowel; as -ā- in reg-ā-s.
- 3. The personal ending; as -s in reg-a-s.

Are the future participle active and supines formed from this stem? (Ans. Strictly they are not; the future participle active is an adjective form to nouns in -tor, -sor: as, lec-tor, fut. part. lec-tūrus; the supine is a noun of the fourth conjugation in -tu or -su, nom. -tum or -sum; but as the form is the same as the participial stem, and as the suffixes begin with t, these forms are usually referred to this stem.)

LESSON LXXXVII.

GENITIVE AND ABLATIVE OF QUALITY.

EXERCISE FOR SIGHT-READING.

290. Genitive of Quality.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. vir māxīmī consīliī, a man of very great sagacity.
- 2. fossa quindĕcim pĕdum, a ditch of fifteen feet.
- 3. vir est excellentis ingenii, he is a man of excellent disposition.
- 4. Caesar Dumnörigem mägni animi et mägnae inter Gallös auctöritätis cögnöverat, Cæsar knew that Dumnorix was (a man) of great courage and influence among the Gauls.

291. Ablative of Quality.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. summā virtūte ădŭlēscēns, a youth of the greatest valor.
- Cătilina ingenio mălo fuit, Catiline was a man of a bad disposition.
- Caesar fuïsse trādītur excelsā stătūrā, Cæsar is said to have been of tall stature.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the nouns added for description (as consilii, pědum, ingěnii, animi, auctoritatis) are all in the genitive case, and that, in every instance, the genitive is accompanied by an adjective (as māximī, quindēcim, excellentis. māgnī, māgnae). This genitive cannot be used without an accompanying adjective: as, a man of talent is homo ingeniosus (not homo ingenii); but, a man of great talent is homo magni ingenii. Note, further, that in every instance the relation expressed is between two nouns; thus, a dich of fifteen feet is fossa quindĕcim pĕdum, but when lātus is added, we must say fossa quindĕcim pěděs läta, a ditch fifteen feet deep. (Note that animi and auctoritatis, in Ex. 4, stand in the predicate after the intransitive verb esse understood.) A genitive added in this way to a noun for further description is called a DESCRIPTIVE GENITIVE, or a GENI-TIVE OF QUALITY, OF CHARACTERISTIC; if it stands in the predicate after an intransitive verb, it is called a PREDICATE GENITIVE OF QUALITY, etc. Note that in Exs. 1, 2, 3, under 291, the nouns virtute, ingenio, and statura are added to express quality, or for further description, and that these nouns are in the ablative. Distinguish the attributive (virtūte) and the predicate use (ingenio, stătūrā). The idioms are expressed in the following rule: -

GENITIVE AND ABLATIVE OF QUALITY.

292. RULE XLIII.—A noun denoting quality, quantity, or description, and having an adjective joined with it, may be put in the genitive or in the ablative.

Obs. The use of the ablative is more common, but the two cases are often used indifferently, and sometimes both are found in the same sentence.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: -

1. Germānī virī corpŏrum ingentī māgnitūdine fuērunt.
2. Cătīlīna fuit māgnā vī et ănimī et corpŏris. 3. Bibracte est oppidum ăpud Aeduōs māximae auctōritātis. 4. Caesar, vir summī ingĕniī (or summō ingĕniō), prūdentiam cum ēlŏquentiā junxit.

LESSON LXXXVIII.

IRREGULAR VERBS.

- 293. Irregular Verbs deviate from the common inflection in some of the parts formed from the present stem. The tenses formed from the perfect and participial stems are inflected alike in all verbs. The forms called irregular are, for the most part, either syncopated or ancient forms.
  - 1. The most common Irregular Verbs are:
    - 1. sum, I am. 5. fěro, I bear.
    - vŏlo, I wish.
       mālo, I prefer.
       fo, I am made, or become.
    - 4. nolo, I am unwilling. 8. ĕdo, I eat.
      - 9. queo, I am able.

2. Pos-sum, I am able, I can, a compound of the adjective potis (pote), able, and sum, is inflected as follows:—

The infinitive posses, subjunctive possem, are shortened forms of pŏtesses and pŏtessem. Possum has no imperative, no future participle, no gerund, and no supine; pŏtēns is used only as an adjective. The omitted forms are wanting.

3. Prō-sum, I help, I profit, is inflected like sum, but retains its original d (prōd-) before a vowel, and loses it before a consonant; as,

EXAMPLES.

 Caesar potest Iter dăre (256), Cæsar is able to give, or can give, a passage.

- 2. Caesar pŏtĕrat iter dăre, Cæsar was able to give, or could give, a passage.
- 3. Caesar poterit Iter dare, Cæsar will be able to give a passage.
- 4. Caesar potuit iter dăre, Cæsar has been able to give, or could have given, a passage.

Syn. Possum, I am able, because I have sufficient power; queo, I am able, because circumstances allow.

EXERCISES.

Name the mode, tense, number, and person of the following forms:—

1. Potest, poterat, poterit. 2. Possumus, poterāmus, poterimus. 3. Ego possum legere, tu potes scrībere. 4. Caesar oppidum expūgnāre potest. 5. Amīcīs¹ prodesse possumus. 6. I have wished, I had wished. 5. You wish to know. 6. We had been unwilling. 7. Do you prefer to read or to write?

NOTES AND OUESTIONS.

- 1. Quam strengthens plūrimās = as many as possible.
- 2. Prohibitions are often expressed by noll with the infinitive; translate do not write. Noll is softer than no sortbe.
  - 3. Agent after a verb in the passive voice.

What is meant by an irregular verb? In what tenses are they irregular? Give the compounds of vŏlo. The stem of vŏlo is vŏl, the root-vowel o being changed to e or u. The form vīs stands for vŏl-is, vel-is, vil-is (= vīs). Velle is for vel-se, so vellem for vel-sem.

296. Ablative of Specification.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. rēx nomine fuit, he was king in name.
- 2. claudius altero pede, lame in one foot.
- Helvētii rěliquôs Gallôs virtūte praecēdunt, the Helvetians surpass the other Gauls in valor.
- oppida sua omnia, núměrô ad duôděcim incendunt, they burn all their towns, about twelve in number.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, nomine, pede, virtute, and numero, show in what respect or particular the statement is true, i.e., the Helvetians surpass the other Gauls in respect to valor. The principle is expressed in the following rule:—

ABLATIVE OF SPECIFICATION.

297. Rule XLIV.—A noun, adjective, or verb may be followed by the ablative to denote in what respect its signification is taken.

EXERCISES.

Obs. 1. Eo is of the fourth conjugation, with variations; the stem is i (lengthened to  $\bar{i}$ , except in the future participle and in the supines), which is changed into e before a, o, and u; as, eo, eunt, eam, etc.

Obs. 2. Eo and its intransitive compounds are used in the passive only impersonally: IND. ītur, ībātur, ībītur, ītum est, etc.; Subs. eātur, īrētur, ītum sit, etc.; but the transitive compounds are used regularly in the passive; īrī occurs as an auxiliary in the future infinitive passive. (See 251.)

Obs. 3. The compounds of eo usually take -ii, rarely -ivi in the perfect tenses; as, adeo, I approach, makes adiī, adieram, adissem, etc.

Obs. 4. The compounds of eo which have a transitive meaning are conjugated throughout in the passive: as, adeo, I approach; Pass.

ădeor, ădīris, ădītur, ădīmur, ădīminī, ădeuntur, etc.

Obs. 5. Ambio, I go about, retains the i throughout, and is conjugated regularly like a verb of the fourth conjugation. Hence we find ambiebam, but occasionally ambibam, the gerund ambiendi, etc. The perfect participle is ambītus, though the verbal substantive is ambītus.

Obs. 1. Edo is of the third conjugation, with variations; & or i before s or t is dropped, and the d of the stem changed to s; also the original s takes the place of the r; as,  $ede^{-re} = es$ -se, not es-re.

Obs. 2. The passive voice is regular; only estur is generally used instead of editur, and essetur instead of ederetur. The perfect participle is ēsus.

300. The Ablative of Difference.

EXAMPLES.

- sol multis partibus mājor est quam terra, the sun is very much (lit., by many parts) larger than the earth.
- alterum iter multo expeditius erat, the other route was much more passable (more passable by much).
- hīc locus aequo spatio ab castris Ariovisti et Caesaris aberat, this place was (distant by an equal space) the same distance from the camp of Ariovistus and (from that) of Cosar.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that the ablatives partibus, multō, spătiō, express the measure of difference. These words follow the comparatives, mājor and expĕdītius; the ablative spătiō denotes extent of space, which is usually put in the accusative (see 215), but may be in the ablative, as it is in this case, denoting the degree of difference (lit., was absent by an equal distance). Hence the following rule:—

ABLATIVE OF DIFFERENCE.

301. Rule XLV.— The ablative is used, with comparatives and words implying comparison, to denote the measure of difference.

Obs. The ablative of difference includes the ablative of distance. (See 215. 1.)

EXERCISES.

Name the mode, tense, number, and person of the following verbs:—

1. Imus, ībāmus, ībīmus, eāmus. 2. Ego ăbeo, tū ex itinēre rēdīs. 3. It, eunt, ībit. 4. Ivit, īvērat, īte, ītis, īvērāmus. 5. I, quō tē fāta vŏcant. 6. I, lictor, dēligā puērum ad pālum. 7. Edimus, ĕdāmus, ĕdunt.

Translate into Latin: -

1. They go, they were going, they will go. 2. He was going, he will go, he goes. 3. We go, we were going, we will go. 4. Go thou, I go, I have gone, I had gone. 5. The sun is much larger than the earth. 6. The tower was ten feet higher than the wall. 7. My country is much dearer to me than life. 8. They make the year one day longer.

Pres.	Pres. fierī Perf. factus, -a, -um, esse Fut. factum īrī
		Partici	ples.
P	Perf. factus, -a, -um Ger. făciendus, -a, -um

Obs. 1. Fio (which stands for fa-i-o) is used as the passive of facio, which has no passive forms (except faciendus and factus); on the other hand, factus sum, I have become, has the meaning of the perfect of fio; fiĕrī is not really a passive form, but an old infinitive active, fiĕreī.

Obs. 2. The i in fio is always long, except in fit and when not followed by r (in present infinitive and imperfect subjunctive).

Obs. 3. Most compounds of facio with prepositions change a to i (present stem), and are inflected regularly; the passive ends in -ficior; other compounds retain a and have fio in the passive.

Obs. 4. Queo, I am able, is conjugated like eo, but as it is an unusual verb, it is here omitted; it has a compound, nequeo, I am unable.

303. Genitive and Ablative of Price.

EXAMPLES.

- $1.\ \, \mathbf{d\breve{o}mum}\ \, \mathbf{du\ddot{o}bus}\ \, \mathbf{t\breve{a}lent\ddot{i}s}\ \, \mathbf{\breve{e}mit}, he\ bought\ \, a\ house\ \, for\ \, two\ \, talents.$
- viginti tălentis unam orationem vendidit, he sold a single speech for twenty talents.
- 3. pāce bellum mūtāvit, he exchanged war for peace.
- 4. Emit hortos tanti, he purchased the gardens at so great a price.
- 5. virtūs māximī aestimātur, virtue is valued very highly.

Obs. Note that emit, a verb of buying, vendidit, a verb of selling, mūtāvit, a verb of exchanging, are each followed by the ablatives tălentīs, pāce, denoting the price, and fixing it at a definite sum; the ablative is used because the price is the means by which a thing is bought, sold, or exchanged. In Exs. 4 and 5, after the same verbs, emit and aestimātur, the price is expressed by tantī and māximī, both being in the genitive, and both designating the price indefinitely. The idiom is expressed in the following rule:—

ABLATIVE OF PRICE.

304. Rule XLVI. — Price is expressed by the ablative when it is a definite sum.

1. If the price is indefinitely expressed, the genitive is used; in this way the genitives of certain adjectives of Quantity, as tantī, quantī, plūris, mǐnōris, māgnī, parvī, etc., are used.

EXERCISES.

Name the mode, tense, number, and person of each of the following verbs:—

Fīunt, fīēbant, fīent, fīāmus.
 Fīmus, fīebāmus, fīēmus.
 Factus est, factī sunt.

LESSON XCIII.

DEFECTIVE VERBS. - INSTRUMENTAL ABLATIVE.

- 305. Defective Verbs want some of their parts. The following are the most common Defective Verbs that do not use the tenses formed from the present stem:—
  - 1. coepī, I begin. 2. měminī, I remember. 3. ödī, I hate.

Obs. There is a large number of verbs that are more or less defective; those enumerated here are the most defective of those that are commonly used.

1. Odf, coepī (for the present of which incīpio is used), and memīnī are only used in the Perfect Tenses, and hence are sometimes called preteritive (or past) verbs.

PARTIAL PARADIGM.

Obs. 1. Instead of coepī and its tenses, the passive coeptus sum, etc., is used before an infinitive passive; as, urbs aedīficārī coepta est, the city began to be built.

- OBS. 2. Novi is properly the perfect of nosco, I learn to know.
- OBS. 3. Měmini, odi, and novi have in the perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect the meaning of the present, imperfect, and future respectively.
- 2. The following have only the tenses formed from the present stem, and these are in many cases incomplete: -
  - 1. āio, I say.
- 3. fārī, to speak.
- 5. salve, hail.

- 2. inquam, I say. 4. quaeso, I ask, beg. 6. queo, I can.
- a. Aio, I say (for ag-io, cf. ad-ag-ium), has only the following forms: -

Person.	PRESENT.		Imperfect.

3	āiunt	āiant	āiēbant
Pres. Part. äiēns

Obs. i between two vowels (=j) is pronounced like y;  $\bar{a}i$ - is not a diphthong.

b. Inquam, say I, has only the following forms:—

Indicative.
Pres. inquam inquis inquit inquimus inquitis inquiunt	Imp. inquiēbam inquiēbās inquiēbat inquiēbāmus inquiēbātis inquiēbant

Obs. Inquam, inquit, like the English say I, says he, are always used parenthetically, themselves and subjects following between commas after a word or words of the quotation. It is used, except in poetry, only in direct quotations. (See 342.)

c. Fari, to speak, a deponent, is used only in the following forms, unless compounded with a preposition:—

Indicative.	Subjunctive.	Parti	ciples.
Pres. fātur		Pres. (fans) fantis, etc. (wit
Fur. fabor, fabitu	r —	out a nominative).

INSTRUMENTAL ABLATIVE.

Obs. The instrumental ablative is used to express a variety of relations, the most important of which may be stated as follows:—

ABLATIVE OF MEANS OR INSTRUMENT.

306. The means and instrument are denoted by the ablative without a preposition.

EXAMPLES.

- cornībus taurī sē tūtantur, bulls defend themselves with their horns.
- frümentum flümine Arari nävibus subvēxerat, he had conveyed corn in ships up the river Arar.
- 1. The ablative of means without a preposition is used with utor, fruor, etc. (see 280); as, plurimis rebus utimur, we use, i.e. we serve ourselves by means of many things.
- 2. Potion, in the sense of becoming master of, takes the genitive; as, totius Galliae potini, to become master of all Gaul.

ABLATIVE OF MEASURE.

307. The Ablative without a preposition is used to denote the standard by which anything is measured or judged.

EXAMPLE.

māgnōs hominēs virtūte mētīmur, non fortūnā, we measure great men by worth, not by fortune.

- Obs. 1. The ablative of measure is used with the comparative instead of quam with the nominative or accusative. (See 143.)
- Obs. 2. The measure of difference is denoted by the ablative. (See 301.) This ablative is common with the ablative of pronouns (eō...quō) and of adjectives of quantity (tantō, quantō, multō, paulō, etc.) and with verbs implying comparison (as, antĕcello, excello, supĕro, etc.).
  - Obs. 3. Distance may be denoted by the ablative. (See 301.)
- Obs. 4. Price, when a definite sum, is denoted by the ablative. (See 304.) Here belongs the ablative with dignus, indignus. For ablative of specification, see 297.
- Obs. 5. Here belongs the ablative, with the adverbs ante and post, to denote how long before or after a thing happens; as, paucīs ante diēbus, or paucīs diēbus ante, a few days before; paucīs post diēbus, or paucīs diēbus post, a few days after. The accusative can be used; as, ante paucōs annōs, a few years before.

ABLATIVE OF MATERIAL.

308. The material of which anything is made is regularly expressed by the ablative with ex or dē, but constāre, to consist, sometimes omits the preposition.

EXAMPLE.

ănimō constâmus et corpŏre, we consist of soul and body.

- Obs. 1. The ablative of material is used with words of plenty and want, especially with verbs signifying filling, abounding, supplying, furnishing, and the like.
- Obs. 2. Opus and usus, signifying need, are followed by the ablative of the thing needed.

EXAMPLE.

duce nobis opus est, there is need to us of a leader.

- Obs. 3. Sometimes the thing needed is the subject and ŏpus the predicate; hence we may say either dŭce nōbīs ŏpus est, there is need to us of a leader, or dux nōbīs est, a leader is a need to us.
  - Obs. 4. The adjective praeditus is followed by the ablative.

EXAMPLE.

virtute praedītus, endowed with virtue.

ABLATIVE OF MANNER.

309. The Ablative of Manner generally takes the preposition cum, unless it has a modifying adjective or genitive (when cum may be omitted).

Obs. But cum is never used with the following ablatives: modo, ratione, more, genere, rito, etc.; also, hac mente, hoc consilio, ea lege, meo periculo, jure, injuria, etc.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. cum cūrā scrībit, he writes with care.
- cum (or without cum) māgnā cūrā scrībit, he writes with great care.
- magno fletu auxilium a Caesare petunt, with a flood of tears they seek aid from Caesar.
- intellegebat magno cum periculo provinciae futurum (esse), he perceived that it would be attended with the great danger to the province.
- Caesar omnībus copiīs proficiscitur, Cæsar departs with all his forces.

ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT.

310. The Ablative of Accompaniment takes the preposition cum, except in a few military and other phases.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. cum decima legione venit, he came with the tenth legion.
- subsĕquēbātur omnĭbus cōpiīs, he followed close with all his forces.
- 1. If with signifies in company with, in conflict with, cum must be used; but relations cross, and whenever manner or accompaniment can be regarded as means, the preposition is omitted.

311. Ablative of Quality or Characteristic. (See 292.)

Obs. Note the close connection between these three uses of the ablative of manner: the first, he writes with care, care being an attendant circumstance; the second, he comes with the tenth legion, the ablative designating that with which he is attended; the third, an attendant quality. (See 292.)

312. The Uses of the Ablative may be tabulated as follows: --

a. The Place from which.

- b. Separation. 1. ABLATIVE PROPER { c. Cause (including Source, Origin, fretus, contentus, fīdo, confīdo, diffīdo, and Agency with a or ab after passive verbs).
  - (a. Means, Instrument, Deponents, ūtor. etc. b. Measure, Measure of Difference, Price, dignus, indīgnus.
- 2. Instrumental
- MENTAL c. Comparison.

  ABLATIVE d. Specification.
  - e. Material, Plenty, and Want, ŏpus, ūsus, praeditus. f. Manner, Accompaniment (with cum), Quality.
- 3. LOCATIVE . . . . .  $\begin{cases} a. & Place where. \\ b. & Time and Circumstance. \\ c. & Ablative Absolute. \end{cases}$

Syn. Dico, say or speak formally; loquor (loqui), speak or talk (opposed to taceo, keep silent); for (fari), talk, use articulate speech; aio, assent, say yes, expresses the assertion of the speaker (opposed to nego); inquam, inquit, say I, says he, used to introduce the very words of the speaker, and always comes after one or more words of the quotation (305. 2. Obs.).

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: --

1. Ait, aisn'? āio. 2. Inquit, fātur. 3. Oculis vidēmus, aurībus audīmus. 4. Vir lāpide interfectus est. 5. Sōlus pŏtītus est impēriō Rōmulus. 6. Vir dīmicat ferro. 7. Vir culpā dīgnus est. 8. "Omnia pěriērunt," inquit Caesar, "consulite, milites, vestrae săluti." 9. Eadem condicione dēdītionis ūsus est. 10. Germānī virī corporum ingentī māgnitūdine fuērunt.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

Learn the synopsis of coepi, memini, odi. What is a defective verb? Which defective verbs have in the perfect and pluperfect the meaning of the present and imperfect? How are the uses of the ablative classified? Give the chief uses of the ablative proper; of the instrumental ablative; of the locative ablative.

LESSON XCIV.

IMPERSONAL VERBS. — GENITIVE WITH VERB.

- 313. Verbs used only in the third person singular, and not admitting a definite person or thing as the subject, are called impersonal.1
- 1. Impersonal Verbs are conjugated like other verbs, but are used, for the most part, in the indicative and subjunctive, and in the present and the perfect infinitives, with traces of participles and gerunds. Impersonal is only the name of a use more or less fixed, not of a list of verbs. Decet (314. 2), etc., are not true impersonals: their subject is an infinitive, or a sentence used as a noun. In the passive voice the idea of the subject must generally be found in the verb itself; as, milites pugnant, the soldiers fight. becomes a militibus pugnatur, it is fought (i.e. fighting is done) by the soldiers.

Obs. The essence of an impersonal verb is that it has no analytic subject, - no subject expressed or understood outside of the verb itself, — whether person or thing. The classification is purely formal, not logical. Fätur, fäma est, fërunt, populus fert, all mean the same; only fatur is impersonal.

2. The synopsis of Impersonal Verbs of the four conjugations may be given as follows: -

PARTS.

- ( 1. constat, constăre, constitit, it is evident.
- PRINCIPAL | 2. licet, licere, licuit, it is permitted. 3. accidit, accidere, accidit, it happens.
  - 4. evenit, evenire, evenit, it results.

constat	licet	accidit	ēvěnit
constābat	licēbat	accidēbat	ēvěniēbat

- 314. The Impersonal uses of verbs may be classified as follows:—
- 1. Verbs relating to the weather: as, fulgărat, it lightens; grandînat, it hails; lücescit, it grows light; tonat, it thunders; illūcescit, it becomes light.

Obs. Sometimes these verbs are used personally, the name of the deity or some other agent, generally expressing a cognate idea, being expressed as the subject; as, Juppiter pluit, Jupiter rains; dies illucescit, day dawns.

2. Verbs relating to the feelings. The person who feels is put in the accusative; as, mē mīsĕret, it grieves me (i.e. I grieve). The following verbs of the second conjugation belong to this class:—

PRINCIPAL PARTS.

Pres. Ind. děcet	Pres. In r. děcēre	Perf. Ind. Participle.  děcuit — it becomes.
dēděcet	dēděcēre	dēděcuit, it is unseemly.
libet	libēre	libuit and libitum est, it pleases.
licet	licēre	licuit and licitum est, it is lawful.
liquet	lĭquēre	, it is clear.
misěret or { misěrētur }	misĕrēre	miseritum est, it excites pity.
ŏportet	ŏportēre	. oportuit, it behoves.
piget	pigēre	piguit and pigitum est, it vexes.
plăcet	plăcēre	plăcuit and plăcitum est, it pleases.
paenitet	paenitēre	paenituit, it causes sorrow.
pŭdet	pŭdēre	p ŭduit and p ŭdĭtum est , it shames.
taedet	taedēre	(per-)taesum, it wearies.

EXAMPLE. ACTIVE.

Latin idiom: -

Becomes a young man to be modest, or To be modest becomes a young man,

English idiom:—
It becomes a young man to be modest,

děcet věrēcundum esse ădülescentem.

- Obs. 1. As the English idiom requires a subject, the pronoun it is placed before the impersonal verb in translating.
- Obs. 2. These verbs are not used in the imperative; the subjunctive is used in its place; as, pudeat te, shame thyself. Some of these verbs have a passive voice, as misereor, I pity (am moved)

- by pity), and occasionally other parts:—(1) Participles: decens, becoming; libens, willing; lioens, free; licitus, allowed. (2) Gerundives: poenitendus, to be repented of; pudendus, shameful. (3) Gerunds: pigendum, poenitendi, -ō, -um; pudendi, ō, -um.
- OBS. 3. All of these verbs (except miseret, oportet, taedet) can have a neuter pronoun as subject, and are then personal: as, hoc pudet me, this shames me; hace libert, these things please. Libert and licer can have an adjective used as noun as subject, as non omnia licent, not every thing pleases; and decet and dedecet can have any word as subject, as virtus vos decet, virtue becomes you. See 315. 3 (1).
- 3. Some personal verbs seem, in certain senses, to be used impersonally; but they are not truly so, because the real subject is generally an infinitive or a clause. Such verbs are:—

		PERSONAL.	IMPERSONAL.
accidit .			he, she (it) falls upon.	it happens (ill).
appāret			" appears.	it appears.
attinet .			" lays hold of.	it belongs to.
condücit			" leads together	. it is useful.
contingit			" touches.	it befalls (well).
convěnit			" comes together	. it is agreed upon.
expědit			" extricates.	it is expedient.
fallit .			" deceives	•
fügit .			" flies	it escapes.
praetěrit			" goes past	•
intěrest			" is present at.	it concerns.
jŭvat .			" helps.	it delights.
pătet .			" is open.	it is plain.
plăcet .			" pleases.	it seems good.
etc.			etc.	etc.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. ut Tiberis inter eds et pons interesset, so that the Tiber and bridge might be between them (personal use).
- intérest omnium recté făcere, it concerns all to do right (impersonal use).
- 4. Intransitive verbs, when used in the passive (the participle is neuter): as, curritur, there is running, or they run; mihi creditur, it is credited to me, I am believed; non hostibus parcitur, there is no quarter given to the enemy, or the enemy is not spared; mihi invidetur, there is envy to me, i.e. I am envied; hostibus resistunt, they resist the enemy (used personally); his sententiis resistitur, resistance is offered to these opinions. When the Agent is mentioned, it is put in the ablative with the preposition a or ab, or may remain in the dative: as, (Act.) Helvētii fortiter pūgnāvērunt, the Helvetians fought bravely; (Impers.) ab Helvētiis fortiter pūgnātum est, it was fought bravely by the Helvetians, i.e. the Helvetians fought bravely.

- 5. The passive of the periphrastic conjugation is often used impersonally; the participle is then always neuter (see 287. Obs.): as, mihi scribendum est, I must write (lit., the necessity of writing is to me); illi scribendum est, he must write.
- Obs. 1. The persons are expressed in the following way in the present indicative, and similarly in the other tenses:—

pŭdet mē, it shames me, or I am ashamed. pŭdet tē, it shames thee, or thou art ashamed. pŭdet eum, it shames him, or he is ashamed. pŭdet nōs, it shames us, or we are ashamed. pŭdet vōs, it shames you, or you are ashamed. pŭdet vōs, it shames them, or they are ashamed.

Obs. 2. The impersonal verbs libet, it pleases, licet, it is lawful, and expedit, it is expedient, are used with the dative; as, licet min ire, it is lawful for me to go, or I may go.

315. Genitive with Verbs.

VERBS OF MEMORY.

1. Verbs of reminding, remembering, and forgetting, — recordor (rarely), memini, reminiscor, and obliviscor, — are followed by the genitive (sometimes by the accusative).

EXAMPLES.

- měminī vīvōrum, I am mindful of the living.
- 2. remînisci virtūtis, to remember virtue.

GENITIVE OF CRIME.

2. Verbs of accusing, convicting, condemning, and acquitting take the accusative of the person and the genitive of the crime.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. practor reum crīminis absolvit, the prætor acquitted the prisoner of the crime.
- 2. arguit me furti, he accuses me of theft.

VERBS OF FEELING.

- 3. The genitive is used with the following: -
- (f) Misĕreor, misĕrēsco, I pity. (Cf. 314. 2.)

EXAMPLE.

miseresco infelicium, I pity the unfortunate.

(2) With the impersonals refert and interest, it concerns, it interests. (See 314.3.)

EXAMPLE.

interest omnium recte facere, it is to the interest of all to act rightly.

a. Instead of the genitive of the personal pronoun, the forms meā, tuā, suā, nostrā, and vestrā, are used.

EXAMPLE.

meā nihil rēfert, it does not concern me.

- (3) The impersonal verbs miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, and taedet, take the genitive of the object with the accusative of the person. (See 314.2.)
  - EXAMPLES.
  - 1. eðrum nos miseret, we pity them.
  - 2. mē taedet vītae, I am weary of life.

GENITIVE WITH OTHER VERBS.

4. Sum, and verbs of valuing, take the genitive to express the price or value indefinitely. (Definite price is expressed by the ablative. See 304.)

EXAMPLE.

ager nunc pluris est quam tunc fuit, the field is of more value now than it was then.

VOCABULARY.

rĕ-cordor, -ārī, -ātus sum, dep., remember, recollect. mĕminī, -īsse, def., I remember. (See 320. Obs. 2) rĕminiscor, -iscī (no perf.), dep., recollect, remember. oblīviscor, oblīviscī, oblītus sum, dep., forget. mīsĕreor, -ērī, -ītus sum, dep., pity. mīsĕresco, -scĕre (no perf., no partic.), feel pity. rēfert, it concerns.

EXERCISES.

Translate into English: ---

1. Mihi īre licuit. 2. Pūgnandum est prō patsiā.
3. Rěminiscěre pristinae virtūtis Helvētiōrum. 4. Animus měminit praetěritōrum. 5. Frātris meī mē misěret. 6. Contrōversiārum et dissensiōnum oblīvisciminī. 7. Vir reus est crīminis. 8. Tē fortūnae tuae paenitet. 9. Rōmānī eum căpitis damnāvērunt. 10. Illud meā māgnī intěrest. 11. Absolvunt tē jūdicēs injūriārum. 12. Plăcuit Caesărī,² ut ad Ariovistum lēgātōs mittěret. 13. Eum ad mortem dūcī ŏportuit. 14. Is ad mortem dūcendus fuit.

Translate into Latin: -

I may go.
 I must fight.
 The soldiers must fight.
 We may go.
 We must depart.
 I am ashamed of my fault.
 They accuse him of treachery.
 A true friend never forgets a friend.
 Cæsar acquitted the soldier of the crime.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. Learn the definition and translation of impersonal verbs; how classified; and the synopsis under 313. 3.
- 2. It pleased Cæsar, i.e. Cæsar determined; the clause beginning with ut is the subject of placuit.

What is an impersonal verb? Translate pugnatur, pugnandum est, me piget. What case is used with licet? With oportet? How is may, can, expressed in Latin? How is must, might? In what two ways can must be expressed? (See Exs. 13 and 14.) What verbs govern the genitive or accusative? What the genitive alone?

LESSON XCV.

CLASSIFICATION OF DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

316. Obs. 1. The pupil has now learned the construction of simple sentences. The rules and principles that have been applied to these sentences are applicable to all independent clauses; it is only in dependent, or subordinate, clauses that difficulty is likely to occur. The pupil should, therefore, obtain an accurate knowledge of the various kinds of dependent clauses, for this will aid him very much in determining the tense and mode to be used. We have learned that a complex sentence must contain one or more subordinate clauses. The subordination is expressed by some connecting word, which is always some form of the relative or some word that has acquired the use of the relative. This word may be a pronoun, a conjunction, or a conjunctive adverb.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. The sea, WHEN it had spent its fury, became calm.
- 2. The boy, WHO reads, learns.
- 3. He came, THAT he might see the city.
- . 4. He demanded THAT Cæsar should not make war upon the Eduans.
  - 5. He says that the mountain is held by the enemy.
  - 6. If he conquers, he will rejoice.
  - 7. His friends will abandon him, BECAUSE his father has done so.
  - 8. So great is the power of honesty, THAT we love it even in an enemy.
  - 9. I inquired WHAT he was doing.
- 10. Life is short, THOUGH it extend beyond a thousand years.

OBS. 2. In Ex. 1 of the foregoing sentences, note that the clause when it had spent its fury, expresses time, and is combined with the leading clause, the sea became calm, by means of the subordinate temporal conjunction when; the clause is, therefore, called a Tem-PORAL CLAUSE (see 206. 1). If we combine the two clauses by means of a coordinate conjunction (205), the sentence becomes compound; as, the sea spent its fury, AND then it became calm. In Ex. 2, the subordinate clause is introduced by the relative who (241. Obs.), and is called a RELATIVE CLAUSE. In Ex. 3, the subordinate clause is introduced by the subordinate final conjunction that (206. 5); the clause is, therefore, called a Final Clause. The clause in Ex. 5, introduced by that, is an Infinitive Clause (341.1). Ex. 6, if he conquers is a Conditional Clause; and in Ex. 7, because his father had done so is a CAUSAL CLAUSE. A clause introduced by a consecutive conjunction is called a Consecutive CLAUSE, as Ex. 8; one introduced by a concessive conjunction, as in Ex. 10, is called a Concessive Clause.

The relative clause performs the office of an adjective, because who reads modifies boy = the reading boy; it is called an ADJECTIVE CLAUSE. The temporal clause in Ex. 1 performs the office of an adverb, and is, therefore, called an Adverb Clause; in Exs. 4, 5, and 9, the clauses that Casar should not make war upon the Æduans, that the mountain is held by the enemy, and what he was doing, are objects of the transitive verb demanded, of inquired, and of says, i.e. each performs the office of a noun or substantive, and is, therefore, called a Noun, or Substantive, Clause. Hence, clauses may be classified as: -

I. Coördinate, see 205.

II. SUBORDINATE

- 1. Final.
- 2. Consecutive.
- 3. Conditional.
- 4. Comparative.
- 5. Concessive. 6. Causal.
- 7. Temporal.
  8. Interrogative.
  9. Infinitive.
- 10. Relative.

Named from their meaning, as shown by some introductory word; the same word may introduce clauses of different kinds, according to circumstances.

1. Substantive.
2. Adjective.
3 Adnerb.

Named from the part of speech whose office they perform.

OBS. 3. Noun Clauses include: (1) Infinitive clauses, 342.1; (2) some final and (3) consecutive clauses, 342.2 and 3; (4) clauses introduced by quod, which give prominence to the fact stated, or present it as a ground or reason, 342.4; (5) and dependent interrogative clauses, 342. 5. Adjective Clauses are connected to the clauses on which they depend by means of relative pronouns. Adverbial Clauses are connected to the clauses on which they depend by means of conditional, comparative, concessive, final, consecutive, causal, or temporal conjunctions. The pupil should note that sometimes a clause connected by a final or consecutive conjunction becomes virtually the object of the verb on which it depends, and is then classed as a Noun Clause. (See 342. 2 and 3.)

EXERCISES.

Classify the following sentences:—

1. The bridge, which spans the river, was built by a skilful engineer. 2. When the war closed, Washington retired to Mount Vernon. 3. If you would be happy, you must be active. 4. When the battle was concluded, the commander began to count his loss. 5. He takes exercise, that he may recover his health. 6. The ground is dry, although it has rained. 7. The sun causes (that all things should bloom, i.e.) all things to bloom.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

What is a clause? Mention the various classes of subordinate clauses. What is an adjective clause? Substantive clause? the complex sentences in the foregoing lesson into compound sentences. How many kinds of adverbial clauses? Write an adjective clause.

LESSON XCVI.

TENSES IN DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

317. Primary and Secondary Tenses.

Obs. We have learned that tense denotes the time of the action; and as time admits of a threefold division, into present, past, and future, there must be at least three tenses to represent an action in present, past, or future time. But in each of these tenses an action may be represented as incomplete or as completed, and from these two divisions arise six tenses of the Latin verb; viz.:—

- 1. The Present, denoting incomplete action in the present.
- 2. The Future, denoting incomplete action in the future.
- 3. The Imperfect, denoting incomplete action in the past.
- 4. The Perfect, denoting completed action in the present.
- 5. The Fut. Perf., denoting completed action in the future.
- 6. The Pluperfect, denoting completed action in the past.

Each of these tenses also represents the action either as in progress (still unfinished) or at the close of its progress (i.e. as now finished). An action may further be represented as being simply brought to pass, without reference to its being continuous or momentary, complete or incomplete. This distinction gives rise to the indefinite or acristic stage of action, which has no separate tense form. It is expressed by the present tense for the present, by the future for the future, and by the acrist (perfect definite) for the past. The following table will show these temporal relations:—

Time.	Action represented as	Examples.	Common Names.
Present {	Incomplete. Completed. Indefinite.	I am writing. I have written. I write.	Present. Perfect. Present.
Past {	Incomplete. Completed. Indefinite.	I was writing. I had written. I wrote.	Imperfect. Pluperfect. Aorist.
Future {	Incomplete. Completed. Indefinite.	I shall be writing. I shall have written. I shall write.	Future. Fut. Perf. Future.

The rules hitherto given will always enable the pupil to determine what tenses of the subjunctive should be used in independent clauses. In dependent clauses, the tense of the subjunctive is always dated at the same time as the tense of the leading verb. In order to determine what tense of the subjunctive should follow (in the dependent clause) the leading verb, special rules are necessary, called the rules for the Sequence of Tenses. For this purpose the tenses of the indicative mode are divided into two classes, according as they represent actions as present or future, or as past. The former are called Primary, and the latter Secondary, or Historical, Tenses. The tenses of each class can be seen from the following table:—

1. PRIMARY.

PRESENT.

Futures.

PERFECT.

ămat, he loves.

ămābit, he will love. ămāvěrit, he will have loved. ămāvit, he has loved.

2. SECONDARY.

IMPERFECT.

ămābat, he was loving.

Aorist.

PLUPERFECT.

ămāvit, he loved. ămāvěrat, he had loved.

318. Sequence of Tenses.

EXAMPLES.

Primary. - Present and Future Time in Dependent Clauses.

1. PRESENT -

scio quid ăgās, I know what you are doing. scio quid ēgšris, I know what you have done. scio quid actūrus sīs, I know what you are going to do.

2. Perfect —

cognovi quid agas, I have learned what you are doing. cognovi quid egeris, I have learned what you have done cognovi quid actūrus sīs, I have learned what you are going to do.

3. FUTURE -

audiam quid ăgās, I shall hear what you are doing.
audiam quid ēgĕris, I shall hear what you have done.
audiam quid actūrus sīs, I shall hear what you are going to do.

4. FUTURE PERFECT -

cognovero quid agas, I shall have learned what you are doing. cognovero quid egeris, I shall have learned what you have done. cognovero quid acturus sis, I shall have learned what you will do.

Secondary, or Historical. - Past Time in Dependent Clauses.

5. Imperfect ---

sciēbam quid ăgěrēs, I knew what you were doing. sciēbam quid ēgissēs, I knew what you had done. sciēbam quid actūrus essēs, I knew what you were qoing to do.

6. Aorist -

cognovi quid agères, I learned what you were doing. cognovi quid egisses, I learned what you had done. cognovi quid acturus esses, I learned what you were going to do.

7. Pluperfect -

cōgnōvěram quid ăgĕrēs, I had learned what you were doing.
cōgnōvěram quid ēgisses, I had learned what you had done.
cōgnōvěram quid actūrus essēs, I had learned what you were going to do.

OBS. In the foregoing examples, note (1) that each verb in the leading, or principal, clauses, of Exs. 1, 2, 3, 4, is in a primary tense - present, perfect, future, future perfect; (2) that each verb in the dependent, or subordinate, clauses of the same examples, is likewise in a primary tense, but in the present subjunctive when the action is continued or incomplete (i.e. relatively present or future) with reference to the action denoted by the leading verb. and in the perfect subjunctive when the action is completed (i.e. relatively past) with reference to the action denoted by the leading verb. Note, further, that each verb in the leading, or principal, clauses, of Exs. 5, 6, 7, is in a secondary, or an historical, tense, imperfect, aorist, pluperfect, - and also that each verb in the dependent, or subordinate, clauses is likewise in a secondary or an historical, tense: in the imperfect subjunctive when the action is continued or incomplete with reference to the action denoted by the leading verb, and in the pluperfect subjunctive when the action is completed with reference to the action denoted by the leading verb. The pupil should note that, after a future or future perfect tense, the simple future is represented in the dependent, or subordinate clause, by the present subjunctive, and the future perfect by the perfect subjunctive; and also that, in such cases, the dependent subjunctive may be present or past, with reference either to the time of speaking or to the time of the main action: as, in audiam quid agas, the doing may be going on either at the time of speaking or at the time of hearing, i.e. I shall hear THEN what you are doing NOW, or what you are doing THEN (i.e. when I hear). Finally, the pupil should note that, whenever the future in the dependent clause is subsequent to the future of the leading verb, the present or imperfect of the active periphrastic subjunctive is used. Hence, the pupil will observe that the subjunctives in the dependent clauses adapt their verbs to the tenses of the verbs in the leading clauses; i.e. a primary tense in the leading clause is followed by a primary tense in the subordinate clause, and that a secondary, or an historical, tense in the leading clause is followed by a secondary, or an historical, tense in the subordinate clause. The rule is called the rule for the Sequence of Tenses, and is, in general, the same in Latin as in English. For those dependent sentences that require the subjunctive, the rule may be stated as follows:—

SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

319. RULE XLVII. — A primary tense in the leading clause is followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause; and a secondary tense is followed by a secondary.

Obs. The rules for the Sequence of Tenses are not applicable to indicative clauses (i.e. to clauses that have their verbs in the indicative), nor to conditional sentences (regardless of mode). For these, special rules are necessary (see 325).

320. The Sequence of Tenses may be represented as follows:—

Primary Tenses:
Present,
Perfect (Definite),
Future,
Future Perfect,

Secondary Tenses:
Imperfect,
Aorist (Perfect),
Pluperfect,
Pluperfect,
Present Subjunctive, for incomplete action.
The Perfect Subjunctive, for completed action.

The Imperfect Subjunctive, for incomplete action.
The Pluperfect Subjunctive, for completed action.

Obs. In the following examples, note that the tense of the subjunctive is always dated at the same time as the tense of the leading verb; i.e. the tense of the Latin subjunctive is the same as the tense of the indicative or potential in the English sentence. The commonest tenses of the subjunctive in dependent clauses are the present and imperfect, the latter being used in such dependent clauses for the English agrist as well as for the real imperfect.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. věnio ut vídeam, I come to (in order that I may) see.
- 2. vēnī ut vidērem, I came to (in order that I might) see.
- Ita mendāx ĕrat, ut nēmō eī crēdĕret, he was such a liar, that no one believed him.

In Exs. 1 and 2, the seeing is dated as present or past, according as the coming is present or past; and, as may see and might see are present and imperfect (or past) potential, respectively, so we use the corresponding tenses of the Latin subjunctive. In Ex. 3, crēděret is used for believed, which is an aorist; crēděret would also be used for a true imperfect (was believing). After primary tenses, the perfect subjunctive is used to represent all past tenses of the indicative or potential, except that unreal conditions (326.3) must always have their own form, regardless of the Sequence of Tenses (319).

- a. The Perfect (Definite) is properly a primary tense; but as its action is commenced in past time, it is often regarded as a secondary tense, and is followed in the dependent clause by a secondary tense.
- b. The Present is often used in lively narration for the Aorist, or Historical, Perfect. We say in English, Cicero discusses the immortality of the soul, discusses being the historical present. It is used whenever the writer wishes to picture vividly some past event as present. It is then really a past tense, and is usually followed by a past tense in the subordinate clause; though often it is followed by a primary tense, with past meaning like itself.

EXAMPLE.

- Helvētiī lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittunt, quī dīcērent, the Helvetians (send) sent ambassadors to Cæsar, to say (= who should say).
- c. The Subjunctive has no future or future perfect tense; these tenses are, in general, represented in dependent clauses, after a primary tense, by the present or the perfect respectively (circumstances determining whether the present subjunctive is equivalent to the present or future, etc.; cf. Exs. in 318); and after a secondary tense, by the imperfect or the pluperfect. But whenever the action in the subordinate clause is to be represented as subsequent to the future of the leading verb, the periphrastic form is used, composed of the tenses of esse in combination with the future active participle. (See 285. Obs.)

EXAMPLES.

 respondet si id sit factum, se nociturum nemini, he replies that, if this should be done, he will harm no one.

- löquēbantur, ētiam cum vellet Caesar, sēsē non esse pūgnāturos, they were saying that they would not fight, even when Cæsar should wish it.
- interrogo tē, quid actūrus sīs, I am asking you what you will do, or are going to do.

Obs. 1. Instead of the periphrastic form, fütürum sit (or esset) ut may be used; and these words must be used when the verb has no participial stem, and therefore no periphrastic form (and also for the future perfect active, which is wanting in the periphrastic conjugation); as, non dubito quin scripturus sis = non dubito quin fütürum sit, ut scrībās, I do not doubt that you will write.

Obs. 2. The future perfect represents both the perfect definite and the aorist, transferred to the future; as, fēcero, I shall have done it, or I shall do it. The future perfect is used with a much greater exactness in Latin than in English; as, ut sementem fēceris, Ita metes, as you shall have sown, so will you reap. The English idiom often uses the present, or the simple future, for the future perfect: as you sow, or as you shall sow, instead of as you shall have sown.

OBS. 3. In applying the rules for the sequence of tenses, consider (1) whether the leading verb is primary or secondary; (2) remember that the tense of the Latin subjunctive is the same as the tense of the indicative or potential in the English sentence (may, can, will, and shall being present; might, could, would, and should, past).

EXERCISES.

Apply the rules for sequence of tenses to the following examples:—

- scripsit ut nos moneret, he wrote to warn us, or that he might warn us.
- soripsit ut nos moneat, he has written to warn us, or that he may warn us.
- 3. causa quae esset quaesiit, he asked what the cause was.
- 4. venit ut videat, he has come to see, in order to see, or that he may see.
- 5. venit ut videret, he came to see, or that he might see.
- dux imperat ut milites stationes suas servent, the leader commands the soldiers to keep their stations, or that the soldiers should keep their stations.
- 7. cdrat ut pueri corpus exerceat, he takes care that he may exercise the boy's body (i.e. to exercise the boy's body).

- Hannibal mägnum exercitum in Itäliam düxit ut cum Römänis pügnäret, Hannibal led a large army into Italy to (that he might) fight with the Romans.
- non d\u00fcbito qu\u00edn Caesar host\u00e3s s\u00e4p\u00e4r\u00e4v\u00e4rit, I do not doubt that C\u00easar has overcome the enemy.
- non dubitabam quin Caesar hostes superavisset, I did not doubt that Cæsar had overcome the enemy.
- considerabimus quid făciat, we shall consider what he is doing.
- considérabimus quid fécérit, we shall consider what he has done.
- considérabimus quid facturus sit, we shall consider what he is going to do (or will do).

Supplementary Exercises: -

- 1. Non dubitābam quīn Caesar hostēs superāvisset.
- 2. Nēmo dubitābat quin mīlitēs fortissimē pūgnāvissent.
- 3. Nēmō dubitat quin puerum semper bene educaverim.
- 4. Păter cūrat ut ĕgo běne ēdǔcer, strēnuē exercear, prŏbē excŏlar, dīligenter ērūdiar. 5. Măgister cūrābat ut discipŭlus běne ēdǔcārētur, strenuē exercērētur, prŏbē excŏlĕrētur, dīligenter ērūdīrētur. 6. Nōn est dŭbium quīn discipŭlus ā mē běne mŏnĭtus sit. 7. Nōn est dŭbium quīn urbs ā mīlitībus expūgnāta sit. 8. Interrŏgo tē quid actūrus sīs. 9. Interrŏgāvĕro tē quid actūrus sīs. 10. Interrŏgābam tē quid actūrus essēs. 11. Nōn dŭbĭtāvī quīn scriptūrus essēs, or nōn dūbĭtāvī quīn fūtūrum esset ut scrībĕrēs.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

How many tenses has the indicative mode? How many has the subjunctive? What are primary tenses? Secondary tenses? How do the forms of the perfect subjunctive differ from those of the future perfect indicative? Has the subjunctive future tenses? How is this lack of future tenses supplied in dependent clauses? What is the rule for the tense in a dependent clause containing a subjunctive? Is the rule for sequence of tenses applicable to indicative clauses?

LESSON XCVII.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

I. FINAL CLAUSES.

Obs. Final Clauses are those that tell the purpose of an action. They are introduced by the Final Conjunctions ut, that, in order that; nē (or ut nē), that...not, in order that...not, lest; quō (= ut eō, that thereby), whereby, in order that, when there is a comparative in the final clause; the Relative Pronoun quī (= ut is, that he), in order that he; and the Relative Adverbs, ŭbi, unde, etc. = ut ībi, etc.

SUBJUNCTIVE OF PURPOSE.

321. RULE XLVIII.—Final Clauses take their verbs in the present or imperfect subjunctive, according as the leading verb is in a primary or secondary tense.

Obs. 1. The leading verb may be in any tense, but the present or imperfect subjunctive is usually used in the final clause. The relative pronoun is used in final clauses chiefly after verbs of sending, coming, giving, choosing, etc., when the antecedent is indefinite.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. vēnērunt ut pācem pětěrent, they came to seek peace.
- 2. pügnāmus nē servī sīmus, we fight that we may not be slaves.
- Caesar castella communit, quo făcilius Helvētios prohibēre possit, Cœsar erects forts that he may the more easily keep off the Helvetians.
- milites missi sunt qui (= ut ii) urbem expügnärent soldiers were sent (that they might assault), or to assault the city.
- 5. locum this consideret delegit, he selected a place where he might encamp (that he might there, etc.).
- Obs. 2. The ablative quō (= ut eō) is used in clauses denoting purpose, especially with comparatives.
- Obs. 3. These final clauses may be translated by to; sometimes by that ... may, that ... might, etc.

Object Clauses.

1. After verbs of admonishing and allowing, bidding and forbidding, beseeching and compelling, resolving and striving, willing and wishing, Final Clauses become object clauses, i.e. they are the objects of the verbs on which they depend. With many of these verbs the simple infinitive, or the infinitive with subject-accusative, is often used (see 254 and 342 (2)), instead of ut with the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. tē rogo ut eum jūvēs, I ask you to (that you may) aid him.
- 2. contendit ut vincat, he strives to (that he may) conquer.
- 3. sĕnātus censuĕrat, ŭtī (= ut) Aeduōs dēfendĕret, the senate had decreed that he should defend the Æduans.

Obs. This form of final clauses is usually rendered by to (never by in order to); sometimes by that, with may or might, etc. These verbs have the sequence of ordinary final clauses.

Verbs of Fearing.

2. After verbs of fearing, nē, lest, shows that the negative is wished and the positive feared; ut (nē nōn) shows that the positive is wished and the negative feared; nē nōn is used regularly after a negative for both.

EXAMPLES.

- timeo ut lăbores sustineas, I fear that you will not endure the labors (I wish that you may).
- timēbam nē ēvěnīrent ea, I feared that these things would happen (I wished that they would not).
- non vereor ne non redeat, I do not fear that he will not return.
- 4. věreor ut rědeat, I fear he may not return.

Obs. Note that no is translated by that; and ut, or no non, by that not. Verbs of fearing take the present (representing the present and future indicative) or perfect (representing the perfect or future perfect indicative) subjunctive after a primary tense, the imperfect or pluperfect (representing the present, future, perfect, and future perfect indicative) after a secondary tense.

Verbs of Hindering.

3. After verbs of hindering, quōmĭnus is often used instead of nē. The Sequence of Tenses is the same as that in Pure Final Clauses (see 321).

EXAMPLE.

nihil Gaio obstat quominus ad te scribat, nothing prevents Gaius from writing to you.

- Obs. 1. Purpose is not expressed in Latin prose by the infinitive, as it often is in English; thus, they came to see, i.e. for the purpose of seeing, must be rendered by vēnērunt ut vidērent, or some one of the following forms:—
  - 1. vēnērunt ut urbem vidērent (final clause with ut).
  - 2. vēnērunt quī urbem vidērent (final relative clause).
  - 3. vēnērunt ad videndum urbem (gerund with ad, rare).
  - 4. vēnērunt ad videndam urbem (gerundive with ad).
  - 5. vēnērunt urbem videndī causā (gerund with causā).
  - 6. vēnērunt urbis videndae causā (gerundive with causā).
  - 7. vēnērunt urbem vīsūrī (future participle).
  - 8. vēnērunt urbem vīsum (supine).

Obs. 2. For Final Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The English infinitive expressing a purpose (equivalent to that, in order that) is to be translated by ut with the subjunctive.
  - 2. See 321. Obs. 2.

What is a final clause? When do final clauses become object clauses after verbs of doubting? Give the rule for the sequence of tenses in final and complementary final clauses. What is an object clause?

2. CONSECUTIVE CLAUSES.

Obs. Consecutive Clauses are those that tell the consequence, or result, of an action. They are introduced by the consecutive conjunctions ut, so that; ut...non, so that...not; (after negatives) quin (= qui and no, how and not), whereby not, but that; quominus (= ut eo minus), that thereby the less; and the relative pronoun qui (= ut is), that, so that.

SUBJUNCTIVE OF RESULT.

322. RULE XLIX.—Consecutive Clauses take their verbs in the subjunctive mode, the tense being determined by the regular rule for Sequence of Tenses.

Obs. In Consecutive Clauses there is an Exception in the Sequence of Tenses, the same tense being used that would be necessary if the clause were independent; i.e., the present is used after past tenses to denote the continuance of an action or state into the present, the perfect to imply final result, and the imperfect to denote that the action is contemporaneous with that of the principal verb: as, Verres Siciliam per triennium ita vexăvit, ut ea restitui in antiquum stâtum nüllo modo possit, Verres so harried Sicily for three years as to make it utterly impossible for it to be restored to its original condition.

EXAMPLES.

 tantus timor exercitum occupavit, ut omnium mentes perturbaret, so great fear seized the army that it disturbed the minds of all.

- tempestās (tanta) coörta est, quae nāvēs reiceret, so great a storm arose, that it drove the vessels back.
- 3. ădest nēmō quīn videat, there is no one present that (or who) does not see.
- non dubito quin săpientissimus sis, I do not doubt that you are very wise.

323. Consecutive Clauses are used after —

- 1. Demonstratives like tālis, tantus, such; sīc, īta, so; tam, ādeo, to such a degree, etc.; and expressions implying characteristic and degree.
- 2. Verbs and expressions of hindering and resisting, delaying and omitting, and the like; also of doubt and uncertainty. These verbs are followed by quīn with the subjunctive, but only after a negative, or a question implying a negative.
- (1) For no and quominus, with the subjunctive after verbs of hindering, etc., see 321. 3.

EXAMPLES.

- Germānī rētinērī non poterant quin in hostes tēla conicerent, the Germans could not be restrained from hurling darts against the enemy.
- făcĕre non possum quin cottidie litteras ad te mittam, I cannot do without (I cannot help) sending you a letter every day.
- Obs. 1. The sequence of tenses after verbs of hindering, and the like, is the same as in final clauses; after verbs of doubt and uncertainty, the same as in interrogative clauses (346).
- Obs. 2. After Negative Indefinite expressions (as nēmō, nūllus, nǐhil, quis), quīn is equivalent to quī nōn, quae nōn, etc.; quīn is often used in the sense of ut nōn, and after negative expressions of doubt and uncertainty, in the sense of ut. After negative verbs of hindering and refusing, quīn may be used in the sense of quōmīnus (see below).

- ădest nēmō quin videat, there is no one present who does not see.
- nēmō est tam fortis quin perturbētur, no one is so brave as not to be disturbed.
- non dăbitări debet quin fuerint poetae, it ought not to be doubted that there were poets.
- nĕque rĕcusāre quīn armīs contendant, and that they do not refuse to contend in arms.

(2) Quōminus is used after verbs of hindering, preventing, refusing, and the like (instead of nē). It may generally be rendered by from with the present participle.

EXAMPLE.

turba impědīvit quōmīnus vǐdērem, the crowd hindered me from seeing.

Obs. If verbs of hindering, etc., are negatived by non, or some equivalent word, quin is generally used instead of quominus.

EXAMPLE.

- turba non impedivit quin viderem, the crowd did not hinder me from seeing.
- 3. Verbs of effecting, the negative being non or no, and the Sequence of Tenses the same as in Final Clauses.

EXAMPLES.

- sõl efficit ut omnia floreant, the sun causes all things to flourish.
- fortuna vestra făcit, ut Irae meae tempĕrem, your fortune causes that I (makes me) restrain my anger.
- 4. As subject of many Impersonal Verbs and phrases, such as it happens, it follows, it remains, etc.

EXAMPLE.

accidit ut esset luna plena, it happened that the moon was full.

5. Consecutive Clauses become, after many Impersonal Verbs and expressions, after verbs of effecting, doubting, hindering, and the like, Substantive Clauses, and are the real subject or object of the verb, or the explanatory appositive to a noun (see 342.3).

EXAMPLES.

- 1. fit ut quisque délectétur, it happens that every one is delighted (subject).
- sol efficit ut omnia floreant, the sun causes all things to flourish (object).
- 3. ŏportēbat damnātum poenam sĕquī ut Ignī crĕmārētur, it was necessary that the punishment of being burnt should follow (him condemned) his condemnation (appositive).

Obs. For the Accusative with the Infinitive, or quod with the Indicative after Impersonal Verbs, see 342. 1 and 4.

Relative Clauses of Result.

324. Relative Clauses of Result are used to define or to characterize an indefinite or general antecedent.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. secutae sunt tempestates quae nostros in castris continerent, storms (of such severity) followed, which (that they) kept our men in camp.
- nēmō est quī nōn căpiat, there is no one but (who does not) desires.
- 3. sunt qui pătent, there are some who think.

Obs. Relative clauses of result are used to characterize the antecedent, especially when it is otherwise undefined, as in the foregoing examples, and are, therefore, called relative clauses of characteristic. The relative clause, quae...continerent (Ex. 1), describes the severity of the storms by saying that they kept the men in the camp, i.e. by mentioning a characteristic of it; in Ex. 2 the relative clause follows a general negative nemo, and in Ex. 3 it follows an indefinite antecedent.

- 1. Relative Clauses of Result occur also after
  - a. tinus and sõlus.
  - b. dīgnus, indīgnus, idoneus, and aptus.
  - c. Comparatives with quam, to express disproportion.

EXAMPLES.

- söli centum ĕrant qui creārī possent, there were only one hundred who could be appointed.
- fābŭlae dīgnae sunt, quae lĕgantur, the fables are worthy to be read.
- 3. mājus gaudium fuit, quam quod ūniversum hominēs caperent, the joy was greater than (what) men could take in all at once.

Obs. The Indicative may be used after affirmative sentences in the statement of definite facts with a definite antecedent; but if a general characteristic is denoted, the subjunctive must be used.

- 1. multī sunt quī ērīpiunt, many are they who snatch away.
- 2. multī sunt qui ēripiant, there are many to snatch away.
- 3. sunt qui (= the indefinite pronoun quidam) quod sentiunt non audent dicere, some dare not say what they think.

The following table shows the indefinite pronoun or adverb to be used in Negative Final or Consecutive Clauses. In English we may say either that no one, or lest any one, etc.; but in Latin always lest any one, etc.

	Negative Purpose.	Negative Result.
That not	nē	ut non
That no, that not any	nē ūllus	ut nūllus
That no one	nē quis	ut nēmō
That never	nē unquam	ut nunquam
That nothing	nē quid	ut nĭhil

For Consecutive Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

Mention a clause of result in English. How does it differ from one of purpose? After what conjunctions are consecutive clauses used? When is quōminus used? What is a relative clause of characteristic? Give an example of one. What is the antecedent? After what verbs and expressions are consecutive clauses used? When do consecutive clauses become substantive clauses?

3. CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

EXAMPLE.

Condition (Protasis). — Conclusion (Apodosis).

If he has money, he gives it.

OBS. The foregoing sentence contains a condition, if he has money, and is, therefore, called a Conditional Sentence. The sentence is Complex, because it consists of two clauses,—a principal, or leading clause, he gives it, called the conclusion, and a subordinate, or dependent clause, if he has money, containing the condition. The clause containing the condition is called the Protasis, and that containing the conclusion, the Apodosis. The apodosis is regularly introduced by the conditional conjunction if,—in Latin sl, or a compound of sl: as, nisi, unless (used instead of sl non after negatives); etiamsl, etsl, although; sln, but if (see Conditional and Concessive Conjunctions, 331). An indefinite relative may introduce a conditional clause (see 328). Hence the following definition:—

PROTASIS AND APODOSIS.

325. In Conditional Sentences, the clause containing the condition is called the protăsis, and that containing the conclusion the apodòsis.

Classification of Conditional Sentences.

SIMPLE PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

Present or Past § 1. If he has money, he gives it.
Indicative 2. If he had money, he gave it.

FUTURE CONDITIONS.

Fut. Ind. or Pres. § 1. If he has (or shall have) money, he will give it. or Perf. Subj. § 2. If he had (or should have) money, he would give it.

UNREAL PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

1. If he had money (he has not), he would give it (now, Imperf. or present time).

Plup. Subj. 2. If he had had money (he had not), he would have given it (then, at some past time).

Obs. One of the most obvious classifications of conditional sentences is that of (1) present, (2) past, and (3) future conditions, the distinction being based on the time to which the condition refers. The pupil, however, should note that in Ex. 1 of the third set, the imperfect denotes present time. We may, on the other hand, classify conditional sentences as to their meaning, i.e. as to what is implied with regard to the fulfilment of the condition. In the first two examples, no opinion is expressed or implied as to the truth of the supposition, i.e. as to his having money; but what is stated as a fact is this: granted the supposition, i.e. that he has money, and the conclusion must follow, i.e. he gives it. In Latin any present or past tense of the indicative may be used either in the condition or conclusion. If a past tense is used in this form of conditional sentences, the pupil must take care not to confound such sentences with those in the third set. Observe the distinction between if he had money, he gave it, and if he had money (he has not), he would give it (now). The next two examples transfer the condition to the future, and the question as to the fulfilment of the condition is, of course, at present undecided; hence the uncertainty of such conditions being fulfilled is greater than in present con-Such conditions may be stated in two ways: the first form, if he shall have money, is used to state a supposed future case in a distinct and vivid manner; the second form, if he should have money, is used to state a supposed future case in a less distinct and vivid manner. We may say if he should have money, or if he should have had money, the first being used for continued action, and the second (i.e. the perfect) for completed action, i.e. completed at the time denoted by the verb in the apodosis, although both forms are usually rendered in English by the present. The third set of examples, if he had money, he would give it, and if he had had money, he would have given it, transfer the conditions to past time, and hence the time for the happening of the conditions has already passed, i.e. they state the supposed case in such a manner that we perceive the condition is unfulfilled, i.e. he does not have money, and does not give it. In the first example the imperfect, a past tense, is used to state the unfulfilment or unreality of the condition in present time. In both sentences the supposed case is represented as unreal, or contrary to fact, and the conclusion states what would have been the result if the condition had been fulfilled. In Latin, the subjunctive is used in both condition and conclusion, — in the first the imperfect, and in the second the pluperfect. The imperfect refers to present time, and the pluperfect to past time. Hence the following classification of conditional sentences:—

SIMPLE PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

1. Simple Present and Past Conditions, nothing implied as to their fulfilment. Assume as a fact the supposition, and the conclusion must follow: Any present or past tense of the indicative in both clauses.

EXAMPLES.

- a. Present: sī pēcūniam habet, dat, if he has money, he gives it.
- b. PAST: sī pēcūniam hābēbat, dābat, if he had money, he gave it.

FUTURE CONDITIONS.

2. Future Conditions may be stated in two ways: (1) More distinct and vivid, the future indicative being used in both clauses; (2) less distinct and vivid (i.e. less probable), the subjunctive being used in both clauses. The present subjunctive is used for continued action, the perfect subjunctive for completed action.

EXAMPLES.

- a. sī pēcūniam hābēbit, dābit, if he has (i.e. shall have) money, he will give it.
- sī pēcūniam hābeat, det, if he should have money, he would give it.
- c. sī pēcūniam habuĕrit, dĕdĕrit, if he should have had money, he would have given it.

UNREAL PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

3. Unreal Present and Past Conditions, unfulfilled in present or past time: Imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive in both clauses.

EXAMPLES.

- a. PRESENT: sī pēcūniam hābēret, dăret, if he had money (he has not), he would give it (now, present time).
- b. Past: sī pēcūniam hābuisset, dēdisset, if he had had money (he had not), he would have given it (then, at some past time).

Obs. The pupil should note that the rules for Sequence of Tenses are not applicable to Conditional Sentences (see 319. Obs.). For conditional sentences in Indirect Discourse, see 355.

MODE IN CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

326. RULE L.—Conditional Sentences with  $s\bar{\imath}$ ,  $n\check{\imath}si$ ,  $n\bar{\imath}$ ,  $s\bar{\imath}n$ , take—

SIMPLE PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

1. Any present or past tense of the indicative in both clauses when nothing is implied as to the fulfilment of the condition.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. sī ădest, běne est, if he is here, it is well.
- 2. sī ăděrat, běne ĕrat, if he was here, it was well.
- 3. sī vălet, laetor, if he is well, I rejoice.
- 4. sī vălēbat, laetābar, if he was well, I was rejoicing.

Obs. As stated in the rule, the mode of the conclusion (apodosis) is, as a rule, in the indicative; but it may be also in the imperative or subjunctive, according as a command, wish, or modest assertion (278. 2) is to be expressed.

Example.

si dormis, expergiscere, if you are sleeping, awake.

FUTURE CONDITIONS.

2. The future indicative in both clauses, to represent the supposed future case in a distinct and vivid manner; the present or perfect subjunctive in both clauses, to represent the supposed future case in a less distinct and vivid manner.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. sī id crēdēs, errābis, if you shall believe that you will go wrong.
- 2. sī adsit, bene sit, if he should (hereafter) be here, it would be well.
- sI adfuĕrit, bĕne sit, if you should have been here, it would be well.
- 4. sī id crēdīdēris (rare), errāvēris, if you believe (= should have believed) that, you would go (= have gone) wrong.
- Obs. 1. If the action of the condition is regarded as completed before that of the conclusion begins, the future perfect indicative is used instead of the future, or the perfect subjunctive instead of the present subjunctive.

Examples.

 sī mīlītēs hortātus ĕrit, fortīter pūgnābunt, if he shall have encouraged the soldiers, they will fight bravely.  sī mīlitēs hortātus sit, fortīter pūgnent, if he should have encouraged the soldiers, they would fight bravely.

UNREAL PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

3. The imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive in both clauses, to represent the supposed case as unreal, or contrary to fact. The imperfect denotes present time, and the pluperfect past.

EXAMPLES.

- sī ădesset, bene esset, if he were (now) here (he is not), it would be well.
- sī adfuisset, bene fuisset, if he had (then) been here (he was not), it would have been well.
- 3. sī vălēret, laetārer, if he were (now) well, I would rejoice.
- sī văluisset, laetātus essem, if he had (then) been well, I would have rejoiced.

Conditional Clauses after Dum, Mŏdo, and Dummŏdo.

327. Conditional Clauses introduced by dum, modo, and dummodo (negative dum ne, modo ne, dummodo ne), if only, provided that, take the present or imperfect subjunctive.

- dummodo inter mē atque tē mūrus intersit, provided that the city wall is between us.
- 2. dum res maneant, verba fingant, if only the facts remain, they may make up words.
- Obs. 1. The Apodosis except in a few involved forms of conditional sentences regularly corresponds in mode with the Apodosis (see foregoing examples). But see 326. Obs.
- Obs. 2. Frequently the present subjunctive of a future condition becomes imperfect by sequence of tenses. For conditional sentences in Indirect Discourse, see 355.
- 1. Verbs in the conclusion of unreal conditions are sometimes in the imperfect or pluperfect indicative (the indicative is regularly used after verbs denoting duty, necessity, propriety, ability, and the like); also, the historical perfect of other verbs when accompanied by paene or prope, and the periphrastic forms in -rus and -dus. In these cases the conditional idea is sufficiently expressed in the meaning of the words, and the regular conditional form is, therefore, neglected.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. deleri exercitus potuit, si persecuti victores essent, the army might have been destroyed (and would have been), if the victors had pursued.
- sī Romae prīvātus esset hoc tempore, tāmen is erat dēligendus, if he were at this time a private citizen of Rome, yet he ought to be appointed.
- 3. pons Iter paene hostIbus dědit, nī ūnus vir fuisset, the bridge almost furnished a passage to the enemy (and would have furnished it) had there not been one man.

DISGUISED OR OMITTED CONDITIONS.

328. A condition is sometimes introduced by an Indefinite Relative, or by a Participial, Imperative, or Interrogative Clause (instead of a regular protasis); or it may be contained in a single word or phrase, or otherwise implied in the context.

EXAMPLES.

- qui secum lòqui pòterit, sermonem alterius non requiret, if any one (let he who) shall be able to converse with himself, he will not need the conversation of another.
- ĕpistulā acceptā, profectus essem, if I had received a letter, I should have set out.
- 3. nulla profecto ălia gens tantă mole clādis non obruta esset, surely no other nation would have failed to be crushed by such a weight of disaster (i.e. if such a weight of disaster had come upon it; condition implied in tantă mole).
- OBS. For Conditional Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 355.

What tenses does the subjunctive lack? How is this lack sometimes supplied? Is the conclusion a principal or a dependent clause? What time does each tense denote?

4. COMPARATIVE CLAUSES.

Obs. Comparative Clauses are those that illustrate or explain the leading statement, by furnishing a standard of measure. The leading clause often has some correlative word like Ita, sīc, so, etc. Comparative clauses are introduced by comparative conjunctions; as,

MODE IN COMPARATIVE CLAUSES.

329. Rule LI.—Comparative Clauses introduced by ut, ŭtī, sīcut, quēmadmŏdum, etc., followed by the demonstrative particles ĭta, sīc (so), etc., regularly take the indicative or the subjunctive as in independent sentences.

EXAMPLE.

ut sementem fécéris, Ita métés, as you shall have sown, so shall you reap.

330. Rule LII. — Comparative Clauses introduced by  $\bar{a}c$   $s\bar{\imath}$ , ut  $s\bar{\imath}$ ,  $quams\bar{\imath}$ ,  $qu\bar{a}s\bar{\imath}$ , tanquam, tanquam  $s\bar{\imath}$ ,  $v\bar{e}lut$ ,  $v\bar{e}lut$   $s\bar{\imath}$ , are, in fact, conditional clauses, of which the conclusion is omitted or implied, and therefore take the subjunctive like other conditional sentences.

EXAMPLES.

- mē adspicītis, quăsī monstrum sim, you gaze at me as (you would gaze) if I were a monster.
- Sēquăni absentis Ariovisti orūdēlitātem vēlut si coram ădesset, horrēbant, the Sequani kept shuddering at the cruelty of the absent Ariovistus as (they would have shuddered) if he were (had been) present.

Obs. Ordinary comparative clauses which merely illustrate a preceding statement take the indicative, unless the subjunctive is used as in independent sentences. But comparative clauses that express a condition, with the apodosis omitted, take the subjunctive, the tense being determined by the rule for sequence of tenses rather than the ordinary use of conditional sentences. The English translation would lead us to expect only the imperfect and pluperfect, as it makes the comparison an unreal one (326. 3). But the tense of the subjunctive is generally controlled by the tense in the leading clause (319), although occasionally the sequence is not observed, but the rule for conditional sentences prevails. In the first example the present subjunctive is used in the comparative clause, though the unreality of the comparison is implied, because the leading verb is in the present tense; hence,

1. The tenses follow the rules for the sequence of tenses, rather than the ordinary use of conditional sentences. In English, the translation implies the unreality of the comparison.

OBS. For Comparative Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

5. CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

Obs. Concessive Clauses are those which concede or admit something opposed to the main statement, and are generally introduced in English by though or although. The concessive conjunctions take the subjunctive or indicative according to the following:—

- a. quamquam, although, generally takes the indicative.
- b. quamvis (quam and vis, as much as you please), quamtumvis, ut, no, and cum, although, and the relative qui (= cum, is, ego, etc.), all take the subjunctive when used concessively.
- c. Neet, although, is properly a verb, and takes a substantive clause with the subjunctive.
- d. etsī, tāmetsī, ĕtiamsī, or sī, take the indicative or subjunctive, like conditional clauses with sī.

MODE IN CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

31. Rule LIII.—Concessive Clauses are introduced by concessive conjunctions,—although, granting that,—and take the indicative to represent the concession as a fact; the subjunctive to represent it as merely possible, or as contrary to the fact.

EXAMPLES.

- quamquam intellegunt, tamen nunquam dicunt, although they understand, yet they never speak.
- 2. quamvis fortës sint, although they are brave.
- 3. ut dësint vīrës, although the strength fails.
- nē sit summum mălum dolor, although pain may not be the greatest evil.
- 1. The relative qui is often concessive, equivalent to although with a personal or demonstrative pronoun, and takes the subjunctive.

EXAMPLE.

culpātur, quī innocēns sit, he is blamed, although he is innocent.

Obs. For Concessive Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

What are comparative clauses? How introduced? What are concessive conjunctions? Name them. Which take the indicative? Is a clause connected by a concessive conjunction adjective or adverbial?

6. CAUSAL CLAUSES.

OBS. Causal Clauses are those that state the cause or reason of the fact mentioned in the leading clause. They are introduced by the causal conjunctions quod, quia, because, quoniam, quando, since, oum (quum), as, since, and the relative pronoun que, as he.

332. Rule LIV.—Causal Clauses introduced by quod, quia, quoniam, and quando, take the indicative when the reason assigned is stated as a fact, and indorsed by the speaker or writer.

EXAMPLE.

laudo të, quia t $\bar{\mathbf{u}}$  më laudës, I praise you because you praise me.

Obs. The statement of the reason which is not the real one is introduced by non quo, non quod, non quia, with the verb most commonly in the subjunctive.

Example.

non quod doleant, not because they grieve.

1. Causal Clauses introduced by cum or the relative qui regularly take the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. cum vīta mětūs plēna sit, since life is full of fear.
- 2. quae cum Ita sint, and since these things are so.
- O fortunăte adulescens, qui tuae virtutis Hômērum praeconem inveneris, O fortunate youth, since you (lit. who) have obtained Homer as the herald of your valor.
- 2. Causal Clauses introduced by quod, quia, quoniam, take the subjunctive (in Indirect Discourse, 348) to state the reason as the assertion or opinion of some one else.

EXAMPLE.

Socrates accusatus est quod corrumperet juventutem, Socrates was arraigned because (as was alleged) he corrupted the youth.

QUOD WITH VERBS OF EMOTION.

3. Quod is used after verbs of joy and sorrow, praise and blame, thanks and complaint, satisfaction and anger, to give the ground of the emotion, and is followed by the subjunctive or indicative, according to 332 or 332.2; but see 342.4.

EXAMPLES.

- jŭvat mē quod vigent studia, I am delighted because studies are flourishing (indicative).
- 2. gaudet miles quod vicerit hostem, the soldier rejoices because he has conquered the enemy (subjunctive).
- Obs. 1. For Causal Clauses as the subject, object, or appositive, see 342. 4; for the Infinitive after Verbs of Emotion, see 342. (3).

Obs. 2. For Causal Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

1. See 278.

What is a causal clause? Mention the causal conjunctions. When do clauses introduced by these conjunctions take the indicative? When the subjunctive? How is cum translated when it denotes cause? What is the construction after verbs of emotion?

7. TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

Obs. Temporal Clauses are such as denote the time of an action by mentioning something else which was (1) antecedent to, (2) contemporaneous with, or (3) subsequent to it. The temporal conjunctions are:—

- 1. Antecedent: postquam (posteāquam), after that, after; ut, as; ŭbi, when (lit. where); sīmulāc, or sīmulāc, sīmul, as soon as; ut prīmum, cum prīmum, the first moment that; cum (quum), historical, when, after.
- CONTEMPORANEOUS: dum, donec, while, as long as, until; quoad, quamdiū, as long as; cum (quum), when.
- 3. Subsequent: antěquam, priusquam, before.

Obs. The subjunctive is used in temporal clauses only in indirect discourse, or to express cause, doubt, purpose, desire, etc., as will be explained hereafter.

I. Antecedent Action.

333. Temporal Clauses, introduced by postquam, posteš quam, ubi, ut, ut primum, ubi primum, simul āc, etc., take the indicative (commonly the agrist indicative or historical present).

EXAMPLES.

- postquam id ănimadvertit, copias suas Caesar in proximum collem subducit, after Cæsar had observed this, he withdrew his forces to the nearest hill.
- übi sē părātōs esse arbitrātī sunt, oppida incendunt, when they thought they were ready, they burnt their towns.
- nostrī, sīmul in ārīdō constitērunt, in hostēs impētum fēcērunt, our men, as soon as they got footing on dry (ground), made an attack on the enemy.
- militës, postquam victoriam ădepti sunt, nihil reliqui victis fecere, the soldiers, after they had gained a victory, left nothing to the vanquished.
- postquam vidit, etc., castra posuit, he pitched his camp, after he saw it, etc.
- 6. ŭbi certiores facti sunt, when they were informed.

Obs. After the antecedent conjunctions, the aorist (Lat. perfect) is frequently rendered in English by the pluperfect (see Exs.).

II. Contemporaneous Action.

334. RULE LV. — Dum, donec, quoad, while, as long as, take the indicative (any tense).

EXAMPLES.

- 1. hoc feci, dum l'icuit, I did this as long as I was allowed.
- intermisi, quoad non licuit, I stopped it as long as I was not allowed.
- 335. Rule LVI. Dum, donec, quoad, until, take the indicative in the statement of a fact, the subjunctive when purpose is expressed (i.e. if the accomplishment of the purpose is the limit of the action).

EXAMPLES.

 Milo in senatu fuit eo die, quoad senatus dimissus est, Milo was in the senate on that day, until it adjourned.

- donec redit, silentium fuit, until he returned, there was silence.
- 3. dum nāvēs eō convenīrent, exspectāvit, he waited until the ships should come up, i.e. for the ships to come up.
- 4. exspects dum dicat, you are waiting till he speaks (in order that he may speak).
- impëtum hostium sustInuit, quoad cëtërI pontem interrumpërent, he withstood the onset of the enemy, until the rest could break down the bridge (in order that they might, etc.).
- dum Caesar mörātur, ad eum lēgātī vēnērunt, while Cæsar was delaying, envoys came to him.

Obs. Dum in the sense of while, in the time that, usually takes the present indicative in narration (see Exs. 6 and 7), though the action is past (334. Ex. 1); but when it denotes purpose, it takes the subjunctive. In the later prose writers dum, while, is construed with the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive like cum Historical. The principle is that of Partial Indirect Discourse (see 364).

III. Subsequent Action.

336. Rule LVII.—Antequam and priusquam, before, are used with any tense of the indicative, except the imperfect and pluperfect, to express the mere priority of one event to another.

- 1. priusquam lücet, adsunt, they are present before it is light.
- flios convocavit antequam mortuus est, he called together his sons before he died.
- priusquam dē cēterīs rēbus respondeo, dē amīcītiā pauca dīcam, before I reply to the rest, I will say a few words about friendship.
- 337. Rule LVIII.—Antequam and priusquam are used with the subjunctive to express (1) the intentional priority of one action to another (i.e. when the action is purposed or desired by the subject of the leading verb), (2) or when its non-occurrence is expressed or implied.

EXAMPLES.

- non prius duces dimittunt (320.b.), quam sit concessum, they did not dismiss the leaders till it was granted.
- priusquam quioquam conaretur, Divitiacum ad se vocari jubet (320.b.), before he took (should take) action, he ordered Divitiacus to be summoned to him.
  - nec prius sunt vīsī quam castrīs appropinquārent, and they were not seen until they were nearing the camp.
- 1. Antěquam and priusquam often have, in historical narration, the same construction as cum Historical (see 339).

EXAMPLES.

- priusquam vīsus est Caesar, quam fāma perferrētur, Cæsar appeared before any tidings were brought.
- ducentis annis ante quam urbem căperent, in Ităliam Galli descenderunt, the Gauls came down into Italy two hundred years before they took the city.
- 2. The subjunctive is used after antequam and priusquam (generally a present or future stands in the leading clause) when the action is represented as possible (Potential Subjunctive, 278. 1. 4), or when the statement of a general truth is made.

EXAMPLES.

- antĕ vidēmus fulgūrātionem quam sonum audiāmus, we see the flash of lightning before hearing (i.e. before we can hear) the sound (potential).
- collem, priusquam sentiātur, commūnit, he fortifies the hill before it was (could be) perceived.
- 3. tempestās minātur, antēquam surgat, the tempest threatens before it rises (general truth).
- 3. The subjunctive with an indefinite second person as the subject (you = one, any one) is especially common.

EXAMPLE.

priusquam incīpiās, consultō opus est, before you (i.e. any one) begin, there is need of deliberation. (See 308. Obs. 2.)

Obs. Antequam and priusquam are often written as separate words; the translation is often before with the present participle.

IV. Constructions of Cum.

CUM TEMPORAL.

338. Rule LIX. — Cum Temporal (= when), introducing a clause that defines the mere time of an action, may be used with all the tenses of the indicative.

EXAMPLES.

- cum Caesar in Galliam vēnit, altērīus factionis principēs ĕrant Aedul, when Cæsar came into Gaul, the Ædui were at the head of one party.
- cum verba făciunt, mājōrēs suōs extollunt, when they speak, they extol their ancestors.

CUM INVERSUM.

1. When the clauses are inverted, so that the temporal clause expresses the main statement and becomes substantially the leading clause, the indicative must be used.

EXAMPLES.

- hoc făcere noctu appărăbant, cum mătresfamiliae repente procurrerunt, they were preparing to do this by night, when the women suddenly ran forth.
- vix agmen növissimum pröcesserat, cum Galli flümen transire nön dübitant, scarcely had the rear advanced, when the Gauls without hesitation crossed the river.

Obs. The verb in the leading clause is usually the imperfect or pluperfect indicative, often preceded by the adverbs vix, jam, etc. Sübitõ and repente are often used in the temporal clause.

ITERATIVE USE OF CUM.

2. When cum (or this, simul sc, or the general relatives quicumque, quotiens) means whenever, as often as, and designates repeated or customary action, it is followed in some writers by the subjunctive, in other writers by the indicative.

EXAMPLES.

 cum quaepiam cohors impetum fecerat, hostes refugiebat, whenever any cohort had made an attack, the enemy retreated.  cum in jūs dūcī dēbitorem vidissent, undique convolābant, whenever they saw a debtor taken to court, they hurried together (made it a rule to hurry together) from all quarters.

CUM HISTORICAL.

339. Rule LX.—Cum, meaning when, is used in Historical Narration with the imperfect subjunctive for contemporaneous action, with the pluperfect subjunctive for antecedent action.

EXAMPLES.

- cum cīvītās armīs jūs suum exsēquī conārētur, Crgĕtŏrix mortuus est, when the state was attempting to assert its authority by force of arms, Orgetorix died.
- Caesar, cum Pompējum vīcisset, in Itāliam trājēcit, when Caesar had conquered Pompey, he crossed over to Italy.
- Caesări cum id nuntiătum esset, măturat (320.b.) ab urbe proficisci, when this (had been) was announced to Cæsar, he hastened to set out from the city.

Obs. Cum, followed by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive, is generally historical; i.e., it is used in historical narration, a historical tense standing in the leading clause. The subjunctive is translated like the indicative. A notion of cause often intrudes, as in Ex. 3. Cum nuntiatum esset points out both the time and cause of Cæsar's setting out. Usually the temporal clause comes first.

CAUSAL AND CONCESSIVE CUM.

340. RULE LXI. — Cum Causal (= since) and cum Concessive (= although) may be used with any tense of the subjunctive.

- 1. quae cum ita sint, and since these things are so.
- Aeduī, cum sē dēfendēre non possent, lēgātos ad Caesarem mittunt (320. b.), the Æduans, since they were not able to defend themselves, sent envoys to Cæsar.
- nihil mē adjūvat (320. b.) cum posset, he gave me no assistance, although he had it in his power.

- OBS. 1. Cum, followed by the present or perfect subjunctive, is almost always CAUSAL or CONCESSIVE, and translated by since, while, although; it cannot be historical.
- Obs. 2. Note the translation of the above examples: the subjunctive is rendered by the indicative with when; the temporal clause may often be rendered by a participle.
- OBS. 3. The temporal conjunction cum (also ŭbi, ut, quando, either alone or compounded with -cumque) may mean whenever, and then, like the general relatives, has the construction of the protasis in conditional sentences.

EXAMPLES.

- cum rösam viděrat, tum incipěre vēr arbitrābātur, whenever (if in any case) he had seen a rose, he thought spring had begun.
- cum sē inter turmās insinuāvērunt, dēsīliunt, whenever (if in any case) they have worked their way into (among) the squadrons, they (are wont to) leap down.
- cum quaepiam conors impetum fecerat, hostes refugiebant, whenever any cohort (had made) made an attack, the enemy retreated.
- Obs. For Temporal Clauses in Indirect Discourse, see 351.

The boy was unwilling to depart until he had seen you (i.e. he waited for the purpose of seeing you). 7. While the senate was preparing war against Cæsar, he made himself dictator. 8. Before Cæsar attempted anything, he calls Divitiacus to himself. 9. I waited until he came.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. When the battle had been going on for a long time.
- 2. Why ablative?
- 3. Account for the mode; the subjunctive is common with expecto.
- See 337, 2. Obs.
- 5. The subjunctive in this sentence shows that the boy waited for the purpose of seeing you, i.e. he intended to see you; the next sentence implies only that he did see you, without implying an intention.
  - 6. Supply esse.
  - 7. Why dative?
- 8. Note that when several nouns follow each other in the same construction, the Latin differs from the English either in omitting the conjunction altogether or in repeating it after each word, e.g. either obsidēs, arma, servēs, or obsidēs et arma et servēs; not obsidēs, arma, et servēs, as in English.
  - 9. See 178. 2.

Mention the three chief uses of cum. When does cum temporal take the subjunctive? Give the meanings and uses of dum. Give the meanings of cum. What mode is used with most of the particles of time? When do antěquam and priusquam take the subjunctive? When the temporal clause refers to future time, what mode is used after cum? after antěquam? When the temporal clause introduced by cum contains the main statement, what mode is used? Which are correct: cum est, cum fuit, cum ĕrat, cum fuĕrit, cum monébat?

8. SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

Obs. A clause may perform many of the offices of a noun, and is, therefore, called a noun, or substantive, clause.

- THAT GLASS IS MALLEABLE was known to the ancients. The dependent clause, that glass is malleable, is equivalent to a noun, and is the subject of was.
- We perceive THAT FIRE IS HOT. The dependent clause in this sentence is the object of the verb perceive.
- A peculiarity of the English is, THAT IT HAS SO MANY BORROWED WORDS. The clause introduced by that is equivalent to a noun standing in the predicate after is; the clause is, therefore, an attributive complement explanatory of peculiarity.
- It is known that Cæsar conquered Gaul. It has no meaning until explained by the clause introduced by that, which is equivalent to a noun, and is, therefore, in apposition with it, i.e. explanatory of it.
- I know nothing about WHAT YOU ARE ASKING. The clause what you are asking is the object of about. In English, what is at once interrogative (as in the sentence above) and introduces substantive clauses; or it is a compound relative (corresponding to qui, quae, quod), and introduces adjective clauses.

Hence ---

341. A Substantive Clause is one which, like a noun, is the subject or object or complement of a verb, or is used as an explanatory modifier of the subject or object.

342. Substantive Clauses may be classified as follows: —

INFINITIVE CLAUSES.

1. The accusative with the infinitive is used as the subject of esse or of impersonal verbs, and as the object of the following:—

(1) Verbs of saying, thinking, knowing, perceiving, and (for Indirect Discourse, see 348) equivalent expressions.

(2) Verbs of wishing and willing, permitting, commanding, and forbidding (most of commanding and forbidding, except jübeo and věto, are followed by ut or në with the subjunctive).

(3) Verbs of emotion (joy, sorrow, etc.), and also verbs of hoping, promising, threatening, swearing (these verbs are sometimes followed by the complementary infinitive, see 256).

EXAMPLES.

- dioit montem ab hostibus teneri, he says that the mountain is held by the enemy.
- 2. dulce pro patria morī est, to die for one's country is sweet.
- 3. Caesar proficisci maturat, Cæsar hastens to depart.
- 4. dicitur montem těněri, it is said that the mountain is held.
- Obs. 1. In the foregoing examples the pupil will notice that the infinitive is used as subject (Ex. 2) or as object (Ex. 3), or that the infinitive with a subject accusative is the subject or object of the verb. Substantive clauses have their verbs in the infinitive or subjunctive mode, with a subject of infinitive in the accusative case.
- Obs. 2. All substantive clauses are regarded as of the neuter gender. The tense of the verb in the infinitive clause is determined by the rule in 319.

FINAL CLAUSES.

2. Final Clauses are object clauses after verbs of fearing, and after verbs of asking, allowing, etc. See 321. 2.

- 1. nItItur ut vincat, he strives to conquer (lit. that he may conquer).
- timeo ut lăborēs sustineās, I fear (that) you will not endure the labors.
- non vereor, ne non venias, I do not fear (that) you will not come.
- 4. věreor ně eat, I fear (that) he will go.
- Obs. 1. The clause of purpose may be translated by that with may, might, shall, or should, or by the infinitive.

Obs. 2. After negative clauses, no non is regularly used instead of ut (see Ex. 3).

CONSECUTIVE CLAUSES.

3. Consecutive Clauses are used as the subject, object, or explanatory appositive with many impersonal verbs (it happens, it remains, it follows, it is lawful, etc.); with ut after făcĕre and efficĕre; with quīn (after some verbs of hindering and the like), and especially after verbs of doubting, when a negative precedes; and with tantum ăbest (ut), so far it is from.

EXAMPLES.

- Ita fit ut nëmë esse possit beätus (as subject), so it comes to pass that no man can be happy.
- 2. quae rēs, commeātus ut portārī possent, efficiēbat (as object), this movement rendered it possible (brought it about) that supplies could be brought.
- accidit ut esset plēna lūna (as subject), it chanced to be full moon.
- făcĕre non potuf quin sententiam dictărem, I could not but declare my opinion.
- hăbet hoc virtus ut delectet (as appositive), virtue has this (advantage), that it delights.

Obs. The clause of result is generally translated by that, with or without can or could, sometimes by the infinitive or the participial noun in -ing, especially after verbs of hindering.

INDICATIVE WITH QUOD.

4. Indicative Clauses with quod introduce a statement of fact, specification, or object of feeling.

Obs. The quod-clause may be the subject of impersonal verbs, the object of verbs of emotion (see 342.3), or an explanatory appositive. It is generally translated by that, or the-fact-that; sometimes by whereas.

- quod Rēgulus rēdiit mīrābile vidētur, the fact that Regulus returned seems strange.
- 2. quod de domo scribis, as to what you write of the house (specification).
- 3. gaudēmus quod cīvītātēs sua jūra habent, we are glad that the states have their just rights (object of feeling).
- mägnum est běněfícium nätürae quod něcesse est mörī, it is a great boon of nature that we must die (appositive).

Obs. The pupil should note that, when the conjunction that introduces a clause denoting purpose or result, it takes the subjunctive, according to 321, or 322; but otherwise it is usually the sign of the accusative with the infinitive (see 342.1 and 254). That is to be rendered by quod when it introduces a substantive clause that contains the ground or reason, or that is the object of some verb of emotion or feeling (accusative and infinitive may also be used).

INDIRECT QUESTIONS.

5. Indirect Questions are clauses (introduced by some interrogative word), which are the subject or object of a verb, or which depend on verbs expressing doubt or uncertainty.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. scio quid quaeras, I know what you are asking (object).
- 2. quid dies ferat incertum est, what a day will bring forth is uncertain (subject).
- 3. dŭbito an ponam, I doubt whether I should not place, i.e. I am inclined to think, etc.
- (1) After verbs of trial, an indirect question is introduced by sī in the sense of whether.

EXAMPLE.

- circumfunduntur hostës si quem aditum reperire possint, the enemy pour round (to see) if they can find an entrance.
- Obs. 1. Dubito may also be followed by quin with the subjunctive if the sentence is negative; but, if there is no negative, it is followed by indirect question; and, when it means to hesitate, by the infinitive.
- Obs. 2. Note the difference in meaning between Ex. 1 and scio quod quaeris, I know what (= the thing which) you ask, i.e. the answer to the question you ask. In Ex. 1, quid is an interrogative pronoun; in the other example, quod is a relative.
- SYN. Placet, it pleases, i.e. it is one's will or determination; Whet (lubet), it pleases, i.e. it agrees with one's inclination.

- Caesar jussit mīlitēs castra mūnīre.
   Caesar větuit mīlitēs pontem rescinděre.
   Săpiēns semper beātus sit¹ něcesse est. 7. Sōl efficit ut omnia flōreant. 8. Omnēs cīvēs mětuēbant, nē urbs ab hostĭbus expūgnārētur. 9. Plăcuit eī ut ad Ariovistum lēgātōs mittěret. 10. Nunquam pǔtavī fŏre² ut supplēx ad tē věnīrem. 11. Sentīmus nǐvem esse albam. 12. Gaudeo quod vălēs.

NOTES AND QUESTIONS.

- 1. The particle ut is often omitted, especially after verbs of wishing (vŏlo, nōlo, mālo, and făcio), necessity, etc.; also after dīc and fac.
- 2. That it would happen. When there is no supine, fore ut (or futurum esse ut) is used for the future infinitive; the clause with ut is the subject of fore.

What is a clause? How are clauses classified? What is an independent clause? A dependent clause? How are dependent clauses classified? Define each. Express in Latin to die for one's country is noble. With what does noble agree? What gender must it be? What is the gender of all substantive clauses?

9. INTERROGATIVE CLAUSES.

OBS. Questions are of two kinds: (1) FACT-QUESTIONS, or those that ask about the existence of a fact, and expect the answer yes or no: as, scribitne păter, is my father writing? Ans. yes or no. Such questions (unless rhetorical) are generally asked by the help of one of the interrogative particles, -ne, nonne, num. (2) Word-QUESTIONS, or those that ask about something connected with a fact, as who, what, where, when, how, why, etc., and they cannot be answered by yes or no: as, quis has litteras scripsit, who wrote this letter? Ans. Cicero. cur non discēdis, why do you not depart?

Rhetorical Questions.

OBS. Questions may be real or they may be rhetorical. A real question expects an answer; as, Who is calling? ANS. John. A rhetorical question does not expect an answer, but, under the guise of a question, contains an assertion, put for oratorical effect in the form of a question; as, What is baser than a lie? This is a rhetorical question, expecting no answer, but conveying the idea that nothing is baser than to lie. Sometimes no interrogative word is used in asking a question. In such cases an affirmative question generally expects a negative answer; a negative question, an affirmative answer. The omission of the interrogative word is common in rhetorical questions (especially with negatives) expressing surprise, irony, impatience, etc.; patere tua consilia non sentis, do you not see (you must surely) that your designs are laid bare?

Direct simple questions generally take the indicative; but direct simple questions that ask what is to be done, when it is intended to imply that some such an answer as nothing, nowhere, etc., is expected, take the subjunctive (278. 1. 3); as,

- 1. quid ăgam, what am I to do?
- quis hōc dŭbitet, who could doubt this? (rhetorical question) = nēmō hōc dŭbitet, no one could doubt it.

Hence the rule: -

DIRECT QUESTIONS.

- 343. Direct Simple Questions are generally introduced by interrogative words, and, as a rule, take their verbs in the indicative.
- 344. Direct Simple Questions may take the subjunctive when they express doubt, deliberation, or impossibility, or imply a negative opinion on the part of the speaker or writer (278. 1. 3).

EXAMPLES.

- 1. Romamne věnies, will you come to Rome? (Ans. yes or no.)
- quisnam in hortō ambŭlat, who is walking in the garden? (Ans. Cæsar.)
- quis paupertătem non extimesoit, who does not dread poverty?
- quid hôc hômine făciās, what can one (you) do with this man?
   (Ans. nothing.)
- 5. quis hoc credat, who would believe this? (Ans. no one.)

Double Questions.

Obs. Fact-Questions may consist of two parts, i.e. they may be disjunctive (or double); as, is it this or is it that? The first member of a double question is introduced by the particles utrum or -ne, and the second by an (anne or -ne); as, utrum ea vestra an nostra oulpa est, is that your fault or ours? Occasionally the interrogative particle is omitted with the first member; as, &loquar an sileam, must I speak or be silent? The following exhibits the various forms of double questions:—

quaero utrum vērum an falsum sit, quaero vērum-ne an falsum sit, quaero vērum an falsum sit, quaero vērum falsum-ne sit,

I ask whether it is true or false.

The principle may be stated in the following rule: -

345. Direct Double Questions take the same mode as simple questions, and are introduced by utrum or -ne, whether, in the first member, followed by an, anne, or; annon, neone, or not, in the second.

EXAMPLE.

utrum pueri legunt an scribunt, are the boys reading or writing?

Indirect Questions.

Obs. Interrogative sentences are further divided into direct and indirect (or independent and dependent). Who calls me? is a direct question, i.e. it is a simple independent interrogative sentence. Such sentences, as a rule, take the indicative or the deliberative subjunctive (see 278.1.3). He asks who is calling him is an indirect question; i.e. the simple interrogative sentence, who is calling him, is made to depend on the verb asks, and becomes a dependent clause; the verb is calling is, in Latin, in the subjunctive mode. Hence the following rule:—

INDIRECT QUESTIONS.

346. Rule LXII. — Indirect Questions take their verbs in the subjunctive, the tense being determined by the regular rule for sequence of tenses (see 319).

EXAMPLES.

- 1. quis mē vocat, who is calling me? (Direct.)
- 2. rogāt quis sē vocet, he asks who is calling him. (Indirect.)

Primary Tenses -

rŏgat, he asks,

rŏgābit, he will ask,

rogāvit, he has asked,

rogaverit, he will have asked,

Secondary Tenses - rŏgābat, he was asking, rŏgāvit (aorist), he asked,

rŏgāvĕrat, he had asked,

SUBJUNCTIVE.

quis se vocet, who is calling him.
quis se voceverit, who has called, or who called him. quis se voceturus sit, who is going to call him.

quis se vocaret, who was calling him. quis se vocavisset, who had called him. quis se vocaturus esset, who was going to call him?

Obs. 1. Sometimes the interrogative word is omitted in the first clause; in direct questions annon is generally used; in indirect, necne; num in indirect questions means whether.

Obs. 2. The particle an is used after such phrases as nescio, haud scio, dubito an, in the sense I do not know but, I doubt but, i.e. I am inclined to think; as, haud scio an Ita sit, I do not know but it is so. The forms of the interrogative quis, and qui, combine with nescio, and are equivalent to an indefinite pronoun; as, nescio quis, somebody or other; the verb is in the indicative.

DEPENDENT DOUBLE QUESTION.

EXAMPLES.

- puĕrī utrum lĕgant an scrībant nescio, I don't know whether the boys are reading or writing.
- utrum l\u00e9gat necne nescio, I don't know whether he is reading or not.
- Obs. 1. Note that the subjunctive in indirect questions is translated by the indicative, because it stands for the indicative. Note, also, that the indirect question is always a dependent clause introduced by some interrogative word which connects it with the preceding clause.
- OBS. 2. If the direct question had its verb in the subjunctive, no change is made on becoming indirect (except the tense of the leading verb must be in a secondary tense if it is required by the sequence of tenses); but the difference must be shown by the English rendering: thus, (1) quid agimus, what are we doing? and (2) quid agamus, what are we to do? become alike in the indirect form,—non satis constabat quid agerent, they did not rightly know (1) what they were doing, or (2) what they were to do.

Questions and Answers.

Obs. There is no one word in Latin meaning simply yes and no. In answering a question the verb is generally repeated; as, estne tibi penna, have you a pen? the answer would be est mihi penna, I have a pen; or simply est. Sometimes adverbs are used in answer to a direct question; as, étiam, Ita, sīc, vērum, vērō, rectē, certē, sānē, etc., — haecīne tua dŏmus est? Ita, is this your house? yes; dāsne hoc? do sānē, do you admit this? yes I do indeed. No may be expressed by repeating the verb with a negative, or by nōn, nōn vērō, nōn Ita, minimē, by no means, immo or īmo, yes indeed, nay rather, etc.; as, nōn Irāta es? nōn sum īrāta, you are not angry? I am not. In answer to a double question, one member of the alternative must be repeated; as, tūne an frāter ĕrat, was it you or your brother? ego (ĕram), it was I. Hence the following rule: —

347. In answering a question in Latin, either the verb, with or without a negative, is repeated for the words YES or NO; or an intensive or negative particle is used, with or without the repetition of the verb.

LESSON XCVIII.

INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

Obs. 1. Direct Discourse (ōrātiō recta) gives the exact words of the speaker or writer; as, Ariovistus said, "I have crossed the RHINE" = Lat. Ariovistus dīxit, "Rhēnum trānsii." The words I have crossed the Rhine are in direct discourse; the original speaker is represented by the narrator as speaking in the first person (because the speaker refers to himself), and the words are given precisely as they were uttered. Indirect Discourse (oratio obliqua) uses the same words, except that some are changed to conform to the construction of the sentence in which they are quoted. changes affect only the pronouns, pronominal adverbs, modes, and tenses (but not always all of these); as, Ariovistus said THAT HE HAD CROSSED THE RHINE = Lat. Ariovistus dixit se Rhenum transisse. The original words, I have crossed the Rhine, have been changed to that he had crossed the Rhine, to indicate the change of relation in the speaker; the first person in English is changed to the third, and the perfect tense to pluperfect, and, in Latin, the indicative to the accusative with the infinitive, which together form an infinitive substantive clause, the object of the leading verb dixit.

- 1. a. rex urbem oppugnat, the king assaults the city.
  - a. dux dioit, "rēx urbem oppūgnat," the leader says, "The king is assaulting the city."
  - b. dux dicit regem urbem oppügnäre, the leader says that the king is assaulting the city.
- 2. a. sorIbit, he writes.
  - b. dicit se scribere, he says that he is (now) writing.
- a. nos părātī sumus, we are ready.
  - b. sē părātōs esse arbitrātī sunt, they thought that they were ready.
- a. sunt nonnulli quorum auctoritas apud plebem plurimum valet, there are some whose influence prevails most with the common people.
  - b. Liscus dicit esse nonnullos quorum auctoritas ăpud plabem plurimum văleat, Liscus says that there are some whose influence prevails most with the common people.
- Obs. 2. In the foregoing examples marked a, note that each gives the exact words of the original speaker or writer, and is, therefore, in Direct Discourse; note, also, that each sentence marked a is a declarative sentence, and that the principal verb is in the indicative.

Note further, that, in the corresponding examples of Indirect Discourse, marked b, the nominative has been changed to the accusative, the indicative has been changed to the infinitive, and the personal pronoun nos (Ex. 3) has been changed to the reflexive so. In Ex. 2. a. the subject is not expressed, but in Indirect Discourse the subject must (as a rule) be expressed. Note finally, that valet in the dependent clause, in Ex. 4, has been changed to the subjunctive valeat, in order to show the difference of relation, i.e. to relieve the quoter of undue responsibility. If we again examine the sentences in the foregoing examples, after their change to Indirect Discourse, we shall notice that they differ from those in Direct Discourse partly in the use of different modes and tenses, and partly in the use of different pronouns. Hence the following rules:—

INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

348. Rule LXIII. — In passing from Direct to Indirect Discourse, principal clauses, if declarative, are changed to the infinitive with a subject accusative, and subordinate clauses to the subjunctive.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. a. Caesar in Galliam vēnit.
  - b. Caesărem fĕrunt in Galliam vēnīsse.
- 2. a. mons těnětur.
  - b. nuntius dicit montem těněri.
- 3. a. scientia ütilis est.
  - b. ütilem arbitror esse scientiam.
- a. obsidēs quôs ab Aeduīs hăbeo, inquit Ariovistus, non reddam.

Divico ita cum Caesare egit:-

b. Ariovistus rēspondit sē obsīdēs quōs ab Aeduīs hăbēret non reddītūrum esse.

Translation.

Divico treated with Casar as follows: -

If the Roman people shall make peace with the Helvetians, the Helvetians will go to that place and will remain there where you shall have determined and wished them to be; but if you shall persist in following them with war, remember the ancient disaster of the Roman people and the ancestral valor of the Helvetians.

If the Roman people should make peace with the Helvetians, the Helvetians would go to that place and remain there where Cæsar should have determined and wished them to be; but if he should persist in following them with war, let him remember the ancient disaster of the Roman people and the ancestral valor of the Helvetians.

- Obs. 1. Note that, in passing from Direct to Indirect Discourse, the first and second persons of pronouns and of verbs are changed, when the sense so requires, to the third person. In all cases, the changes of pronouns depend on sense (354).
- Obs. 2. The report in Indirect Discourse may be made either from the standpoint of the speaker, i.e. as if the speaker reported was still speaking (vivid form), or from the standpoint of the reporter, the report being made as if the speech was a matter of the past.

INFINITIVE IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

349. The Tenses of the Infinitive in Indirect Discourse represent the time of the action as present, past, or future, relatively to that of the principal verb.

EXAMPLES.

- dioit montem ab hostibus teneri, he says that the mountain is held by the enemy.
- dīxit montem ab hostībus tĕnērī, he said that the mountain was held by the enemy.

Obs. Note that, in the foregoing examples, the leading verbs dicit and dixit have as an object a clause whose verb is in the infinitive, and whose subject is in the accusative. Note, further, that the present infinitive is translated by the present tense after dicit, and by a past tense after dixit; i.e. the infinitives denote the same time as the verbs on which they depend. Hence we observe that these infinitives represent the time of the action not as present absolutely, but as present relatively to the time denoted by the principal verb; i.e. the present infinitive expresses contemporaneous action, the perfect infinitive prior action, and the future infinitive future, or subsequent, action.

EXAMPLES.

1. CONTEMPORANEOUS ACTION.

dīcit sē scrīběre, he says that he is (now) writing.

dicēbat sē scrībēre, he was saying that he was (then) writing.

dicet se scribere, he will say that he is (then or now) writing.

2. PRIOR ACTION.

dicit so scripsisse, he says that he wrote, has or had written, or was writing.

dicebat se scripsisse, he was saying that he wrote, had written, or was (previously) writing.

dicet se scripsisse, he will say that he has (had now or then) written, or wrote.

3. SUBSEQUENT ACTION.

dicit se scripturum esse, he says that he will write.

dicebat se scripturum esse, he was saying that he would write, or was going to write.

dicet se scripturum esse, he will say that he is going to write (now or then).

dicit fore (futurum esse) ut scribat, he says that (it will happen) he will write (then or now).

dicebat fore ut scriberet, he was saying that (it would happen) he would write (then or now).

Obs. 1. The perfect infinitive represents in Indirect Discourse the perfect, the aorist, the pluperfect, and the imperfect indicative. When the leading verb is in the future, the infinitive expresses a double relation,—(1) to the time of asserting, and (2) to the time of the action asserted; as, dicet se scribere, he will say (1) that he is now writing, (2) that he is then writing, i.e. at the time of saying. The future infinitive can be formed only from verbs that have a perfect passive participle. The want of it is supplied by the use of the future infinitive of sum (fore or future esse) with a consecutive clause. This periphrase sometimes occurs when the regular forms might be used.

Obs. 2. In Indirect Discourse, note that the present infinitive stands for the present indicative (or sometimes for the imperfect, especially after memini); and that the perfect infinitive stands for any past tense of the indicative.

OBS. 3. With verbs of hoping, promising, threatening, and the like, the Latin idiom differs from the English in requiring the subject to be (usually) expressed; as, sperat se scripturum esse, he hopes to write (lit. he hopes that he will write).

OBS. 4. The infinitive is said to stand, in Indirect Discourse, and its tenses to correspond to those of the finite modes, when it depends on a verb implying thought, or the expression of thought; thus, căpit věnīre, he desires to come, věnīre is not in Indirect Discourse, but is really a noun, the object of căpit. But in dicit věnīre, he says he is coming, věnīre represents věnio (indicative) of Direct Discourse.

Obs. 5. The subject of the infinitive in Indirect Discourse must (as a rule) be expressed, even though it is wanting in Direct Discourse: as, clēmēns sum; dīcit sē esse clēmēntem.

TENSES IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

- 350. Tenses in Indirect Discourse generally conform to the ordinary rules for the use of tenses in the Subjunctive and Infinitive, as determined by the tense of the introductory verb; but an Aorist (i.e. a Perfect) Infinitive takes the sequence of past tenses, even if the introductory verb is primary (see 348. 2).
- Obs. 1. Each tense in Direct Discourse is ordinarily represented by the same tense in Indirect Discourse; but, when the indicatives of those tenses that have no subjunctive (viz., future and future perfect) are to be changed to the subjunctive, or when the indicatives of those tenses that have no infinitive (viz., imperfect and pluperfect) are to be changed to the infinitive, on passing to Indirect Discourse, they take the tense nearest them in time. Thus the—Future Indicative becomes Present or Imperfect Subjunctive, according to sequence of tenses.

Future Perfect Indicative becomes Perfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive, according to sequence of tenses.

Imperfect Indicative = Perfect Infinitive.

Pluperfect Indicative = Perfect Infinitive.

Future Indicative becomes Future Infinitive.

Future Perfect Indicative = Future Perfect Infinitive.

Obs. 2. The Historical Present is often treated in Indirect Discourse as a past tense, and is followed by a past tense of the subjunctive in the dependent clauses; as, Helvētii lēgātōs ad Caesărem mittunt, quī dīcĕrent, the Helvetians sent ambassadors to Cæsar (who should say, i.e.) to say.

Obs. 3. For the sake of vividness, a past tense may be followed by the present subjunctive; as, exitus fuit ōrātiōnis, neque vācāre agrōs, quī dărī possint, the close of the oration was, that there were (are) not lands unoccupied which could (can) be given.

SEQUENCE OF TENSES AFTER OTHER MODES.

1. The Imperative and the Present and Perfect Subjunctive have the sequences of primary tenses; the Imperfect, Aorist, and Pluperfect Subjunctive have the sequences of the secondary, or historical, tenses.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. praestā quod recepisti, perform what you have undertaken.
- 2. quid mē prohibēret Epicurēum esse, sī probārem quac ille dīceret? what could prevent me from being an Epicurean if I approved what he said (says).

SEQUENCE OF TENSES AFTER AN INFINITIVE OR A PARTICIPLE.

2. When a subordinate clause depends on any part of an infinite verb (Infinitive, Participle, Gerund, Supine), the tense of that clause is determined by that of the verb on which the Infinite verb depends (as these have no time of their own, but a Perfect Infinitive or Perfect Participle has the sequence of past tenses); as, cŭpio scīre quid ăgās, I desire to know what you are doing. cŭpiēbam scīre quid ăgĕrēs, I was desirous to know what you were doing.

351. The following table presents a synopsis of the chief Uses of the Modes in Direct and Indirect Discourse:—

Clauses.	Clauses.	Direct Discourse.	Indirect Discourse.
Interrogative $\Big\{$	Principal Subordinate	Indicative <sup>2</sup> Ind. or Subj.	Subj. or Inf. <sup>2</sup> Subjunctive.
$\textbf{Imperative}  \Big\{$	Principal Subordinate	Imperative 8	Subjunctive. Subjunctive.
Final Consecutive Conditional Concessive Comparative Temporal Causal Relative	Subordinate	Subjunctive Subjunctive Ind. or Subj.	Subjunctive. Subj. or Ind.

- Obs. 1. When the principal clause, or apodosis, is in the subjunctive, as in Unreal Conditions, then special rules are required (see 355. 5).
- Obs. 2. Interrogative sentences may sometimes have their verbs in the subjunctive, as in Rhetorical Questions (344): the subjunctive is either retained or changed to infinitive. The deliberative subjunctive (278) is always retained. But Rhetorical Questions that are in the indicative in Direct Discourse are changed to the accusative with the infinitive in Indirect Discourse if the subject is of the first or third person, into the subjunctive if the subject is of the second person (see 356).
- Obs. 3. Imperative clauses may have their verbs in the subjunctive (278); the subjunctive is then retained in Indirect Discourse.
- 352. The Construction of Indirect Discourse is used after verbs of saying and thinking (declarative), asking (interrogative), commanding (imperative).

EXAMPLES.

- Caesar cognovit Helvētios castra movīsse, Cæsar learned that the Helvetians had broken up their camp.
- Caesar certior factus est exercitum vēnīsse, Cæsar was informed that the army had come.

REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS.

- 353. Reflexive Pronouns, sur and suus, refer primarily to the subject of the clause in which they stand.
- 1. In some Subordinate Clauses the Reflexive must be used to refer either to the subject of the principal, or to the subject of the subordinate clause; but this happens only when reference is made to the thought or will of the subject in the leading clause, as in Infinitive Clauses, Final Clauses, or in Indirect Discourse (Indirect Questions).

EXAMPLES.

- ănimus sentit se vi sua moveri, the mind perceives that it is moved by its own power.
- quaesivērunt num sē esset ĕtiam morī prohibitūrus, they asked whether he was going to (would) prevent them from dying too.

PRONOUNS IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

- 354. In passing from Direct Discourse to Indirect, pronouns of the first or second person are regularly changed, if the sense requires, to pronouns of the third person, as follows:—
- 1. Personal: ĕgo (nōs) is changed to forms of the reflexive sē (sometimes ipse); tu is changed to forms of ille or is.
- 2. Possessive: meus (noster) and tuus (vester) are changed to forms of suus (sometimes genitive of ipse or of is).
- 3. Demonstrative: hic iste are changed to forms of ille or is; nunc is changed to turn and tunc.
- 4. Intensive: ipse may be retained, and then refers to the principal subject, like an emphatic reflexive.

Obs. Hence we have two reflexives in some clauses, referring to (1) leading subject, (2) subject of the infinitive.

EXAMPLES.

 DIRECT: ann'ulum ego meā mănu confeci, I have made the ring with my own hand.

INDIRECT: glöriātus est annulum sē suā manu confēcisse, he boasted that he had made the ring with his own hand.

- DIRECT: sī obsīdēs ā vöbīs mihī dăbuntur, vöbīscum pācem făciam, if hostages shall be given to me by you, I will make peace with you.
  - Indirect: respondit, si obsides ab iis sibi dentur, sese oum iis pacem esse facturum, he replied that if hostages should be given to him by them, he would make peace with them.
- 3. cūr dē suā virtūte aut dē ipsīus dīlīgentiā dēspērārent, why (asked he) should they despair of their own courage or his diligence?

Obs. The personal pronoun may, of course, be retained in Indirect Discourse when the sense requires it; in short, all changes of pronouns must conform to the sense.

Example.

DIRECT: quidvis perpetiar, I will endure anything.

INDIRECT: adfirmāvī quidvīs mē perpessūrum, I asserted that I would endure anything.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

- 355. Conditional Sentences, in passing from Direct to Indirect Discourse, undergo the following changes:—
- 1. In SIMPLE CONDITIONS (326.1) the apodosis is changed to the accusative with the infinitive (the tenses of the infinitive being present, past, or future, according as the tense of the verb in the apodosis is present, past, or future).
- 2. The protasis is changed to the subjunctive, the tense being determined by the leading verb of saying, etc.; but an aorist (i.e. perfect) infinitive takes the sequence of past tenses.

EXAMPLES.

- O. R. sī pēcūniam hăbet, dat.
- o. o. Present: dīcīt sē, sī pēcūniam hăbeat, dăre.
- o. o. Past: dīxit sē, sī pēcūniam hăbēret, dăre.
- O. R. sī pēcūniam hābuit, dědit.
- o. o. dicit sē, sī pēcūniam hăbēret, dědisse.
- 3. In Future Conditions (326. 2) the present and perfect subjunctive (or future indicative) of the apodosis are changed to the future infinitive (or the periphrase fore ut, etc.).
- 4. The tenses (present and perfect) in the protasis remain unchanged if the leading verb of saying is in a primary tense; otherwise, they (present and perfect) are changed respectively to the imperfect and pluperfect.

EXAMPLES.

- o. R. sī pěcūniam hăbeat, det.
- o. o. Present: dīcit sē, sī pēcūniam hābeat, dătūrum esse.
- o. o. Past: dīxit sē, sī pēcūniam hǎbēret, dǎtūrum esse.
- 5. In Unreal Conditions (326.3) the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive of the apodosis, when active, are changed respectively to the future or future perfect infinitive; when passive, these tenses are expressed respectively by the periphrases futurum esse ut or futurum fulsse ut, with the imperfect subjunctive. This periphrase must be used in the active when the verb in the apodosis has no future participle, and hence no future infinitives.
- 6. The tenses in the protasis remain unchanged, no matter what may be the tense of the leading verb.

EXAMPLES.

- o. R. sī pēcūniam habēret, daret.
- o. o. dīcit or dīxit sē, sī pēcūniam hābēret, dātūrum esse.
- O. R. sī pēcūniam hābuisset, dědisset.
- o. o. dīcit or dīxit sē, sī pēcūniam hābuisset, dātūrum fuīsse.

Supplementary Examples: -

  - b. respondit, sI quid Caesar se veiit, illum ad se venire oportere, he replied that, if Cæsar wished anything of him, he ought to come to him.
- a. sī stīpendium rĕmittātur, lībenter rĕcūsem (326. 2) pŏpŭlī Rōmānī ămīcītiam, if the tribute is (should be) remitted, I would gladly renounce the friendship of the Roman people; or,
  - a. sī stīpendium rěmittātur, libenter rěcūsābo (326. 2, Obs. 1) pöpülī Rōmānī amīcītiam, if the tribute is (shall be) remitted, I will gladly renounce the friendship of the Roman people.
  - b. respondit, sī stīpendium rěmittātur, lǐbenter sēsē rěcūsātūrum pŏpūlī Rōmāni ămīcītiam, he replied that, if the tribute should be remitted, he would gladly renounce the friendship of the Roman people.
- 3. a. sī quid mǐhi ā Caesare ŏpus esset, ad eum vēnissem, if I wanted anything from Cæsar, I should have come to him.
  - b. respondit, sI quid ipsI (354. ()bs.) ā Caesăre ŏpus esset, sēsē ad eum ventūrum fuīsse, he replied that, if he wanted anything of Cæsar, he would have come to him.

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE. EXAMPLES.

- a. quid dē praedā făciendum censētis, what do you think ought to be done in regard to the booty?
  - b. litteras ad senatum mīsit, quid de praeda făciendum censerent, he wrote to the senate (asking) what they thought ought to be done in regard to the booty.
- 2. a. quid tibi vis, what do you mean (wish for yourself)?
  - b. ad postulata Caesaris respondit, quid subi vellet, to the demands of Cæsar he replied, what did he mean?

- 3. a. num recentium injūriārum memoriam deponere possum, am I able to lay aside the memory of recent wrongs?
  - b. respondit, num recentium injuriarum memoriam deponere posse, he replied, could he lay aside the memory of recent wrongs?
- 4. a. quid vĕrēminī, aut cūr dē vestrā virtūte dēspērātis, what do you fear, or why do you despair of your valor?
  - b. quid vĕrerēntur aut cūr dē suā virtute dēspērārent, what did they fear, or why did they despair of their valor?

Obs. In the foregoing examples, those marked a are Direct Questions, and have their verbs in the indicative (see 343). In the corresponding examples of Indirect Discourse, marked b, these verbs have been changed to the subjunctive or to the infinitive. Note that rhetorical questions (Exs. 3 and 4) in the indicative in Direct Discourse are changed to the accusative with the infinitive in Indirect Discourse, if the subject is first or third person (Ex. 3); into the subjunctive, if the subject is second person (Ex. 4). Hence the rule:—

356. Interrogative Sentences generally take the subjunctive, but sometimes (especially when rhetorical) the infinitive with subject accusative.

Obs. Subjunctive Rhetorical Questions in Direct Discourse (see 344) remain, as a rule, in the subjunctive in Indirect Discourse. Questions of Deliberation (278) always retain the subjunctive.

IMPERATIVE SENTENCES IN INDIRECT DISCOURSE. EXAMPLES.

- a. rĕmĭniscĕre vĕtĕris incommŏdī pŏpŭlī Rōmānī, remember the ancient disaster of the Roman people.
  - b. rěminiscěrětur větěris incommôdi pôpůli Rômāni, let him remember (said he) the ancient disaster of the Roman people.
- 2. a. cum lěgione věnī, come with a legion.
  - b. scrībit Lăbiēnō cum lěgiōne věniat, he writes to Labienus to come (lit., that he should come) with a legion.

Obs. In the foregoing examples, note that those marked a have their verbs in the imperative; in the corresponding examples of Indirect Discourse, marked b, these imperatives have been changed to the subjunctive. Hence the rule:—

357. All Imperatives in Direct Discourse are changed in Indirect Discourse to the Subjunctive; the negative is ne.

LESSON XCIX.

RELATIVE SENTENCES.

358. Relative Clauses are introduced by relative pronouns and relative adverbs; the latter are called conjunctive adverbs.

Obs. A Relative Clause has the force of an adjective or adverb, limiting the antecedent; as, puer qui legit, the boy who reads = the reading boy. The relative agrees with the antecedent in gender, number, and person, but the case depends on the construction of the relative sentence. (See 242.)

359. Rule LXIV.—A relative clause, having a definite antecedent, and adding merely a descriptive fact, takes the indicative.

EXAMPLE.

Caesar equites quos Labienus adduxerat praemisit, Caesar sent ahead the cavalry which Labienus had brought up.

360. Rule LXV.—Relative pronouns and relative adverbs take the subjunctive when they introduce clauses of purpose, result, condition, cause, or concession.

PURPOSE.

Obs. The subjunctive with qui expresses a Purpose chiefly after verbs of sending, giving, and choosing, with reference to the object of the sentence; a Purpose with reference to the subject being expressed by ut, etc. If the construction be passive, then, of course, qui will refer to the subject.

EXAMPLES.

- lēgātōs mīsērunt quī pācem pětĕrent, they sent envoys to (who should, or that they might) sue for peace.
- lēgātī missī sunt qui pācem pětěrent, envoys were sent to (who should) seek peace.

RESULT.

1. Relative Clauses are often used to characterize an indefinite or general antecedent, especially after negatives, where the idea of result is not obvious.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. sunt qui dicant, there are some who say.
- 2. nēmō est quī non căpit, there is no one who does not desire.
- (1) A Relative Clause of Characteristic is used even when the antecedent is definite; but it is especially common
  - a. After unus and solus.
  - b. After dīgnus, indīgnus, idoneus, and aptus.
  - c. After comparatives with quam.

Obs. The Relative of Characteristic is equivalent to the Restrictive Relative with the subjunctive. The Relative of Characteristic has a tendency to take the subjunctive after indefinite and general expressions (for examples, see 324); but even then the indicative may be used when the statement is a definite fact, and not a general characteristic (i.e. with a definite antecedent): as, sunt quī dīcunt impēria ... nēquīsse pātī, there are some who assert, etc. (i.e. I know some who assert, etc.). Particularly to be noted is the Restrictive Relative in such phrases as quod sciam, so far as I know; quod měmīněrim, as far as I remember.

EXAMPLE.

non is sum qui his ūtar, I am not such a one as to use these things.

CONDITION.

361. RULE LXVI.—A Condition is sometimes introduced by the Indefinite Relative (quī, quae, quod = sī quis, sī quī, etc.), and the modes are used as in ordinary conditional clauses.

EXAMPLES.

- haec qui videat, nonne cogatur confiteri deos esse, if any one should see these things, would he not be compelled to admit that there are gods?
- 2. errat longs, qui credat, he greatly errs who supposes (i.e. if any one supposes, he greatly errs).

CAUSE.

Obs. Causal Clauses introduced by quī alone, or strengthened by ut, utpote, quippe, generally take their verbs in the subjunctive, although the indicative is occasionally used.

EXAMPLES.

- hăbeo sĕnectūtī grātiam, quae mihi sermōnis ăviditātem auxit, I cherish gratitude to old age, which has increased my love of conversation.
- 2. miseret tui më qui (= cum tü) hunc tantum hominem făciās inimicum tibi, I pity you since you (in that you) make so great a man as this inimical to you.
- 3. habeo senectuti gratiam, quae mihi sermonis aviditatem auxit, I cherish gratitude to old age, which (because it) has increased my love of conversation.

Obs. In Cicero the mode with quippe quī is the subjunctive; in Sallust, the indicative.

CONCESSION.

- absolvite Verrem, qui (= cum is) se făteatur pecunias cepisse, acquit Verres, although he confesses (should confess) that he has taken bribes.
- 362. Rule LXVII. Relative Clauses in Indirect Discourse, like other dependent clauses, take the subjunctive.

  EXAMPLE.
  - nuntiatum est equites qui praemissi essent revertisse, it was announced that the horsemen who had been sent in advance had returned.

a. A Relative Clause, even in Indirect Discourse, may take the indicative, if it contains a statement on the authority of the narrator (= the present speaker or writer), or if it is a mere circumlocution.

EXAMPLES.

- Caesar per exploratores certior factus est, ex ea parte vici quam Gallis concesserat, omnes noctu discessisse, Caesar was informed through his scouts that all of them had withdrawn during the night from that quarter of the village which he had assigned to the Gauls.
- 2. quis neget hace omnia quae videmus deorum potestate administrari, who would deny that this whole visible world is managed by the power of the gods?

Obs. The statement on the authority of the present speaker or writer is equivalent to saying that the statement is a fact; hence, the indicative is used. The relative clause quam . . . concēssērat, although standing in Indirect Discourse, is in the indicative, because it is an explanation given by the writer himself (Cæsar). The relative clause quae vidēmus, may be considered as explanatory (i.e. it is a circumlocution), and although introduced into the Indirect Discourse, the verb (vidēmus) is in the indicative, because the manner of making the assertion is not important enough to rise into consideration; hence, the verb remains in the mode in which it would naturally be, viz. the indicative. The statement is virtually made on the authority of the present speaker, because he does not think it worth while to shift the responsibility; i.e. it often depends merely upon the feeling of the writer whether he will use the indicative or subjunctive.

INTERMEDIATE CLAUSES.

Obs. In Latin we often find a clause subordinate to another clause which is itself subordinate. When the first subordinate clause is a subjunctive (or an infinitive) clause, then the subjunctive is used in the second subordinate (or intermediate) clause, because anything depending on a potential is itself necessarily potential. The verb in the second subordinate clause is said to be in the subjunctive by attraction. The verb in the second subordinate clause may be in the indicative, but, if the clause (intermediate) is in Indirect Discourse, its verb is naturally in the subjunctive (as in the foregoing lesson), unless the clause is merely explanatory, i.e. a circumlocution (362. Obs.) containing a statement which is regarded as true independently of the quotation. The verb is then in the indicative: thus, dicit so vidore ea quae video, he says that he sees what I see (in fact); whereas quae videam would mean (he says that he sees) what as he alleges I see; quae video is the intermediate clause; so nomo tam potons est ut omnia quae volit efficore possit, no one is so powerful as to be able to accomplish all that he wishes; volit is so closely connected with ut possit, etc., as to form an essential part of the result, and is, therefore, attracted into the subjunctive. Hence, relative clauses of characteristic in Indirect Discourse (or restrictive clauses), dependent on the subjunctive, would have their verb in the subjunctive, while clauses containing a circumlocution or explanations of the narrator, i.e. a merely explanatory or parenthetical clause, or one that introduces a fact (on the authority of the narrator), may be in the indicative. Hence:—

ATTRACTION OF MODE.

363. RULE LXVIII.—A relative or other subordinate clause may take the subjunctive when it depends on, and forms an essential part of, an infinitive or subjunctive clause.

EXAMPLES.

- respondit së id quod in Nerviis fëcisset facturum, he replied that he would do what he had done in the case of the Nervii.
- 2. věreor ně, dum minuěre vělim, läbôrem augeam, I fear lest, while I am wishing to lessen the toil, I may increase it.
- tanta rērum commūtātiō facta est, ut nostrī ĕtiam quī vulnĕrībus confectī procubuissent, proelium rĕdintegrārent, so great a change of affairs was brought about that our men, even those who had fallen worn out with wounds, renewed the battle.

PARTIAL INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

Obs. The term Indirect Discourse is strictly applied to clauses (or citations) dependent on some word of saying, thinking, and the like (as dīco, rēspondeo, nuntio, aio, arbītror, while inquam introduces in prose Direct Discourse). In a more general sense, the term Indirect Discourse may be used to designate all clauses which indirectly express the words or thoughts of any person other than the speaker or narrator; and even the past thoughts or words of the speaker or narrator himself may take this construction. On this principle, indirect questions and dependent constructions following verbs of wishing, desiring, etc., as well as final clauses, may be explained as Indirect Discourse, the indirect relation often being confined to a dependent clause, and not extending to the whole sentence; as, nova nupta flet quod ire necesse sit, the bride is weeping because she must go (says she). This sentence in Indirect Discourse is: nova nupta dicit se fiere quod ire necesse sit. Hence—

INFORMAL INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

364. Rule LXIX.—A relative or other subordinate clause may take the subjunctive when it expresses, though not in formal indirect discourse, the thought of some other person than the speaker or writer.

EXAMPLES.

- omnēs librēs quēs frāter suus relīquisset mihi donāvit, he gave to me all the books which (as he said) his brother had left.
- Socrates accusatus est quod corrumperet juventutem, Socrates was arraigned because (as was alleged) he corrupted the youth.
- 3. Aedul questi sunt quod Harūdēs finēs eðrum pöpülärentur, the Ædui complained because (as they said) the Harudes were laying waste their territory.
- Obs. 1. The constructions following verbs of wishing, desiring, commanding, permitting, caring, striving, hindering, fearing, and the like, may be explained as Informal Indirect Discourse (usually called petitio obliqua).

EXAMPLES.

- nihil indignius est quam eum qui culpă căreat supplicio non cărere, nothing is more unbecoming than that he who is free from fault should not be free from punishment.
- milites misit, ut eos qui fügerant persequerentur, he sent soldiers to (who should) pursue those who had fled (i.e. the fugitives).
- Obs. 2. Note, in the foregoing examples, that the relative clause qui căreat (see 361), depending on an infinitive, has its verb in the subjunctive by the ordinary rule; in Ex. 2, the clause quī fūgĕrant has its verb in the indicative, because it is regarded as parenthetical, i.e. it is a circumlocution (see 362. a).

Supplementary Examples: -

- non dubito quin nova nupta fleat quod ire necesse sit,
   I do not doubt that the bride is weeping because she must go.
- 2. prīmum pŏsuit eam (causam) dē quā mŏdo dīxī, quae orta esset ex praesēnsione rērum futurārum, he first mentioned that of which I have just spoken (direct statement), which (according to him) had its origin in a presentment of the future.
- nēscīre quid antēquam nātus sīs accidērit, id est semper esse puērum, not to know what happened before you were born, (that) is to be always a boy.
- Ariovistus dīxit sē obsidēs quos ab Aeduīs hăbēret non redditūrum.
- 5. Caesar něgāvit sē Helvētiīs quod postŭlāvit dăre posse.
- 6. nuntiātum est ĕquĭtēs quī praemissī essent rĕvertīsse.
- 7. dīxit oppīdum, quod vīdēs, Ariovistī fuīsse.

GENERAL RULES OF SYNTAX.

AGREEMENT OF VERBS, NOUNS, PRONOUNS, AND ADJECTIVES.

SUBJECT-NOMINATIVE (P. 53).

1. The subject of a finite verb is put in the nominative case.

AGREEMENT OF VERBS (P. 54).

2. A finite verb agrees with its subject-nominative in number and person.

Apposition (p. 60).

3. A noun used to describe another noun or pronoun, and denoting the same person or thing, is put in the same case.

Predicate Noun (p. 100).

4. A noun in the predicate, denoting the same person or thing as the subject, agrees with it in case.

AGREEMENT OF RELATIVES (P. 203).

5. A relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number, and person, but its case depends on the construction of the clause in which it stands.

AGREEMENT OF ADJECTIVES (P. 66).

6. Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

PREDICATE ADJECTIVE (P. 100).

7. A predicate adjective agrees with its subject in gender, number, and person.

GENITIVE.

GENITIVE WITH NOUNS (P. 61).

8. A noun limiting the meaning of another noun, and denoting a different person or thing, is put in the genitive.

GENITIVE WITH ADJECTIVES (P. 115).

9. Many adjectives are followed by the genitive to complete their meaning.

PARTITIVE GENITIVE (P. 198).

10. Words denoting a part are followed by the genitive denoting the whole.

PREDICATE GENITIVE (P. 103).

- 11. A noun in the predicate, denoting a different person or thing from the subject, is put in the genitive.
- 1. Certain adjectives of quantity as māgnī, parvī, plūris, mīnōris are used to denote indefinite price.

GENITIVE WITH VERBS (P. 294).

- 12. Verbs of reminding, remembering, and forgetting, recordor, memini, reminiscor, and obliviscor, are followed by the genitive (sometimes the accusative).
  - 1. The genitive is used (p. 295)
    - (1) With misĕreor, misĕrēsco.
    - (2) With the impersonals refert and interest.
    - (3) The impersonals miseret, paenitet, piget, puget, and taedet, take the genitive of the object with the accusative of the person.
    - (4) Verbs of accusing, convicting, condemning, and acquitting, take the accusative of the person and the genitive of the crime (p. 294).
    - (5) Sum, and verbs of valuing, take the genitive to express the price or value indefinitely (p. 295).

DATIVE.

INDIRECT OBJECT (P. 62).

- 13. The indirect object of an action is put in the dative
  - 1. With intransitive and passive verbs.
  - 2. With transitive verbs, in connection with the direct object.

DATIVE WITH INTRANSITIVE VERBS (P. 164).

14. The dative of the indirect object is used with most intransitive verbs signifying to favor, please, trust, assist, and their contraries; also, to believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, spare, pardon, and be angry.

DATIVE OF PURPOSE OR END (P. 170).

15. The dative is used with sum and a few other verbs to denote the purpose or end, usually with another dative of the person or thing affected or interested.

DATIVE OF POSSESSOR (P. 242).

16. The dative of the possessor is used with the verb sum.

DATIVE OF AGENT (P. 258).

17. The dative of the agent is used with the gerundive to denote the person interested in doing the action.

DATIVE WITH COMPOUNDS (P. 173).

18. The dative of the indirect object is used with many verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, and super, and sometimes circum.

Dative with Adjectives (p. 114).

19. The dative is used after adjectives to denote the object to which the quality is directed.

ACCUSATIVE AND VOCATIVE.

DIRECT OBJECT (P. 55).

20. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative.

SUBJECT OF THE INFINITIVE (P. 217).

21. The subject of the infinitive mode is put in the accusative.

Two Accusatives. — Person and Thing (p. 156).

22. Verbs of asking, demanding, teaching, and concealing take two accusatives, one of the person and the other of the thing.

Two Accusatives. - Same Person or Thing (p. 159).

23. Verbs of naming, calling, choosing, making, reckoning, regarding, esteeming, showing, and the like, take two accusatives of the same person or thing.

ACCUSATIVE OF TIME AND SPACE (P. 182).

24. Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative.

NAME OF THE PLACE TO WHICH (P. 188).

- 25. The name of the place whither, or to which, regularly requires the preposition in or ad.
- 1. But with names of towns and small islands, and with domum, domos, and rus, the preposition is omitted.

ACCUSATIVES IN EXCLAMATIONS.

26. The accusative, either with or without an interjection, may be used in exclamations.

COGNATE ACCUSATIVE.

- 27. Intransitive verbs often take an accusative of cognate, or kindred meaning (the accusative, if a noun, being usually accompanied by an adjective or pronoun).
- 1. To this head belongs the adverbial use of the accusative of neuter pronouns and adjectives with intransitive verbs. If such verbs are used transitively, an accusative of the person may stand with this adverbial accusative.

ACCUSATIVE AFTER COMPOUNDS.

28. Many verbs compounded with ad, ante, circum, con, in, inter, ob, per, praeter, sub, subter, super, and trans, become transitive, and take the accusative.

VOCATIVE (P. 75).

29. The name of the person or thing addressed is put in the vocative.

ABLATIVE PROPER.

PLACE FROM WHICH (P. 210).

- 30. The place whence, or from which, is denoted by the ablative with a preposition  $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$ ,  $\bar{\mathbf{a}}$ b,  $\bar{\mathbf{de}}$ , or  $\bar{\mathbf{e}}$ x (p. 234).
- 1. Names of towns and small islands omit the preposition (p. 234); also domō, rure, and sometimes humō.

SEPARATION, CAUSE, SOURCE, ORIGIN (P. 210).

- 31. Separation, cause, source, and origin, are denoted by the ablative with or without a preposition.
- 1. Fido (w. dat. also), confido, diffido, and frētus and contentus are followed by the ablative (p. 210).
- 2. Compounds with ā, ab, dē, ē, ex, denoting separation from a person or place, take the ablative when used figuratively; but, in a local and literal sense, they require a preposition with the ablative.

ABLATIVE OF AGENT (P. 131).

32. The voluntary agent after a passive verb is put in the ablative with ā or ab.

INSTRUMENTAL ABLATIVE.

MEANS AND INSTRUMENT (P. 287).

- 33. The means and instrument are denoted by the ablative without a preposition.
- 1. Utor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, and their compounds, are followed by the ablative (p. 253).

ABLATIVE OF MEASURE (P. 287).

34. The ablative without a preposition is used to denote the standard by which anything is measured.

MEASURE OF DIFFERENCE (P. 281).

35. The ablative is used with comparatives, and words implying comparison, to denote the measure of difference.

ABLATIVE OF PRICE (P. 283).

- 36. The price is expressed by the ablative when it is a definite sum.
  - 1. Dignus and indignus are followed by the ablative.

ABLATIVE OF SPECIFICATION (P. 278).

37. A noun, adjective, or verb may be followed by the ablative to denote in what respect its signification is taken.

ABLATIVE WITH COMPARATIVES (P. 112).

38. The comparative degree is followed by the ablative when quam, than, is omitted.

ABLATIVE OF MATERIAL (P. 288).

- 39. The material of which anything is made is regularly expressed by the ablative with ex or dē; but constāre, to consist, sometimes omits the preposition.
- 1. Opus and usus, signifying need, are followed by the ablative of the thing needed (p. 288).
- 2. Most verbs and adjectives signifying plenty and want are followed by the ablative (308. Obs. 1).

ABLATIVE OF MANNER (P. 289).

40. The ablative of manner generally takes the preposition cum, unless it has a modifying adjective or genitive (when cum may be omitted).

ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT (P. 289).

41. The ablative of accompaniment takes the preposition cum, except in a few military and other phrases.

ABLATIVE OF QUALITY (P. 269).

42. A noun denoting quality, quantity, or description, and having an adjective joined with it, may be put in the genitive or in the ablative.

LOCATIVE.

PLACE IN WHICH (P. 234).

43. The name of the place where, or in which, regularly requires in with the ablative.

Names of Towns (p. 234).

44. Names of towns and small islands, and also domus, rūs, and a few other words omit the preposition, and the name of the place where, or in which, takes the locative.

TIME (P. 167).

45. The time when, or within which, is put in the ablative; time how long, in the accusative.

ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE (P. 222).

46. A noun or pronoun, with a participle or an adjective, or two nouns, may be put in the ablative, to express the time or circumstance of an action.

INDICATIVE AND INFINITIVE MODES.

INDICATIVE MODE.

47. The indicative mode asserts action or being as a fact, or inquires after a fact.

SUBJECT ACCUSATIVE (P. 217).

48. The infinitive with subject accusative is used after verbs of saying, thinking, knowing, perceiving, hearing, and the like.

INFINITIVE AS SUBJECT, OBJECT, OR COMPLEMENT (P. 217).

49. The infinitive may be used as the subject, object, appositive, or complement of a verb.

GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

GERUNDIVE CONSTRUCTION (P. 227).

- 50. Instead of the gerund with its object in the accusative, the gerundive is generally used, the noun taking the case of the gerund, and the gerundive agreeing with the noun in gender, number, and case.
- 1. The gerund governs the same case as its verb, but is itself governed like a noun (225 ff.).

SUPINE.

FORMER SUPINE (P. 232).

51. The supine in -um is used after verbs of motion, to express the purpose of the motion.

LATTER SUPINE (P. 232).

52. The supine in -ū is used to limit the meaning of adjectives signifying wonderful, agreeable, easy or difficult, worthy or unworthy, honorable or base, and the nouns fās, něfās, and ŏpus.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDEPENDENT SENTENCES (p. 246).

53. The subjunctive is used in independent sentences to express a wish, command, exhortation, prohibition, or concession; also, in questions of doubt or deliberation, and in mild or modest assertions.

MODES AND TENSES IN DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

SEQUENCE OF TENSES (PP. 302, 309, 347).

54. A primary tense in the leading clause is followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause; and a secondary tense is followed by a secondary. (319, 322. Obs., 350. 1 and 2.)

SUBJUNCTIVE OF PURPOSE (P. 306).

55. Final clauses take their verbs in the present or imperfect subjunctive, according as the leading verb is in a primary or a secondary tense.

SUBJUNCTIVE OF RESULT (P. 309).

56. Consecutive clauses take their verbs in the subjunctive mode, the tense being determined by the regular rules for sequence of tenses. (See 322. Obs.)

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES (P. 317).

57. Conditional sentences with sī, nǐsi, nī, sīn, take —

Simple Present and Past Conditions.

1. Any present or past tense of the indicative in both clauses when nothing is implied as to the fulfilment of the condition.

Future Conditions.

2. The future indicative in both clauses, to represent the supposed future case in a distinct and vivid manner; the present (or perfect subjunctive) in both clauses, to represent the supposed future case in a less distinct and vivid manner.

Unreal Present and Past Conditions.

3. The imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive in both clauses, to represent the supposed case as unreal, or contrary to fact. The imperfect denotes present time, and the pluperfect past.

COMPARATIVE CLAUSES (P. 320).

- 58. Comparative clauses, introduced by ut, ŭtī, sīcut, quěmadmŏdum, etc., and followed by the demonstrative particles ĭta, sīc (80), etc., regularly take the indicative or the subjunctive as in independent sentences.
- 1. Comparative clauses, introduced by āc sī, ut sī, quam sī, quasi, tanquam, tanquam sī, vělut, vělut sī, are, in fact, conditional clauses, of which the conclusion is omitted or implied, and therefore take the subjunctive like conditional sentences; but the tense is determined by the regular rules for sequence of tenses.

Concessive Clauses (p. 322).

59. Concessive clauses are introduced by concessive conjunctions, — although, granting that, — and take the indicative or the subjunctive (according to the principles stated on p. 321 f.).

CAUSAL CLAUSES (P. 323).

- 60. Causal clauses, introduced by quod, quia, quoniam, quando, take the indicative when the reason assigned is stated as a fact, and indorsed by the speaker or writer.
- 1. Causal clauses introduced by cum or the relative quī regularly take the subjunctive.
- 2. Causal clauses introduced by quod, quia, quoniam, take the subjunctive (in Indirect Discouse, 348), to state the reason as the assertion or opinion of some one else than the speaker or writer.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

ANTECEDENT ACTION (P. 326).

61. Temporal clauses, introduced by postquam, postea quam, ŭbi, ŭt, ŭt prīmum, ŭbi prīmum, sĭmul āc, etc., take the indicative (commonly the aorist indicative or historical present).

CONTEMPORANEOUS ACTION (P. 321).

- 62. Dum, donec, quoad, while, as long as, take the indicative (any tense).
- 1. Dum, donec, quoad, until, take the indicative in the statement of a fact, the subjunctive when purpose is expressed (i.e. if the accomplishment of the purpose is the limit of the action).

Subsequent Action (p. 327).

- 63. Antequam and priusquam, before, are used with any tense of the indicative, except the imperfect and pluperfect, to express the mere priority of one event to another.
- 1. Antěquam and priusquam are used with the subjunctive to express (1) the intentional priority of one action to another (i.e. when the action is purposed or desired by the subject of the leading verb), (2) or when its non-occurrence is expressed or implied.

CONSTRUCTIONS OF CUM.

CUM TEMPORAL (P. 329).

64. Cum temporal (= when), introducing a clause that defines the mere time of an action, may be used with all the tenses of the indicative.

CUM HISTORICAL (P. 330).

65. Cum, meaning when, is used in historical narration with the imperfect subjunctive for contemporaneous action, with the pluperfect subjunctive for antecedent action.

CAUSAL AND CONCESSIVE CUM (P. 330).

66. Cum causal (= since) and cum concessive (= although) may be used with any tense of the subjunctive.

INTERROGATIVE CLAUSES.

DIRECT QUESTIONS (P. 338).

- 67. Direct simple questions are generally introduced by interrogative words, and, as a rule, take their verbs in the indicative.
- 1. Direct simple questions may take the subjunctive when they express doubt or deliberation, or imply a negative opinion on the part of the speaker or writer (278. 1, 3).

Indirect Questions (p. 339).

68. Indirect questions take their verbs in the subjunctive, the tense being determined by the regular rule for sequence of tenses (see 319).

DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

Indirect Discourse (p. 343).

69. In passing from direct to indirect discourse, principal clauses, if declarative, are changed to the infinitive with a subject accusative, and subordinate clauses to the subjunctive.

RELATIVE CLAUSES (P. 355).

- 70. A relative clause, having a definite antecedent, and adding merely a descriptive fact, takes the indicative.
- 71. Relative pronouns and relative adverbs take the subjunctive when they introduce clauses of purpose, result, condition, cause, or concession.

Attraction of Mode (p. 359).

72. A relative or other subordinate clause may take the subjunctive when it depends on, and forms an essential part of, an infinitive or subjunctive clause.

Informal Indirect Discourse (p. 360).

73. A relative or other subordinate clause may take the subjunctive when it expresses, though not in formal indirect discourse, the thought of some other person than the speaker or writer.

ADVERBS.

Uses of Adverbs (p. 119).

74. Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs.

CONJUNCTIONS (P. 176).

75. Conjunctions connect words, phrases, clauses, and sentences.

READING LESSONS.

CÆSAR IS PROSCRIBED, BUT PARDONED BY SULLA.

1. G. Jūlius Caesar, nōbilissimā gĕnītus fămīliā, 31 annum ăgēns sextum et dĕcimum, pătrem āmīsit. Paulō post Cornēliam dūxit ūxōrem, cūjus cum păter Sullae 19 esset inimīcus, vŏluit Sulla Caesărem compellĕre 49 ut eam dīmittĕret; nĕque id pŏtuit efficĕre. Ob eam causam Caesar bŏnīs 31 spŏliātus, cum ĕtiam ad mortem quaerĕrētur, mūtātā veste, noctū ēlapsus est ex urbe, et, quamquam tunc quartānae morbō lăbōrābat, prŏpe per singŭlās noctēs lătēbrās commūtāre cōgĕbātur; et comprēhensus ā Sullae lībertō, vix dătā pĕcūniā 33 ēvāsit.

Postrēmō per propinquos et affinēs suos veniam impetrāvit, diū repūgnante Sulla, quī cum dēprecāntībus ornātissimīs virīs dēnegasset, atque illī pertināciter contenderent victus tandem dīxit, eum, quem salvum tantopere cuperent, aliquando optimātium partibus, 15 quās simul defendissent, exitio 15 futurum, multosque in eo puero inesse 48 Mărios.

CÆSAR'S CAPTURE BY THE PIRATES.

2. Caesar, mortuō Sullā et compŏsĭtā sēdītiōne cīvīlī, Rhŏdum sēcēdĕre <sup>40</sup> stătuit, ut per ōtium Apollōniō, tunc clārissimō dīcendī măgistrō, ŏpĕram dăret; sed in ĭtĭnĕre ā pīrātīs captus est, mansitque ăpud eōs quadrāgintā diēs.<sup>24</sup> Per omne autem illud spătium ĭta sē gessit, ut pīrātīs <sup>20</sup> terrorī <sup>15</sup> părĭter ac vĕnĕrātiōnī <sup>15</sup> esset. Intĕrim cŏmĭtēs servōsque dīmīsĕrat ad expĕdiendās pĕcūniās, quībus rĕdĭmĕrētur. Vīgintī tālenta pīrātae postŭlāvĕrant; ille vērō quinquāgintā dătūrum <sup>48</sup> sē spŏpondit. Quībus nŭmĕrātis, expŏsĭtus est in lītŏre. Caesar lībĕrātus cōnfestim Mīlētum,<sup>25</sup> quae urbs proximē ābĕrat, prŏpĕrāvit; ĭbīque contractā classe, stantēs adhuc in eōdem lŏcō praedōnēs noctū adortus, ălīquot nāvēs, mersīs ăliīs,<sup>46</sup> cēpit, pīrātāsque ad dēdītiōnem rĕdactōs eō affēcit supplīciō, quod <sup>5</sup> illīs saepe per jŏcum mĭnātus ĕrat, cum ab iīs dētĭnērētur; crūcībus <sup>28</sup> illōs suffīgī jussit.

Cæsar's Quæstorship in Spain.

3. Caesar quaestor³ factus in Hispāniam prŏfectus est; cumque Alpēs transīret, et ad cōnspectum paupēris cūjusdam vīcī cŏmĭtēs ējus per jŏcum inter sē dispŭtārent, an illīc ĕtiam esset ambĭtiōnī 16 lŏcus; sēriō dīxit Caesar, mālle sē ĭbī prīmum esse quam Rōmae 4 sĕcundum. Ita ănĭmus dŏmĭnātiōnis

§ ăvĭdus ā prīmā aetāte rēgnum concūpiscēbat, semperque in ōre hābēbat hōs Eurīpĭdis, Graecī poetae, versus: Nam sī viŏlandum est jūs, rēgnandī grātiā viŏlandum est; āliīs rēbus pĭetātem cŏlās.

LEADER OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

4. Caesar in captandã 50 plēbis grātiā et ambiendīs 50 honoribus patrimonium effudit; aere ălieno oppressus ipse dicebat, sĭbĭ 16 ŏpus esse mīlliēs sestertium, 10 ut habēret nĭhil. Hīs artibus consulātum adeptus est, collēgaque eī datus Marcus Bibulus, cui 14 Caesaris consilia haud placebant. Inito măgistratu 46 Caesar legem agrariam tulit, hoc est, de dīvidendo egenīs cīvibus 18 agro publico; cuī legī 14 cum senātus repugnaret, Caesar rem ad populum detulit. Bibulus collēga in forum vēnit, ut lēgī 18 ferendae 50 obsisteret; sed tanta commota est seditio, ut in caput consulis cophinus stercore 39 plēnus effunderētur, fascēsque frangerentur. Tandem Bibulus, ā satellitibus Caesaris foro 31 expulsus, domī 44 sē continēre per reliquum annī tempus coactus est, cūriāque Interea unus Caesar omnia ad arbitrium in republică administravit; unde quidam homines făceti, quae eo anno gesta sunt, non, ut mos erat, consulibus 6 Caesare et Bibulo acta esse dicebant, sed Julio et Caesare, unum consulem nomine et cognomine pro duobus appellantes.

PROCONSUL IN GAUL.

5. Caesar functus consulātū <sup>38</sup> Galliam provinciam accēpit. Gessit autem novem annīs, <sup>45</sup> quibus in impērio fuit, haec ferē. Galliam in provinciae Romānae formam redēgit; Germānos, quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, prīmus Romānorum <sup>10</sup> ponte fabricāto aggressus māximīs affēcit clādībus. <sup>38</sup> Britannos anteā īgnotos vīcit, iīsque <sup>14</sup> pēcūniās et obsidēs impērāvit; quo in bello multa Caesaris facta ēgrēgia narrantur. Inclīnante in fūgam exercitū, rāpuit ē mănū mīlitis fūgientis scūtum, et in prīmam ăciem volitāns pūgnam rēstītuit. In ălio proelio ăquiliferum terga vertentem faucibus <sup>83</sup> comprehendit, in contrariam partem retraxit, dexteramque ad hostem protendens: "Quorsum tū," inquit, "ăbīs? Illīc sunt, quibus cum dīmicāmus." Quō factō mīlitībus ănimōs addidit.<sup>13</sup>

CÆSAR BEGINS THE CIVIL WAR.

6. Caesar cum adhūc in Galliā dētinērētur, nē imperfectō bello discederet, postulavit ut sibi liceret, quamvis absenti, itěrum consulātum pětěre: 49 quod eī ā sěnātū est něgātum. Eā rē commotus in Italiam rediit, armīs injūriam acceptam vindicātūrus; plūrimīsque urbibus 46 occupātīs Brundisium contendit, quo Pompeius consulesque confugerant. summae audāciae făcinus Caesar ēdidit: ā Brundisio Dyrrăchium inter oppositās classēs grāvissimā hieme 45 trānsiit; cessantibusque copiis, quas subsequi jusserat, cum ad eas arcessendās 50 frustrā mīsisset, morae 19 impătiens castrīs noctū ēgrēdītur, clam solus nāvīcūlam conscendit obvolūto căpite, ne agnosceretur. Măre, adverso vento vehementer flante, intumescebat; in altum tamen protinus dīrigī navigium jubet; cumque gubernator paene obrutus fluctibus 33 adversae tempestātī cēderet: "Quid timēs?" ait; "Caesarem věhis."

CÆSAR DEFEATS POMPEY AND SUBDUES THE EAST.

7. Deinde Caesar in Thessăliam profectus est, ubi Pompēium Pharsālico proelio fudit, fugientem persecutus est, eumque in itinere cognovit occisum fuisse. Tum bellum Ptolemaeo, Pompēii interfectorī, intulit ā quo sibi quoque insidiās parārī vidēbat; quo victo, Caesar in Pontum trānsiit, Pharnācemque, Mithridātis filium rebellantem aggressus intrā quintum ab adventū diem, quattuor vēro, quibus in conspectum vēnerat, horīs, uno proelio proflīgāvit. Quam victoriae celeritātem inter triumphandum notāvit, inscripto inter pompae ornāmenta trium verborum titulo, Vēnī, vīdī, vīcī. Sua deinceps Caesarem ubique comitāta est fortuna.

Scīpionem et Jubam, Numidiae rēgem, relīquiās Pompēianārum partium in Africā refoventēs, dēvīcit. Pompēiī līberos in Hispānia superāvit. Clēmenter usus est victoriā, 33 et omnībus, 14 qui contrā sē arma tulerant, pepercit. Regressus in urbem, quinquies triumphāvit.

CÆSAR IS DECLARED PERPETUAL DICTATOR, BUT IS SOON AFTER ASSASSINATED.

8. Bellīs cīvīlībus confectīs, Caesar, dictātor in perpetuum creātus, agere însolentius coepit. Senatum ad se venientem sěděns excépit, et quemdam, ut assurgěret monentem, îrato vultū 40 rēspēxit. Cum Antonius, Caesaris in omnibus expedītionībus comes, et tunc in consulātu collēga, eī 18 in sellā aureā sedentī pro rostrīs diadēma, īnsīgne regium, imponeret, non vīsus est eo facto offendī.49 Quare conjūratum est in eum ā sexāgintā amplius virīs,32 Cassiō et Brūtō ducibus conspīrātionis. Cum igitur Caesar Idibus 45 Martiis in senātum vēnisset, assidentem spēciē officii circumstětērunt, illicoque ūnus ē conjūrātīs, quăsi ăliquid rogātūrus, propius accessit, rěnuentíque togam ab utroque uměro apprehendit. clāmantem, "Ista quidem vīs est," Cassius vūlněrat paullo înfră jugulum. Caesar Cascae brachium arreptum graphio trājēcit, conātusque prosilīre ăliud vulnus accepit. Marcum Brütum, quem loco filii habebat, in se irruentem vīdisset, dīxit: "Tū quoque, fīlī mī!" Dein ubī animadvertit undique sē strictīs pugionibus petī, togā caput obvolvit, atque ita tribus et viginti plagis 33 confossus est.

CHARACTER OF CÆSAR.

9. Erat Caesar excelsā stătūrā <sup>42</sup> nǐgrīs věgētīsque ŏcŭlīs, <sup>42</sup> căpĭte <sup>42</sup> calvō quam calvĭtīī dēformĭtātem aegrē fĕrēbat, quod saepe obtrectantiūm jŏcīs esset obnŏxia. Ităque ex omnĭbus hŏnōrĭbus sibĭ ā sĕnātū pŏpŭlōque dēcrētīs nōn ăliud rĕcēpit aut ūsurpāvit libentius, quam jūs laureae perpĕtuō gestandae. Eum vīnī <sup>9</sup> parcissĭmum fuīsse nē ĭnĭmīcī quĭdem nĕgārunt;

unde Cătō dīcĕre sŏlēbat, ūnum ex omnĭbus Caesărem ad ēvertendam rempublicam sōbrium accessīsse. Armōrum <sup>9</sup> et ĕquĭtandī pĕrītissĭmus ĕrat; lăbōris ultrā fīdem pătiēns; in agmĭne nōnnunquam ĕquō, saepius pĕdĭbus anteībat, căpĭte dētectō, sīve sōl, sīve imber esset. Longissĭmās viās incrēdībĭlī cĕlĕritāte cōnfēcit, ĭta ut persaepe nuntiōs dē sē praevēnĕrit, nĕque eum mŏrābantur flūmĭna, quae vel nandō<sup>38</sup> vel innīxus īnflātīs ŭtrĭbus <sup>38</sup> trāiciēbat.

III. THE HELVETIAN WAR.

[From Woodford's Epitome of Cæsar's Gallic War.]

CÆSAR'S DESCRIPTION OF GAUL.

1. Gallia est omnis dīvīsa in partēs trēs. Unam incolunt Belgae, ăliam Aquîtānī, tertiam Celtae,1 quī 5 linguā 38 nostrā Gallī appellantur. Hī omnēs linguā, institūtīs, lēgibus inter sē differunt. Gallos ab Aquītānīs Gărumna flumen dīvidit, ā Belgīs Matrona et Sēquana. Fortissimi 6 sunt Belgae, proptěreā quod proximī sunt Germānīs,19 quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt. Helvētii quoque rěliquos Gallos virtūte s praecedunt, quod fere cottidianis proeliis cum Germanis contendunt. Una pars initium căpit a flūmine Rhodano; continetur Garumna flūmine, oceano, fīnibus Belgārum. Attingit ětiam flūmen 3 Rhēnum. Vergit ad septentriones. Belgae ab extremis Galliae finibus oriuntur, pertinent ad înfériorem partem fluminis Rheni, spectant in septentriones et orientem solem. Aquitania a Garumna flumine ad Pyrenaeos montes et eam partem oceani, quae est ad Hispāniam, pertinet, spectat inter occāsum solis et septentriônës.

ORGETORIX AND HIS PLAN OF EMIGRATION.

2. Apud Helvētiōs nōbĭlissĭmus <sup>6</sup> et dītissĭmus fuit Orgĕtŏrix. Is conjūrātiōnem nōbĭlitātis fēcit, et cīvĭtātī <sup>14</sup> persuāsit, ut dē fīnĭbus suīs cum omnĭbus cōpiīs exīrent. Făcĭlius eīs persuāsit, quod undĭque lŏcī nātūrā <sup>33</sup> Helvētiī contĭnentur: ūnā ex parte flūmĭne Rhēnō lātissĭmō atque altissĭmō, quī agrum Helvētium ā Germānīs dīvĭdit; altĕrā ex parte, monte Jūrā altissĭmō, quī est inter Sēquǎnōs et Helvētiōs; tertiā, lǎcū Lěmannō et flūmĭne Rhŏdǎnō, quī Prōvinciam nōstram ab Helvētiīs dīvĭdit.

THE HELVETIANS PREPARE TO LEAVE THEIR COUNTRY.

3. Hīs rēbus adductī, constituērunt ea quae <sup>5</sup> ad proficiscendum pertinērent compărāre, <sup>49</sup> jūmentorum et carrorum quam māximum numerum coëmere, sementes quam māximās făcere, cum proximīs cīvitātibus amīcitiam confirmāre. In tertium annum profectionem lege confirmant.

EMBASSY OF ORGETORIX TO THE NEIGHBORING STATES.

4. Ad eās rēs confíciendās <sup>50</sup> Orgětŏrix dēligitur. Is lēgātionem ad cīvitātēs suscēpit. In eō itiněre persuādet Casticō, Sēquānō, ut rēgnum in cīvitāte suā occupāret, quod <sup>5</sup> păter ante hăbuěrat. Itemque Dumnŏrigī Aeduō, quī māximē plēbī acceptus ěrat, ut idem cōnārētur persuādet. Inter sē jūsjūrandum dant, et totīus Galliae sēsē potīrī posse spērant. Ea rēs est Helvētiīs <sup>13</sup> ēnuntiāta. Orgětŏrigem ex vinculīs causam dīcĕre coëgērunt. Damnātum poenam sĕquī ŏportēbat, ut īgnī <sup>33</sup> crěmārētur. Diē cōnstītūtā <sup>45</sup> Orgětŏrix ad jūdicium omnem suam fămiliam, et omnēs clientēs obaerātōsque cŏndūxit. Per eōs sē ēripuit. Cum cīvitās, ob eam rem incītāta, armīs jūs suum exsĕquī cōnārētur, Orgětŏrix mortuus est.

THE ROUTE SELECTED.

5. Post ējus mortem nihilominus Helvētii id quod constituerant făcere <sup>49</sup> conantur. Ubi se părātos esse <sup>48</sup> arbitrātī sunt, oppida sua omnia, vīcos, prīvāta aedificia incendunt. Trium mensium molīta cibāria quemque domo efferre jubent. Erant omnīno itinera duo, quibus <sup>5</sup> itineribus <sup>33</sup> domo exīre possent: ūnum per Sēquanos, angustum et difficile, inter montem Jūram et flūmen Rhŏdănum; altěrum per prōvinciam nōstram multō făcĭlius atque expědītius, proptěreā quod Rhŏdănus nōnnūllīs lŏcīs 40 vădŏ 33 trānsītur. Extrēmum oppĭdum Allŏbrŏgum est Gěnāva. Ex eō oppĭdō pōns ad Helvētiōs pertĭnet. Omnĭbus rēbus 46 ad prŏfectiōnem compărātīs, diem dīcunt, quā diē ad rīpam Rhŏdănī omnēs convěniant. Caesărī cum id nuntiātum esset, mātūrat ab urbe prŏficiscī, et in Galliam ultěriōrem contendit. Pontem jubet rēscindī. 40

CÆSAR RECEIVES AN EMBASSY FROM THE HELVETII.

6. Ubī dē ējus adventū Helvētiī certiorēs 7 factī sunt, lēgātōs ad eum mittunt, quī 71 dīcērent 'sībī 16 esse in ănīmō sīne ūllō mălĕfīciō ĭter per prōvinciam făcĕre.' Caesar ā lācū Lĕmannō ad montem Jūram mūrum fossamque perdūcit. Nĕgat sē posse 48 ĭter ūllī per prōvinciam dăre. 40 Rĕlinquēbātur ūna per Sēquānōs via, quā, Sēquānīs invītīs, propter angustiās īre nōn pŏtĕrant. Hīs 14 cum persuādēre nōn possent, lēgātōs ad Dumnŏrĭgem mittunt, ut, eō dēprĕcātōre, 46 impĕtrārent. Dumnŏrix āpud Sēquānōs plūrĭmum pŏtĕrat, et Helvētiīs 19 ĕrat āmīcus, quod Orgĕtŏrĭgis fīliam in mātrĭmōnium dūxĕrat. Itāque.rem suscipit, et ā Sēquānīs impĕtrat, ut per fīnēs suōs Helvētiōs īre pătiantur.

THE ÆDUI AND OTHER TRIBES COMPLAIN TO CÆSAR OF THE ENCROACHMENTS OF THE HELVETII.

7. Caesar in Itāliam māgnīs itīnerībus contendit, duāsque ibī legiones conscrībit, et trēs ex hībernīs ēdūcit, et in ūlteriorem Galliam, per Alpēs, īre contendit. In fīnes Vocontiorum diē septīmo pervēnit; inde in Allobrogum fīnes, ab Allobrogibus in Segusiānos exercitum dūcit. Hī sunt extrā provinciam trāns Rhodānum prīmī. Helvētiī jam per angustiās et fīnes Sequānorum suās copiās trānsdūxerant, et Aeduorum agros populābantur. Aeduī, cum se defendere non possent, legātos ad Caesarem mittunt rogātum auxīlium. Eodem tempore Aeduī Ambarrī, consanguineī Aeduorum, Caesarem certiōrem făciunt, sēsē, dēpŏpŭlātīs agrīs, nōn făcile ab oppĭdīs vim hostium prŏhĭbēre. Item Allōbrŏgēs, quī trāns Rhŏdănum vīcōs possessiōnēsque hǎbēbant, fūgā <sup>38</sup> sē ad Caesărem rēcĭpiunt. Caesar nōn exspectandum sĭbī <sup>17</sup> stătuit, dum in Santŏnōs Helvētiī pervenīrent.

CÆSAR SURPRISES AND ROUTES ONE CANTON OF THE HELVETII

8. Flūmen est Arar, quod per fīnēs Aeduōrum et Sēquănorum in Rhŏdănum īnfluit, incrēdībilī lēnītāte, <sup>40</sup> ĭta ut ŏcŭlīs, in ŭtram partem fluat, jūdīcārī nōn possit. Id Helvētiī, răŭbus et lintrībus junctīs, trānsībant. Ubī Caesar certior factus est trēs cōpiārum partēs Helvētiōs <sup>21</sup> trānsdūxīsse, quartam fĕrē partem citrā flūmen esse, dē tertiā vigiliā ē castris prŏfectus ad eam partem pervēnit, quae nōndum trānsiĕrat. Eōs impĕdītōs aggressus, māgnam eōrum partem concīdit. Rĕlĭquī sēsē in proxīmās silvās abdĭdērunt. Is pāgus appellābātur Tīgūrīnus: <sup>3</sup> nam omnis cīvĭtās Helvētia in quattuor pāgōs dīvīsa est. Hic pāgus Lūcium Cassium cōnsūlem interfēcĕrat, et ējus exercītum sub jūgum mīsĕrat. Ita, quae pars călămĭtātem pŏpūlō <sup>18</sup> Rōmānō intūlĕrat, ea prīnceps poenās persolvit.

CÆSAR CROSSES THE RIVER ARAR AND RECEIVES A SECOND EMBASSY FROM THE HELVETIL.

9. Hōc proeliō factō, rělǐquās cōpiās Helvētiōrum ut cōnsĕquī posset, pontem in Arăre făciendum cūrat, atque ĭta exercĭtum trānsdūcit. Helvētiī, rěpentīno ējus adventū commōtī, lēgātōs ad eum mittunt, cūjus lēgātiōnis Dĭvĭcō prīnceps fuit, quī bellō <sup>45</sup> Cassiānō dux Helvētiōrum fuĕrat. Is ĭta cum Caesăre ēgit: 'Sī pācem pŏpūlus Rōmānus cum Helvētiīs făcĕret, in eam partem ĭtūrōs, ŭbī Caesar eōs <sup>21</sup> esse vŏluisset; sīn bellō persĕquī persĕvērāret, rěmĭniscĕrētur et větĕris incommŏdī <sup>12</sup> pŏpūlī Rōmānī, et pristĭnae virtūtis Helvētiōrum; sē ĭta ā pătrĭbus mājōrĭhusque suīs dĭdĭcīsse, ut măgis virtūte quam dölö contendérent. Quāre, nē committéret, ut is locus, ubi constitussent, ex călămitate populi Romani nomen căperet.

THE HELVETII, ENCOURAGED BY THE SUCCESS OF THEIR CAVALRY, PREPARE TO ATTACK CÆSAR'S ARMY.

10. Hīs Caesar ita respondit: 6 'Sibi 16 minus dubitātionis dărī, quod eās rēs, quās comměmorassent, měmoria 33 těnēret. Sī větěris contumeliae 12 oblivisci vellet, num recentium injuriārum měmoriam deponěre posse? Tamen, si obsides ab iis sibi dentur, ŭti ea 18 quae polliceantur factūros intelligat, et sī Aeduīs dē injūriīs quās ipsīs sociīsque eorum intulerint, item, si Allobrogibus sătisfăciant, sese cum iis pacem factūrum.' Divico respondit: 'Ita Helvētios ā mājoribus suīs īnstitūtos esse, ŭti obsidēs accipere, non dare consueverint; ejus reī populum Romanum esse testem.' Hoc responso dăto, discessit. Postěro die castra ex eo loco movent. Idem făcit Caesar. Equitatum omnem praemittit, qui videant, quas in partes hostēs iter făciant. Qui ălieno loco cum equitatu Helvetiorum proelium committunt, et pauci de nostris cadunt. Helvetii audācius subsistere, nonnunquam nostros lacessere coepērunt. Caesar suos a proelio continebat, ac satis habebat in praesentiā hostem răpīnīs 31 prohibēre. Ita dies 24 circiter quinděcim iter fecerunt, ŭti, inter novissimum hostium agmen et nostrum prīmum, non amplius quinis aut sēnis mīlibus 38 passuum intěresset.

THE ÆDUI NEGLECT TO FURNISH THE CORN THEY HAD PROMISED AND CÆSAR CALLS THE GALLIC CHIEFS TO A COUNCIL.

11. Intěrim cottīdiē Caesar Aeduos <sup>22</sup> frūmentum, quod <sup>5</sup> essent publicē pollicitī, flāgitāre. Nam, propter frīgŏra, nōn mŏdo frūmenta in agrīs mātūra nōn ĕrant, sed nē pābūlī quidem sătis māgna cōpia suppětēbat. Ubi se diūtius dūcī intellexit, et diem īnstāre, quō diē frūmentum<sup>21</sup> mīlitibus mētīrī oportēret, convocātīs eorum prīncipibus, quorum māgnam copiam in castrīs habebat, in hīs Dīvitiācō, et Liscō, quī summō măgistrātuī 18 praeĕrat, graviter eos accūsat, quod ab iis non sublevetur; praesertim cum māgnā ex parte eorum precibus adductus, bellum susceperit. Tum demum Liscus proponit: 'esse nonnullos, quorum auctoritas apud plebem plūrimum valeat; hos 21 seditiosā atque improbā orātione multitūdinem deterrere.48 ne frümentum conférant. Ab iīsdem nostra consilia hostibus ēnuntiārī: hōs ā sē coercērī non posse. LISCUS INFORMS CÆSAR THAT IT IS OWING TO THE TREACHERY OF DUMNORIX THAT SUPPLIES ARE NOT FURNISHED.

12. Caesar hāc ōrātione Dumnorigem, 21 Dīvitiācī frātrem, dēsīgnārī<sup>48</sup> sentiēbat; sed quod, plūrībus praesentībus, eās rēs jactārī nolēbat, cělěriter concilium dimittit, Liscum rětinet; dīcit līberius atque audācius. Eadem secreto ab aliīs quaerit; reperit esse vera: 'ipsum esse Dumnorigem summā audāciā,42 māgnā apud plēbem propter līberālitātem grātiā, cŭpidum novarum rerum;9 complures annos 24 omnia Aeduorum vectīgālia parvo pretio redempta habere; propterea quod, illo licente, contra liceri audeat nemo. His rebus suam rem fămiliārem auxīsse, māgnum numerum equitatus semper circum sē hăbēre. Făvēre Helvētiis 14 propter affinitatem, odisse Caesarem et Romanos, quod eorum adventu potentia ejus deminuta, et Dīvītiācus frāter in antīquum locum grātiae atque honoris sit rēstitūtus. Si quid accidat Romānīs, summam in spem rēgnī per Helvētios obtinendī venīre; imperio populī Romānī. non modo de regno, sed etiam de ea quam habeat gratia, dēspērāre.

DIVITIACUS BESEECHES CÆSAR NOT TO TAKE SEVERE MEAS-URES AGAINST HIS BROTHER.

13. Cum ad hās suspīciones certissimae res accederent, sătis esse causae arbitrābātur, quāre in eum aut ipse animadvertěret, aut cīvitātem animadvertere jubēret. ### III. THE HELVETIAN WAR.

Sketch of Cæsar's Life.

GAIUS JULIUS CÆSAR was born, by the common account, in the year B.C. 100 (or, by a probable reckoning, two years earlier), and was assassinated in the year B.C. 44, at the age of fifty-six. The earlier date of his birth is consistent with the fact that he was Quæstor in B.C. 68, Ædile in B.C. 65, Prætor in 62, and Consul in 59, since one was not eligible to these offices, according to the Lex Annalis, until he had entered upon the age of thirty-seven, forty, and forty-three respectively. But Cæsar was most likely exempted by a special act, as Pompey and many other prominent political leaders had been (from the Lex Annalis). Cæsar sprang from an old patrician family, but the circumstances of his early life brought him into close connection with the Marian, or democratic, party; for his aunt Julia had married Marius, and he himself, when but a boy of seventeen, had taken the daughter of Cinna, one of the Marian leaders, for his wife. At the bidding of Sulla, when dictator, Cæsar had refused to divorce his wife, as Pompey had done. His name was then placed upon the list of the proscribed, which means that he could be killed by any partisan of Sulla who happened to see him, and his property would be confiscated, a large reward being first paid to the assassin. Cæsar fled at once from the capital, and concealed himself among the Albans hills, until, by the intercession of the vestal virgins, and many prominent men among the nobility, Sulla was induced to grant a pardon. "You wish it," said Sulla, "and I grant it: but in this boy there are more than one Marius." Cæsar, however, would not accept pardon, and so long as Sulla lived, he avoided the capital. While in Asia Minor, he distinguished himself at the siege of Mytilene (or Mitylene), winning the civic crown for saving the life of a citizen. When the news of Sulla's death reached him, he returned to Rome; but, seeing that there was no prospect at present of the popular party regaining power, he decided to withdraw again from the capital, and to devote himself at Rhodes to the study of oratory, in which he had already gained some renown. On his way thither he was captured by pirates, with whom the Mediterranean Sea at that time swarmed, because the government at home had been for many years so inefficient and lax. The pirates demanded twenty talents - nearly twenty-five thousand dollars - for his ransom. too little," said Cæsar; "you shall have fifty; but once free, I will crucify you." And he kept his word; for no sooner had he gained his liberty than he manned some vessels, overpowered the pirates, and conducted them to a neighboring city as prisoners.

On his return to Rome, Cæsar used every means to increase his popularity. His affable manners, and still more his unbounded liberality, won the hearts of the people. At the age of thirty-five (assuming the earlier date) he was Quæstor in Further Spain (B.C. 68). Two years later (B.C. 65) he was Curule Ædile, an office which gave him a good opportunity to win the favor of the people, because he was to have charge of the public games and exhibitions. As Ædile, Cæsar not only embellished the forum and public buildings, and exhibited three hundred and twenty pairs of gladiators equipped in silver, but in all the diversions of the theatre, in the processions and public tables, he far outshone the most ambitious of his predecessors. gality was frightful, his debts enormous, amounting at this time to more than one hundred million sesterces - nearly five million dollars. When the chief pontiff died (B.C. 63), the most illustrious men of the state sought the office. Cæsar, however, did not give way to them, although Catulus, one of his opponents, who had been Consul, and was now a prominent member of the senate, fearing to be defeated by one so much inferior in rank, station, and age, offered Cæsar large sums of money to pay his debts, if he would withdraw from the contest. On the morning of the election, Cæsar is reported to have said to his mother, who would gladly have had him withdraw from the struggle, "I shall this day be either chief pontiff or an exile."

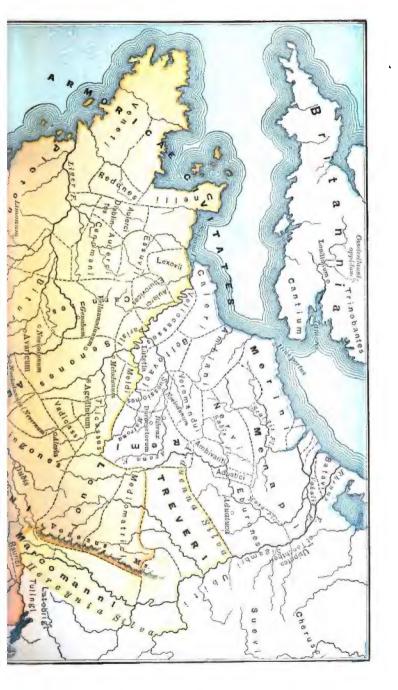

The next year Cæsar was Prætor, and as Proprætor he went, at the end of his year of office, to govern Spain. Before his departure, his old friend Crassus, the richest man at Rome, had to pay a part of his debts, and to stand security for the rest to the amount of nearly a million of dollars. Cæsar is reported to have said in his reckless way that he needed a hundred million sesterces to be worth just nothing at all. In Spain he displayed that civil and military ability which afterwards made him famous. It must have been a strange sight to see this dissolute spendthrift, this profligate demagogue, with his countenance pale and white, withered before its time by the excesses of the capital, this delicate and epileptic man, walking at the head of his legions, and fighting as the foremost soldier with the wild tribes of Lusitania.

On his return to Rome, Cæsar found Pompey, who had just completed the Mithridatic war in the East, and was arranging for his triumphal entry into the city, at variance with the senate. Cæsar at once saw his opportunity; he formed a political coalition with Pompey and Crassus, one part of the bargain being that Cæsar should have the consulship for the next year (B.C. 59), and after that the government of Gaul for five years. In accordance with this programme, Cæsar was entrusted, at the expiration of his consulship, with the command of Cisalpine Gaul, Illyricum, and the province of Narbo, or simply provincia, with three legions, for a term of five years. Cæsar had now attained his object. As Proconsul of Cisalpine Gaul, he could watch the progress of affairs in the capital, while the threatening movements of the tribes in Gaul opened to him the prospect of subjugating the country and training an army for the impending civil war, for Cæsar no doubt then clearly saw that a struggle between himself and Pompey for the chief power at Rome was inevitable.

For a long time the Romans had felt the importance of possessing Gaul, but as yet no systematic effort had been made to extend their dominion in that quarter farther than occupying the seaboard between the Alps and Pyrenees (B.C. 121). The climate of Gaul was healthful, the soil rich and fertile, and the intercourse with Rome easy by land and sea. Roman merchants and farmers had already emigrated in great numbers to Gaul, and disseminated Roman culture and civilization to such an extent that many of the tribes could transact business with Roman ambassadors in the Latin language. The centre of this civilization and refinement was the old Greek city Massilia; also the resort of those who had been banished from the capital. The merchants stationed there carried on an extensive trade with the interior of Gaul, and even with Britain. They transported their wares up the Rhone and Saone, and thence by land to the Seine and Loire, or across to the Garonne, and so to the Atlantic. This intercourse produced a close connection between the tribes from the Rhone and the Garonne to the Rhine and the Thames. Cæsar saw how essential the possession of this country was to the Roman state, and that to its conqueror was offered the prospect of surpassing the fame of Camillus and Marius.

Of the population of Gaul, the Ædui had entered into an alliance with Rome, while the Belgæ in the north, and the Sequani in the south, sought an alliance with the Germans. The Ædui, relying on the assistance of Rome, imposed heavy tolls on the navigation of the Saone. The Sequani complained bitterly of this, and thinking that the Roman government was too much occupied with its own contentions at home to furnish its clients assistance, determined to rid themselves of the influence of Rome, and punish the Ædui. For this purpose they invited the German prince, Ariovistus, with about 15,000 men, to their assistance. The Ædui were defeated, and forced to pay tribute to the Sequani, to give hostages, and to swear never to wage war for their recovery, or to solicit the aid of Rome. Divitiacus, the chief magistrate of his clan, alone refused to sign the treaty, and fled to Rome to ask assistance. Ariovistus now invited other tribes across the Rhine, and demanded land to settle them on: the whole frontier of Gaul, from the sources of the Rhine to the ocean, was threatened by the invasion of the German tribes. These tribes so pressed upon the Helvetians, who were hemmed in on the south and the west by the Alps, Lake Geneva, and the Jura Mountains, that they determined to abandon their country to the Germans, and seek larger and more fertile fields in the west. Cæsar, on the expiration of his consulship, had remained in the vicinity of the capital until he accomplished his political schemes. But when the news reached him that the Helvetii had abandoned their homes, and were advancing upon Geneva with the purpose of crossing the Rhone and forcing their way through the Province, he hastily made his preparations, reached the Rhone in eight days, and by skilful negotiations delayed the advance until a line of entrenchments had been constructed from Lake Geneva to the Jura Mountains. Defeated in the attempt to cross the river in this direction, the Helvetii were compelled to take their way along its right bank, and thus make their journey westward by a more northerly route. Cæsar hastily collected his forces, followed up the left bank of the Saone, cut to pieces in a fierce battle a part of the Helvetian army, and pursued the remainder to Bibracte, where he defeated them in a terrible battle, and compelled the survivors to return to their native country and rebuild their homes.

1. Gallia: Gaul extended from the Pyrenees and the Gulf of Lyons on the south to the British Channel and German Ocean on the north. It was bounded on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, and on the east by the Rhine and Italy. It was called Trānsalpīna (i.e. beyond the Alps), to distinguish it from Cisalpīna (i.e. on this side of the Alps), in northern Italy. It included France, Belgium, part of Switzerland and Holland, and the part of Germany west of the Rhine. In the division which Cæsar here makes he does not include the southeast part, called Gallia Narbonensis, or commonly Provincia, whence the modern name Provence. The Roman dominion in the Provincia was secured by the establishment of Narbo Marcius, a Roman colony on the Atax, in B.C. 121.

The most remote Roman towns towards the west and north were Lugdunum, Convenarum (or Convenae), Tolosa, Vienna, and Geneva. The country was well provided with roads and bridges. The commerce on the Rhone, Garonne, Loire, and Seine was considerable and lucrative, and extended even into Britain. The people were tall, of fair complexion and of sanguine temperament, fond of fighting, but easily discouraged. They were skilled in working copper and gold. Copper implements of excellent workmanship, and even now malleable, have been found in the tombs in many places in Gaul. The Romans are said to have learned from them the art of tinning and silvering. The Gauls, or as they called themselves the Celts, had attained so much skill in mining. that the miners, especially in the iron-mines on the Loire, acted an important part in sieges. There was no political union among the different clans, no leading canton for all Gaul, no tie, however loose, uniting the whole nation under one leadership. Sometimes one canton would extend its power over a weaker one, as the Suessiones in the north, the maritime cantons in the west, the two leagues in the south, one headed by the Ædui, the other by the Sequani; but the Celts as a nation lacked political unity, and the cantons, for the most part, existed independently side by side. In matters of religion they had long been centralized. The association of Druids embraced the British islands, all Gaul, and perhaps other Celtic communities. The Druids had a special head elected by the priests themselves, special privileges, as exemption from taxation and military service, and an annual council.

The Province in Cæsar's time extended from the Pyrences to the Alps on the coast, and was bounded on the east by the Alps, on the west by the Mons Cevenna (Cevennes), southward from the latitude of Lugdunum (Lyons), and on the north (where it narrowed off) by the Rhone, from the western extremity of Lake Geneva to the junction of the Rhone and Saone. - omnis: Cæsar means all of Gaul, except that part which had been subdued by the Romans, in opposition to Gallia in the limited sense of one of the three divisions. - est divisa, lit, has been divided: usually translated is divided, as this form in English expresses a completed action, the participle being used as an adjective. - tres is placed at the end of the sentence as being the significant word, indicating the number of divisions. — unam: supply partem as object of incolunt. - ăliam, another (part.): if Cæsar had been enumerating them in order, he would have used alteram or secundam. — tertiam . . . . appellantur, the third, those who are called in our language Gauls. institutis, in customs: when three or more nouns stand together, the conjunctions may be omitted altogether, or used between the first and second, and second and third, etc. - inter se, among themselves or from one another. — dīvidunt is to be supplied after Mātrona et Sēguana. propterea quod, because (lit. because of this); distinguished between propterea, for this reason, and praeterea, besides. - Germanis, to the Germans. — incolunt, dwell. Give the synonymes of bellum. — quoque, also; the ablative of quisque is quoque. - virtute, in valor; virtus, from same root as vir, means manhood. - una pars, one part, of the main divisions of Gaul, i.e. Gallia Celtica. — flumine, etc.: notice that the connectives are omitted. - fīnībus: fīnis, limit; plur., fīnēs, limits, often applied to what is included in those limits, territory. - ad, towards. - Belgae; hence the modern Belgium. - inferiorem partem, i.e. towards the mouth of the river. - ad, near to. - spectat inter occasum solis, it looks between the setting of the sun, i.e. it looks northwest, i.e. from the Province.

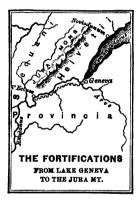

2. apud, among; apud with the name of a person often means at the house of; with the name of an author, in the writings of. — nobilissimus, see 141. — dītissimus from dīs (149. 4). — Is is expressed because it is emphatic. Note the position of the word Orgetŏrix at the end of the sentence, to give prominence to the name. — Syn.

nōbīlis, clārus, illustris, denote distinction: clārus is one celebrated for his deeds; illustris, for his rank or character; nōbīlis, for his noble birth; cĕlĕber and inclŭtus (inclĭtus) denote celebrity, are generally used of things, not of persons.—cīvītātī, the state, i.e. the people, all the inhabitants of a state under one government; it is here the indirect object of persuāsit, while the clause introduced by ut is the direct object (321. 1).—exīrent is plural on account of the plural implied in cīvītās; why in the imperf. subj.?—contĭnentur, are hemmed in.—ūnā ex parte, on one side.—Helvētium, see Helvētius.—altissīmō; altus, high, when reckoned from below; deep, when from above downward.—tertiā, sc. ex parte.—lācū Lēmānnō: now Lake Geneva.—The pupil should be required to describe the rivers and give the situation of the places mentioned in the text.

- 3. adductī, induced. pertinērent is in the subjunctive, because it is implied that these things belonged to their departure in the opinion of the Helvētians; which (as the Helvetians thought), pertained to their departure (364). jūmentōrum (from same root as jungo, jūgum) is both pack and draught animals. sēmentēs . . . fācĕre, to make as large sowings as possible; for the force of quam with the verb possum in connection with the superlative, see 151. Obs. 3. proximus has no positive; its place is supplied by prŏpinquus. in . . . . cōnfirmant, they fix by law upon their departure for the third year.
- 4. Ad conficiendas, to accomplish: con is here intensive; it usually means, in composition, together. In how many ways may a purpose be expressed in Latin (321. 3, Obs. 1)? - dēligītur: dēligo, to choose in general (not to be undecided in one's choice); ēligo, choose, in the sense of selecting from several. - Sēquano, the Sequanian. - ut rēgnum . . . . occuparet: this clause is the direct object of persuadet, prevails upon; persuadet is in the historical present, and may therefore be followed by the imperfect subjunctive (320.6). Give the synonymes of regnum. - plēbī, to the plebeians (see L.'s Rom. Hist.). - ut idem conārētur, that he should strive for the same thing. - totius, all. - Syn. omnis, all (without exception), in opposition to nemo; universi (unus-verto, lit. turned into one, i.e. the parts brought into unity), all collectively, in opposition to singuli; cuncti, all united together in opposition to dispersi; totus, the whole, in opposition to separate parts; whereas integer (intango, lit. untouched), uninjured, still whole. - ea res, this design, lit. this conspiracy. - ut, when. - ex . . . dīcere, to plead his cause in chains; lit. out of chains, i.e. (being) in chains. - damnātum, sc. eum, translate, it was necessary that the punishment should follow him condemned, namely, that he should be burned; the clause ut īgnī cremārētur explains poenam (342.

- 3); for this use of the subjunctive, see 323. 5.—Syn. īgnis, fire; flamma, flame; incendium, a conflagration; īgnis is the cause, flamma, the effect.—fămiliam, household.—clientēs, for the relations between client and patron at Rome, see L.'s Rom. Hist.; here the word is applied to the retainers of the Helvetian chief.—obaerātōs, debtors.—per eōs sē ēripuit, by means of them he rescued himself; for the force of per, see 248. Obs. 1.—incitāta, incensed.—jūs suum exsĕquī, to enforce (lit. follow out) their authority.
- 5. nihilominus, lit. the less by nothing, i.e. nevertheless. Syn. conor. try, attempt; molior (moles), undertake a difficult work; nitor (lit, lean upon), strive. - Syn. aedificium is a general word for buildings of all kind: domus, the house as the residence and home of the family: aedes (pl.) also means a dwelling-house, composed of several apartments. incendo, accendo, inflammo, all mean to set on fire; incendo, from within; accendo, from a single point, as to light a lamp; inflammo, to put into a blaze, either from within or without; succendo, set on fire from beneath; cremo, destroy by burning. - trium mensium (genitive), for three months. - quemque, each one; jubent, for the construction after jubeo, see 342. 1. (2). - quibus itineribus: the noun to which the relative refers is sometimes repeated, as in this case; this repetition of the antecedent is necessary when there are two nouns preceding, and it might be difficult to determine to which the relative referred; the relative clause is consecutive, and takes the subjunctive, see 322. - The pupil should be required to trace this route on the map. - alterum, the other (of the two). - locis, for the omission of the preposition, see 270. 2. c. - vădō trānsītur, is crossed by a ford. - Allōbrogum. The Allobroges dwelt on the south side of Lake Geneva next to the Helvetii, where the Rhone flowed from the lake. - ad Helvetios pertinet, extends (across) to the Helvetii. The Helvetii occupied a greater part of what is now Switzerland. - diem dicunt, they appoint a day; for the repetition of the antecedent, see note above. - convěniant, are to assemble: the indicative means that they are assembling; what does this relative clause denote, purpose or result? - Describe the Rhone. - mātūrat, hastened, the historical present; what is the object of maturat? ab urbe (270. 2, Obs. 2), from the city, i.e. Rome. Cæsar had obtained previously to the expiration of his consulship (B.C. 59) the provinces Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum with three legions for five years; afterwards Transalpine Gaul was added with another legion. He set out from the city as proconsul in the spring of B.C. 58. - Galliam ulteriorem. Farther Gaul, i.e. Gaul beyond the Alps, or Transalpine Gaul.
  - 6. certiores factī sunt, were informed. Syn. legātus, an ambassador, a lieutenant; ōrātor, one who pleads a cause, an envoy, an orator; rhētor, one who gives lessons in rhetoric, a rhetorician.—quī dīcĕrent, to say, lit. who should say, a relative clause denoting purpose.—sībī esse in ānīmō, that it was their intention, lit. that it was to them in mind: what is the subject of the verb esse? What is the object of dīcĕrent?—sīne ūllō mălĕfīciō, without (doing) any harm. The Helvetii had two ways by which they could go from home, one through the narrow pass between Mount Jura and the banks of the Rhone; the other by the fords of the Rhone, which led directly into the Province. In order to prevent the Helvetii from taking the latter route, Cæsar drew a line of fortifications on the southern side of the river, from Lake Geneva to the Jura mountains, a distance of about eighteen miles. To accomplish this work, Cæsar had the 10th legion = 5000, and about 5000 or 6000 new levies = 10,000 or 11,000 infantry. - něgat sē posse, he says he cannot; něgo is generally used in preference to dīco non. - ūna is emphatic, one only. - ut . . . impětrārent, that, he being the intercessor, they might obtain (their request). - plūrimum poterat, was able to accomplish a great deal (Rule 27). - amīcus, friendly. - in mātrimonium dūxerat, had married; when speaking of a man taking a wife, ducere (uxorem) was used, i.e. he leads her to his house; of a woman taking a husband, nübere was used, lit. nüběre sē virō, to veil herself for a husband,—an allusion to the veil worn during the marriage ceremony.—ităque, therefore; itāque means and so.—What is the object of impětrat?

7. in Italiăm, into Italy, i.e. into Cisalpine Gaul. — duās lēgiōnēs cōnscrībit: the 11th and 12th, and the three (the 7th, 8th, and 9th) legions in winter-quarters at Aquileia, in Illyria; one legion (the 10th) was already on the Rhone = six in all = about 25,000 men. The Allobroges and Vocontii were both in the province. — jam, at this time, i.e. while Cæsar was absent collecting troops. — Angustiās, the narrow pass between the Jura and the Rhone. — Syn. pŏpūlor, to ravage (by pillage and fire); vasto, to lay waste; dēpŏpūlor, utterly to ravage. — Aeduī Ambarrī, the Ædui near the Arar (or Saône). — rŏgātum, to ask, see 266. — dēpŏpūlātīs, the use of the participle of the deponent verb in a passive sense, see 279. a; the way led through the Pas-de-PEcluse.

NOTES. 411

— sēsē .... non făcile .... prohibēre, that they with difficulty could ward off, etc. — sē .... recipiunt, betake themselves. — non exspectandum (esse) sibi stătuit, he thought he ought not to wait.

- 8. flumen est Arar, there is a river (called) Arar; now the Saône. It unites with the Rhone at the city of Lugdunum (Lyons), about seventy miles from Lake Geneva. — quod agrees with flumen (Rule 5). — incrēdibili . . . . possit, with incredible smoothness of current, so that it cannot be determined by the eyes in what direction it flows; lenitate, smoothness, contrasted not only with the Rhone, but with the rapidity of the rivers in Italy. - possit, 322. - rătibus et lintribus junctis, the ablative absolute to supply the place of the perfect active participle; lintribus, small boats: these were boats made of logs hollowed out. - transibant, were now crossing; note the force of the imperf. - Helvētios transduxisse. that the Helvetians had, etc. In Napoleon's Cæsar, this place of crossing the Saone is said to have been at Châlons sur Saône; according to Göler, near Lyons, between Trevoux and Villefranche. - citra flumen, on this side of the river, i.e. on the east side. - de tertia vigilia, just at the beginning of the third watch. The Romans divided the night into four watches (the first beginning at sunset), each of three hours; the third watch began at midnight and extended (it now being the month of June) to 2 o'clock A.M. - aggressus has the sense of a perfect active participle, the verb being deponent. - How does concidit differ from concidit? - is pagus, this canton, in the neighborhood of Zürich. appellabatur, from appello, name, also to speak to; voco, call, summon; nomino, name, in the sense of appointing or electing; cito, quote. - L. Cassium, this defeat was in B.C. 107. — consulem, see L.'s Rom. Hist., p. 50. - sub iŭgum. It was considered the lowest degree of military disgrace for the Roman soldiers to be obliged to pass under the yoke. The voke was formed by placing two spears upright in the ground, and fastening a third across the top of the other two; under this the conquered army must pass in token of subjugation. - ea . . . . persolvit, was the first to suffer punishment; princeps is equivalent to prima.
- 9. consequi, to overtake.—in Arare, over and upon, i.e. a floating bridge.—faciendum, 286.—Why is ejus used, not suo?—legatos, in diplomatic language, an ambassador or envoy; in military affairs, lieutenant, i.e. the commander of one or several legions; the tribunes still ranked as formerly, among the higher officers of the legion, but their duties were in Cæsar's time limited more to the management of the internal affairs of the legion. Neither did a tribune take the place of a legatus in case the latter was disabled, but a quaestor, who also outranked the tribunes.—cūjus....fuit, the chief of which embassy was Divico.—bello Cassiānō, in the war with Cassius, i.e. in B.C. 107, when the consul Cassius was the commander. — ēgit, argue, discourse. — Syn. dux, a leader, a general; ductor, a guide; impērātor, a commander or emperor. — pācem and bellō are placed prominently to mark them as significant words. This section is an indirect discourse (348), depending on dīcēns (saying) implied in ēgit. Compare the form of direct discourse under 348. For the use of the future indicative or present subjunctive, see 326. 2, and 355 ff. — rěminiscērētur . . . . incommodī, he should remember both the old overthrow (lit. inconvenience); this refers to the defeat of Cassius. — nē committěret, he should not bring it to pass; committère ut often forms a periphrase like efficère (see 342.3); nē commīsēris (350), in direct discourse.

10. hīs, sc. lēgātīs. — sibi . . . . dărī, that the less doubt is given to him; minus, subj. acc. of dărī, following respondit. - těnēret měmoriā, held in memory; remembered. - větěris contůmēliae, former insult. factūros, sc. Helvētios. — Aeduīs is governed by sătisfăciant. — ipsīs (see 354. 4): the dative follows the compound, intulerint, 203. sătisfăciant, pay damages. The direct discourse (355) would be: mihi minus dubitationis datur, quod eas res, quas commemoravistis, měmoria těneo. Sī větěris contumeliae oblivisci volo, num possum rěcentium injūriārum měmŏriam dēpōněre? Tămen sī obsidēs ā vōbīs mihi dăbuntur (dentur), utī ea, quae pollicēminī, vos esse factūros intelligam, et sī Aeduīs dē injūriīs quās ipsīs sŏciīsque eōrum intulīstis, ītem sī Allobrogībus satisfaciētis, vobīs cum pacem faciam. hoc responso dăto = cum hoc responsum dedisset. - idem, neut.: the masculine is idem. - qui videant: what does this relative clause denote, cause, purpose, etc. (360)? - videant is plur., because equitatum implies equites as the subject. - qui, these, i.e. equites. - alieno loco, in an unfavorable place, lit. a place better for the other party; for the omission of the preposition, 270.2.c. — audācius, still more boldly. — ac.... praesentia, and deemed it sufficient for the present .- Ita, in such a way .novissimum agmen, the part of the army nearest to those pursuing, i.e. the rear. - nostrum primum, our front, or van; supply agmen. - non . . . interesset, not more than five or six miles (each day) intervened; the distributives quinis and senis imply that this was the constant difference between the armies.

11. intěrim, give the syns. — cottīdiē, every day, is used of things that are daily repeated; in singŭlōs diēs, daily, of those things which from day to day are making advance. — quod . . . . flāgītāre, kept demanding . . . . which they had promised in the name of the state; flāgītāre, the historical infinitive, equivalent to flāgītābat; pollicitī essent refers to the prom-

Aedui, the Ædui kept putting him (Cæsar) off from day to day. - dūcere, historical infinitive. - conferri . . . . dīcere, they kept saying that it was collecting, was coming in, was close by; the subject of conferri, comportari, and adesse is framentum; they all depend on dicere. - sē diūtius dūcī, that he was being put off too long. - frūmentum. Roman soldier received no meal or bread as his monthly allowance, but merely the grain, which he had to pound and make into bread for himself; 4 modii of wheat (about 50 pounds) were given monthly to each foot-soldier (nearly a bushel, if we reckon a bushel at 60 pounds); 12 modii of wheat and 42 modii of barley to each horseman. Sometimes the Roman soldier carried a supply of food for 17 days (Ammian.: Hist. Libr. 17), and occasionally sufficient for a longer time; a supply for only 5 days is mentioned as an exception (Plut. Sert. 13). Regularly the price of the corn was deducted from the soldier's pay, which for legionaries = 225 denarii = about $37 to $40. A modius of corn cost less than a denarius (see L.'s Rom. Hist., p. 374). — quī . . . . praeĕrat, who held the chief magistracy; qui refers to Liscus. - Why is ab expressed before is? why is sublevetur in the subjunctive? why present subjunctive? - Syn. dēmum, at length (not till now); dēnique, finally (in short): tandem, at last (after many efforts); postrēmo, lastly (last in order). - proponit, set forth, introduces the indirect discourse (348) which follows. - plurimum valeat, is very powerful; valeat, what would this be in the direct discourse? - sēdītiosā . . . . orātione, by seditious and wicked speeches. - ne frumentum conferant, from contributing the corn; conferant is plural on account of the collective noun multitudo preceding. - nostra in the direct discourse would be changed to vestra. - a sē, by himself; ā mē in the direct discourse. - quin ětiam . . . . ēnuntiāverit, moreover our plans are disclosed; quin etiam, nay even. intellegere . . . . fecerit, he was well aware with how great peril he did that. - Syn. intellego, understand by means of reflection; sentio, perceive by the senses or by the mind. — quamdiū pŏtuĕrit, as long as he had been able. — Syn. tăceo, utter no word, be silent, pass over in silence; sileo, make no noise, be still.

12. Dumnörigem . . . . dēsīgnārī, that Dumnorix was meant. Dumnorix led the national party among his people, as opposed to Rome, while his brother Divitiacus favored an alliance with the Romans. - plūrībus praesentibus (abl. abs.), lit. more being present, or in the presence of so many. - eas res jactari, that these matters should be agitated; jactari, a frequentative from jacio. - Give the syns. of concilium. - reperit esse vēra, he finds (that these statements) things are true. — ipsum . . . . audāciā, that it was Dumnorix himself, a man of the greatest boldness .cupidum novarum rērum, desirous of a revolution. - complūres . . . . habere, that he has farmed for many years all the revenues of the Ædui at a low price. -- SYN. vectigal, tithes (decuma), on agricultural produce; tributum, an extraordinary property tax, levied in the tribes, and paid back when the exigency was passed; scriptura, rent of the pasture lands; portorium, harbor duties originally, afterwards applied to tolls paid on transit of merchandise. The revenues among the Romans were not collected directly, but were farmed out (or leased) by the censors to contractors called publicani, who paid a fixed sum into the treasury, and collected the taxes for their own use; they so abused their privileges, that the name publican became a term of reproach. - illo licente, he bidding, i.e. when he bid. - audeat, see 348. - rem familiarem, private property. Dumnorix is the subject of favere and odisse. -SYN. potentia, power as an attribute of a person: potestas, power as of a magistrate, power to do anything; ditio (see dicio), power, jurisdiction. - siquid . . . Romanis, if anything then should happen to the Romans, i.e. in case of any disaster. - obtinendi, see 264. 1. - imperio, under the government, ablative of time and cause. - de regno, of royal power.

13. certissimae rēs, the most undoubted facts.— ănimadverteret, should punish him.— ūnum rēpūgnābat, one consideration opposed.— summum.... stūdium, the very great attachment towards the Roman people; the clause quod, etc., is in apposition with ūnam, and might be introduced by namely.— võluntātem, good will, as a friend; stūdium, attachment, zeal, as a partisan.— ējus refers to Dumnorix.— vērēbātur, give the synonymes.— ităque.... cōnārētur, therefore before he attempted anything: for the subjunctive, see 337.— commŏnĕfăcit, reminds, lit. warns.— ipsō (354. 4) praesente, when he himself was present, i.e. Diviaticus.— dē eō, concerning him, i.e. Dumnorix.— ăpud sē, before himself, i.e. Cæsar.— nē quid.... stătuĕret, that he should not determine anything too severe against his brother.— scīre.... vēra, (saying) that he knew those things were true.—SYN. pŏpŭlus, the people, originally only the patricians, came to include the plebeians; plebs, common people, opposed to the patricians; vulgus, the ignorant multitude.—quod....accidisset, because if anything too severe should be done to him by Cæsar; accidisset represents, in indirect discourse, the fut. perf. indic. (acciděrit) by sequence of tenses (see 326.2).—eum lŏcum, that place = so high a place.—ăpud eum, i.e. Cæsar.—fūtūrum, it would happen, see 349.—ānīmī, the affections.—frātrem adhibet, he has his brother present.

14. exploratoribus: Syn. explorator, a scout: speculator, a spy; ēmissārius, a secret agent.— mīlia passuum = 4854 ft., a little less than an English mile = 5280 ft.— quālis.... adscensus, what kind of an ascent it was by a circuitous route, i.e. at various parts of its circuit.— quī cognoscerent, misit, he sent (persons) to ascertain; quī cognoscerent denotes the purpose (see 324); the antecedent of quī is the object of misit: what is the object of cognoscerent?—făcilem, sc. adscensum.— dē quarta vigiliā = about 2 o'clock A.M.— eodem itinere, along the same route.— quō, by which (271).

15. prīmā lūce, at daybreak. — summus mons, the summit of the mountain. — ipse, and when he himself, sc. cum. — passībus (see 215. 1); a Roman pace was the distance from where the heel is raised to where it is set down again = 5 Rom. ft. = nearly 4.6 Eng. ft.; a Rom. mile = 4840 ft., an Eng. mile = 5280 ft. — něque . . . Lăbiēnī, and (when) neither his own approach nor that of Labienus. — ĕquō admissō, with his horse at full speed. — vŏluĕrit, in indirect discourse (348). — sē is the subject of cōgnōvīsse. — ex . . . . īnsīgnībus, by the Gallic arms and ornaments; īnsīgnībus, lit. devices on the shields and helmets. — subdūcit, draws off: — ut eī praeceptum, as he had been instructed. What is the subject of praeceptum ĕrat? — exspectābat, continued to look out: imperfect, see 317. 3. — multō dēnīque diē, at last, when much of the day had passed. — prō vīsō, as seen; lit. for seen. — What is the object of rēnuntiāsse? — quō cōnsuĕrat intervallō, with the usual distance; intervallō is the antecedent of quō.

16. diēī is gen. after the adverb postrīdiē. — mētīrī, to measure out. — reī.... existimāvit, he thought he must look out for supplies, sc. sībī esse. — Bibracte = Mont Beuvray. — seu.... existimārent, because they believed that the Romans, being terrified, were departing; the subjunctives existimārent and confīderent: sometimes the subjunctive is used after quod, quia, with verbs of saying, thinking, etc., although the idea expressed is that of the writer, and the reason assigned is his own. Roby explains this subjunctive in 1746, and rems.; Vaniçek, 527, anm. 2. Cæsar's army was composed of four veteran legions, and two legions newly levied; viz.: the 10th, which he had found in the Province, the old legions (7th, 8th, and 9th) which he had brought from Aquileia, and the two new ones (11th and 12th) raised in Cisalpine Gaul = very nearly 36,000 legionaries. To these must be added 4000 cavalry, raised in the Province and among the Ædui, and nearly 20,000 auxiliaries, making a total of 59,000 or 60,000. This estimate does not include the men assigned to other duties, as working the machines, taking care of the baggage, the army servants, etc. In the engagement Cæsar did not employ the two legions newly raised. The Helvetians had about 79,000. For the time denoted by the infinitive, see 349; discēděre here is the imperfect infinitive.

17. postquam id animum advertit, after that Cæsar perceives this; id is governed by ad in composition. - in colle medio, on the middle of the hill, i.e. midway up the hill. - triplicem aciem: the triple line of battle was formed with the four veteran legions, viz.: the 7th, 8th, 9th, and The arrangement was such that one legion (probably the 10th) formed the right wing, two legions the centre, and one legion the left wing; the legions were in the same line. This is of importance, because the triple line of Cæsar is commonly misunderstood; if the legion is considered as the tactical unit, there is but one line; but the cohorts of each legion were arranged in three lines. The celebrated triplex acies is, then, the order of battle, according to which the ten cohorts, of which each legion was made up, were stationed in three lines, one behind the other; ordinarily four being in the front line, three in the second, and three in the third, a suitable space being left between the cohorts. The arrangement of the cohorts of the legion when in line of battle will be understood from the following diagram:-

In Cæsar's line of battle, then, the four legions formed a front line of sixteen cohorts, a second line of twelve, and a third line of twelve.—sarcinās, each soldier's baggage; in this sense used only in the plural: each soldier carried besides his personal baggage and trenching tools provisions for a number of days. The various articles of baggage were bound into bundles (sarcinae), and then bound to the upper end of a pole (furca) 5 or 6 feet long. On the march this pole was carried on the shoulder, and rested, during a halt, on the ground. were an invention made by Marius, and were hence called by the soldiers "Marius' mules" (muli Mariani). The weight carried by a soldier. aside from his food and extra clothing, was 35 to 50 pounds; the entire weight (including provisions and clothing) was, as stated above, not far from 60 to 75 pounds. sarcinae means originally both baggage and packs, or burdens; it was used sometimes to signify the packs carried by the soldiers (Bel. Gal. II. 17), sometimes for the heavy baggage (Bel. Civ. I. 81); here it is used for both. The impedimenta were the heavy baggage, tents, engines of war, etc., which were carried in wagons or on horses. - eum, sc. locum. - in superiore acie, in the upper line (the rear), i.e. those on the top of the hill, the two legions of newly levied soldiers. - confertissimā ăciē, in very close array. - phălange facta: the phalanx consisted of a large body of men in solid mass, with their shields raised above their heads, locked and overlapped so as to form a close fence. — sub . . . . successerunt, they advanced close up to our front line. - primum . . . . equis, first his own horse, - pilis: the pīlum was a shaft of wood, a little more than six feet long, with a sharp iron head projecting about nine inches; fragments of pila have been found at Alise. - perfregerunt, broke through, see perfringo. eā disjectā, when this (phalanx) was broken apart.

18. Gallis . . . . impědimento, it was a great hindrance to the Gauls. plūribus eorum scutīs, several of their shields, see synonymes of scūtum - cum . . . . inflexisset, when the iron (head) became bent. Their shields were locked over their heads, and overlapped one another; a javelin would pierce through more than one, and bind them together. Movements of their left hands, in which the shield was held, were thus impeded. - pědem rěferre, to fall back. - eo, thither. - capto monte, the mountain being reached. — succedentibus nostris, our men coming close up below. - agmen . . . . claudebant, closed the enemy's line of march. - ex itinere, on the march, - circumvenere, perfect tense, third person, plural. - Romani . . . . intulerunt, the Romans turned, and advanced in two divisions: the Romans indicated the movements of their armies by terms derived from the signum, the standard: thus signa convertere, to turn; signa conferre, to engage; signa inferre, to advance; it was the third line that wheeled about and advanced, while the first and second opposed the Helvetians who had been driven back. - ut . . . resisteret, that it might resist those (who had been) conquered and driven back; for the subjunctive, see 321. — ancīpītī proeliō, in a double conflict (lit. two-headed).

19. altěrī....altěrī, the one party....the other party, referring to the Helvetians, and to the Boii and Tulingi respectively.—ab hōrā septīmā, from one o'clock in the afternoon; the day began at sunrise, and ended at sunset; the end of the sixth hour was noon.—pūgnātum sit, the battle raged, see 313. 1.—āversum hostem, an enemy turned about.—ad multam noctem, till late at night.—prō vallō, for a rampart; the vallum was composed of the dirt heaped up (agger) from the ditch (fossa) against the stakes (vallī).—eāque tōtā nocte, during that whole night, 196.— nōstrī, sc. mīlītēs.— pŏtuissent, see 338.— līttērās, a letter.—nē...rē jūvārent (ordering), that they, etc.

20. quī cum, when they.— suppliciter lŏcūtī, speaking suppliantly.— quō tum essent, where they then were; the subjunctive is used to indicate that Cæsar did not know where they were.— pāruērunt, they obeyed.— quī perfūgissent, which had fled to these, i.e. whatever, etc., see 361.— ut... fǎcĕrent, lit. that they should supply them with corn, i.e. to supply, etc.— ipsōs, them, emphatic, used to distinguish the Helvetii from the Allobrogibus (354.4).

21. tăbulae, lists. — līttěrīs Graecīs confectae, made out in Greek letters, which had been learned in Greek Massilia. — rătio confecta erat, an account had been kept. — quī numerus . . . . eorum, what number of them. — possent, see 364. — summa, the sum.

The following brilliant description of the battle near Bibracte is from Mommsen's History of Rome (vol. iv. p. 253, Eng. ed.): "The two armies posted themselves on two parallel chains of hills; the Celts began the engagement, broke the Roman cavalry which advanced into the plain, and ran onward against the Roman legions posted on the slope of the hill, but were there obliged to give way before Cæsar's When the Romans, thereupon following up their advantage, descended in their turn to the plain, the Celts again advanced against them, and a reserved Celtic corps took them at the same time in the flank. The reserve of the Roman attacking column was pushed forward against the latter; it forced it away from the main body upon the baggage and the barricade of wagons, where it was destroyed. The bulk of the Helvetic host was at length brought to give way, and compelled to beat a retreat in an easterly direction, -- the opposite of that towards which their expedition led them. This day had frustrated the scheme of the Helvetii to establish for themselves new settlements on the Atlantic Ocean, and handed them over to the pleasure of the victor; but it had been a hot day also for the conquerors."

Latin Text-Books.

Allen & Greenough's Latin Grammar.

A Latin Grammar for schools and colleges, founded on Comparative Grammar. By J. H. Allen, Lecturer at Harvard University, and J. B. GREENOUGH, Professor of Latin at Harvard University. 12mo. Half morocco. 348 pages. With new and greatly enlarged Index. Mailing price, $1.25; Introduction, $1.12; Allowance for old book, 45 cts.

The standing of this Grammar is now so well established that no extended comments or description need be given.

- 1. It has been used and recommended by teachers of Latin everywhere,—particularly in the large and in the distinctively classical schools, where an independent judgment might be expected.
  - 2. Its firmest friends are those who have used it longest.
- 3. The clearness, simplicity, conciseness, convenience of size and arrangement, and economy of matter, essential in a class-room manual, have been secured without sacrifice of rigid scholarship, as is shown by the emphatic endorsements of eminent authorities.
- 4. To place before the public in authentic form the exact status of the question, the publishers print a series of testimonials from prominent professors and teachers, representing 132 colleges and 452 schools. The latter include about 72,000 students. These letters, which have a judicial value as the independent judgments of competent and disinterested men, pronounce the grammar
  - "Especially suited to beginners." "Brief and concise."
  - "Broad, comprehensive, and complete." "Simple and clear."
  - "Thorough, accurate, and scholarly."
  - "Systematic, scientific, and philosophical."
  - "Practical, and satisfactory to teachers and to students."
  - "The best extant." [Send for the circular.]

At the present time, inasmuch as the grammar has no longer against it the natural conservatism of the schools, and the no less natural prejudice of an entire corps of teachers trained in the methods of other books, its continued and increased success is not surprising.

Allen & Greenough's New Cæsar.

Seven books. Illustrated. Edited by Prof. W. F. Allen, of the University of Wisconsin, J. H. Allen, of Cambridge, and H. P. Judson, Prof. of History, University of Minnesota, with a special vocabulary by Prof. J. B. GREENOUGH, of Harvard College. 556 pages, red edges. bound in half morocco. Mailing price, $1.35; for Introduction, $1.25; Allowance for an old book in exchange, 50 cents.

The publication of the new Cæsar was the third step toward the perfecting of a series which, even in its first draft, was received by eminent authorities as marking a new era in the study of Latin: and, like the first two steps, —the new grammar (revised in 1877).

and Greenough's Virgil (issued in 1881), - it has been most cordially approved by scholars and teachers, as the opinions quoted below will indicate.

The prime object of this edition is to help the student with each sentence, to put before his mind the same picture which that sentence suggested to the intelligent Roman reader.

The Commentaries are simply a military history, - a story of battle and siege. Hence it is clear that to read the book understandingly the student should have a definite notion of a Roman army and its methods. So that while the annotation has been most faithfully done in all respects, special care has been taken with the military notes contributed by Professor Judson.

It is attempted to give, in the light of the latest scholarship, a picture of the Roman soldier of Cæsar, - his dress, his arms, his food. We study the tactics of the legions, and see their evolutions on the march and in battle, their work and life in camp. These points are illustrated by forty-five cuts and diagrams, twelve elaborate plans of the most important battles and sieges, and a double-page colored map of Gaul, revised according to the most recent investigations, — features not in any other English edition.

The Vocabulary attempts to give, first, the etymological meaning of each word so far as is possible; second, the general meanings of the words, representing the conceptions as they appeared to the Romans; third, such renderings as may be necessary to present the thought in a suitable English form. In the last case care is taken to indicate by the use of phrases and by notes the difference between the Roman and the English conceptions.

In giving the etymologies, the actual mode of formation in each case, so far as it is known, is shown, and all the elements which have entered into the formation are noted.

This edition follows, with slight change of orthography, the text of Nipperdey, the more important various readings being given in the notes. References are given to the Grammars of Allen & Greenough, Gildersleeve, and Harkness.

Though the Cæsar was not placed in the hands of teachers for examination until the middle of August, 1885, when in many cases books had been selected and ordered, it was almost immediately adopted by about 500 institutions. The indications are that the fall of 1886 will find it in nearly or quite 1000 schools.

Letters received by the publishers specify among others these

POINTS OF EXCELLENCE.

PIRST. The judicious notes,—their full grammatical references, crisp idiomatic renderings, scholarly interpretations of difficult passages, clear treatment of indirect discourse, the helpful maps, diagrams, and pictures; in particular, the military notes, throwing light on the text, and giving life and reality to the narrative.

SECOND. The vocabulary,—convenient, comprehensive, and scholarly, combining the benefits of the full lexicon with the advantages of the special vocabulary.

THIRD. The mechanical features of the volume, its clear type, convenient size and shape, superior paper, and attractive binding.

FOURTH. In general, this edition supplies all that a book can supply, leaving the teacher time and strength for his proper work of instruction,—the work that a book cannot do.

Greenough's Virgil.

Containing Life of the Poet, Introductions, a Synopsis preceding each Book, and an Index of Plants. Also full illustrations from ancient objects of art. Fully annotated, for School and College Use, by J. B. GREENOUGH of Harvard University.

The text follows Ribbeck in the main, variations being noted in the margin; and the references are to Allen & Greenough's, Gildersleeve's, and Harkness's Latin Grammars. Supplied in the following editions:

		Intro. Allow. Price. Old Book.
Bucolics and Six Books of Æneid, with Vocab	$1.75	$1.60 $0.40
Bucolics and Six Books of Æneid, without Vocab	1.25	1.12
Bucolics, Georgics, and the Æneid complete, with Notes		1.60
Georgics, and last Six Books of Æneid, with Notes		1.12
Vocabulary to Virgil's Complete Works		1.00
Complete Text of Virgil	.85	·75

The notes are designed to give not only what may serve the learner in the bare understanding of the text, but, along with it, some hint of that wealth of traditional interpretation which is more important, perhaps, in the study of Virgil than in that of any other ancient poet.

The many wood-cuts, taken from ancient objects of art, will serve to illustrate the poet's conception better than annotations alone could do.

In preparing the Vocabulary to accompany his Virgil, or for use with other editions, the author has had two things in view: first, to supply as much information as was possible in regard to the history and uses of the Latin words, so that the book should not be a mere key to translate by, but should also furnish means for the study of the language itself; and, secondly, at the same time to give or suggest a suitable English expression for every passage.

The actual quantity of vowels, where known, has been indicated, irrespective of syllabic quantity, in order to aid the proper pronunciation of Latin words.

Yale College: The Vocabulary, both in plan and execution, is superior to any school-book vocabulary known to me. (March 1, 1883.)

Henry Preble, Tutor in Latin, Har-

Tracy Peck, Professor of Latin, | vard College: I am much pleased with it. The notes seem to be full of valuable suggestion, and the Vocabulary is a real improvement upon anything of the kind which I have seen before.

(Feb. 11, 1883.)

A Hand-Book of Latin Synonymes.

Based on "Meissner's Kurzgefasste Lateinische Synonymik." By EDGAR S. SHUMWAY, A.M., Adjunct Professor (in charge) of Latin, Rutgers College; Principal of the Chautauqua Academia; Editor of Latine. Sq. 16mo. Leatherette, flexible. 60 pp. Introd. price, 30 cts.

The aim in this compendium is to mark clearly and concisely the distinctions between synonymes used by the classical authors. These are arranged in some two hundred lists. Each list is based on the English word which most fully expresses the general meaning of words in the list. Each synonyme is printed in heavy type, to catch the eye. These lists are arranged and numbered alphabetically, so that the student who wishes the Latin synonymes for an English word can find them readily. A carefully-prepared Latin index renders it just as easy to find synonymes for the Latin word. In marking distinctions, especial use is made of derivations. Directions are often given to prevent incorrect use of terms by the student of Latin composition. A list of simpler synonymes is indicated (by stars) for the use of elementary students. The hand-book will be found invaluable in not only preparatory but also college work.

M. Warren, Prof. of Latin, Johns Hopkins Univ. A book of this sort, conveniently arranged, was much needed, and it will, I think, serve a very good purpose.

Henry S. Frieze, Prof. of Latin, Univ. of Mich.: It is a very attractive little book, containing multum in parvo, and will be of great assistance, especially to students who are entering the upper classes in school and the first classes in college. I shall recommend its use to students here.

Merrill E. Gates, Pres. Rutgers Coll.: The terse suggestiveness of the book in arrangement, definitions, and warnings, is its distinctive merit. Precisely what the admirable little preface promises is done. I believe it will do much to promote the careful, loving, intelligent study of Latin.

T. B. Lindsay, Prof. of Latin, Boston Univ.: It is a good book, and I shall recommend it to my students.

Edwin Post, Prof. of Latin, De Pauw Univ., Ind.: I must again express my approbation of it. It has the great merit of being clear—a point in which the larger and more pretentious books too often lamentably fail. I have used it with fifty or sixty students during the term, and with eminent satisfaction.

Geo. P. Hopson, Prof. of Latin, St. Stephen's College: It is admirably done, and will, I am sure, prove of great service to students.

C. J. Hinkel, Prof. of Latin, Vassar College: I shall cordially recommend it to our students.

Samuel Hart, Prof. of Latin, Trinity College: It seems to be just

Ginn & Heath's Classical Atlas.

By A. KEITH JOHNSTON, LL.D., F.R.G.S., aided by W. E. GLADSTONE, Prime Minister of England. Contains also a Geography of the Ancient World, prepared by W. F. ALLEN of the Univ. of Wisconsin. Bound in full cloth, with guards, similar to Long's Classical Atlas (7½ × 12 inches). Mailing price, $2.30; Introduction, $2.00.

We would call special attention to the binding of the cloth edition. It is mounted on guards, the binding thus costing about twice as much as that of the English edition, and yet we do not increase the price to the purchaser. As a book of this kind is in constant use, the stronger binding very much enhances its value.

Comprising in Twenty-three Plates, Colored Maps and Plans of all the important countries and localities referred to by Classical Authors. Embodies the results of the most recent investigations. Has a full Index of Places, in which the proper quantities of the syllables are marked by T. Harvey and E. Worsley, M.M.A., Oxon, Classical Masters in Edinburgh Academy. Also containing Allen's Geography of the Ancient World, which is designed to bring the leading epochs and events of ancient history into connection with the geography of the ancient world. Brief suggestions to teachers are added, to assist in the work of the class-room.

"It has the special attraction of Mr. Gladstone's coöperation, who not only placed at the editor's disposal the illustrations to his work on Homer, but enhanced the favor by revising the proof-sheets of the plates and text, as adapted for this Atlas."—Spectator.

Phillips Andover Academy,
Boston Latin Schools, etc.

W. W. Goodwin, Prof. of Greek, Harvard Univ.: It is a most beautiful and highly useful work, and I am glad to see what used to be an expensive luxury brought within the means of all students of the classics. (Dec. 2, 1880.)

Williston Seminary,

Elisha Jones, Asst. Prof. of Latin, Univ. of Mich.: From my cursory acquaintance I have recommended it to our teachers. The map of the Homeric Geography is a feature not contained in either of my other atlases, and will aid Homeric students greatly.

Tracy Peck, Prof. of Latin, Yale Coll.: I have heretofore known the Atlas sufficiently well to feel justified in recommending it to inquiring students, (May 9, 1881.)

S. R. Winans, Tutor in Greek, Princeton Coll., N.J.: It is superb: nothing to criticise, and everything to commend. Every student of the classics needs something of the sort, and this is by all odds the best of its kind. (Oct. 4, 1880.)
